Palmatier quits caucus midst varied reaction

by BILL HILL

Many long-time supporters of the Arlington Heights Caucus are surprised and disappointed in the decision by Trustee Frank Palmatier, who helped organize the caucus 20 years ago, to run for reelection this year as an independent.

Others, however, say they saw it coming.

"It doesn't surprise me. The caucus has had problems for a long time," said Trustet Madeline Schroeder, who was the lone caucus candidate elected in 1975.

"I HAD A very strong feeling after the last election that unless the caucus changed drastically it would not be able to function as it once did," she said.

Palmatier announced Monday he will conduct a joint campaign for reelection to a fourth term with Trustee Alfred Barboro, who also has been active in the caucus for several years and was on the caucus' slate of candidates in 1975.

Palmataier said there were a "variety of reasons" for not seeking caucus endorsement this year.

"We feel there's a definite advantage to associate ourselves with like-minded people, rather than being throw in potluck with candidates with varying outlooks," he said.

Former Village Pres. John Woods, a long-time caucus supporter and currently a member of its executive board, said he was "surprised and Holiday travelers already have started leaving the area.

Visions of Christmas past, present—tons of travelers

by LYNN ASINOF

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas — at the airport, the bus station, the train terminals and on the road.

Holiday travelers are packing their bags and heading out of town for the Christmas weekend. Many have already left, and the big crunch is expected to hit tonight and Friday night.

"If it goes like any other Christmas past, it will be crowded and people should give ample time — maybe even more so this year because the holiday is on the weekend," said Art Jackson of American Airlines.

Jackson said a big problem at O'Hare is likely to be parking. "Parking spaces will be at a premium and so arrangements should be made for the party to wait outside if you are picking them up," he said. "If you are letting someone off, don't accompany them into the terminal."

MARC MICHAELSON of United Airlines suggested persons park in the outlying lots and take the airport's shuttle bus to the terminal.

Pat Delia of Trans World Airlines said persons should pick up their plane tickets early, either at a travel agency or an airline ticket office.

Travelers can avoid long baggage lines by checking their bags with a skycap at the door, she said.

All the airlines are asking travelers to arrive at the airport about 1½ hours before scheduled departure to allow for baggage check-in and security.

AT THE AIRPORT, crowds are expected to be heavy right through Christmas Eve, but few persons are expected to travel on the holiday itself.

Motorists this year should have an easier time leaving for their Christmas holiday, says Bob Heck of the Chicago Motor Club. "The exodus from the city will be spread over a longer period," he said. "Many people will be getting Friday off and will be more leisurely about their leave taking."

Heck said traffic will probably be at its worst Sunday evening as persons are returning home.

Christmas crowds at the bus and train stations are expected to be the heaviest today and taper off by Friday.

GREYHOUND BUS Lines will have as many buses as necessary ready to roll. "We have plenty of buses and plenty of drivers," said William Franks, regional office manager.

Franks advised bus travelers to pack lightly, carry their luggage if possible and arrive at the terminal an hour before departure.

Amtrak is also beefing up its fleet for the holiday. "We will increase our over-all capacity by about 15 per cent," said Bob Casey, Amtrak spokesman.

Casey said train travelers should call ahead to find out if reservations are necessary.

Train stalls, traffic delayed for an hour

Rush hour motorists and pedestrians were delayed for more than an hour Wednesday afternoon when a Chicago and North Western Ry. freight train stalled, blocking most intersections in downtown Arlington Heights.

Police directed traffic at downtown intersections away from the north-south streets that cross the tracks.

An unidentified driver who attempted to beat the eastbound train to the Vail Avenue crossing was blamed for the traffic jam which "produced a few upset commuters and wives out shopping," Police Sgt. Norman Busse of Arlington Heights said.

"The engineer told us that a motorist tried to race through the lowered gates at Vail Avenue and that he slammed on the brakes to avoid hitting him. This apparently snapped the train's airhoses," Busse said.

The train was temporarily uncoupled at Vail and Dunton avenues to allow traffic through while railroad officials went to Des Plaines to get parts to repair the train, Busse said.

The train broke down at 4 p.m. and pulled out of Arlington Heights at 5:15 p.m.

Only possibility of white stuff

It's going to be a cold Christmas in Chicago, but it probably won't be a white one.

The National Weather Service says only light snow flurries will brighten the Christmas spirit in Chicago this year. Temperatures will range from highs in the 20s to lows near 10 degrees Fahrenheit.

Persons in Michigan and northern New York state will be among the few who can expect a white Christmas. A storm now in lower Canada may drop more than an inch of snow before the holiday, providing good skiing.

Christmas tourists in Florida shivered Wednesday as temperatures dropped into the teens.

Things aren't much better in Southern California where residents of Sunset Beach helped emergency crews build sand bag dikes as protection against tidal waves from a storm off Hawaii.

Bell slow to devise bus plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter's choice for attorney general was so cautious in enforcing southern school desegregation that as late as 1971 the Supreme Court prodded him into devising effective busing plans to fulfill the court's 1954 desegregation decision.

UPI obtained a list of more than 470 opinions Griffin Bell wrote during his 15 years on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. A reading of more than 100 cases, plus careful study of nearly 30 desegregation and civil liberties cases, show:

- Bell approved an Atlanta school desegregation plan offered in 1963, to comply with the Supreme Court's 1954 decision, which would take an additional 12 years to complete.
- After the Supreme Court ruled in 1968 that school desegregation must be speeded up, Bell attempted to comply and ordered busing, rather than "freedom of choice" transfers, in Jefferson County, Ala. But as recently as 1971, the Supreme Court, in a unanimous opinion by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, said Bell's opinion approving a desegregation plan for Mobile County, Ala., was inadequate.
- Early in his career, Bell was reversed twice by the Supreme Court for failing to go far enough in striking down Georgia election laws which did not meet the "one man, one vote" criteria of the 14th Amendment.
- He was reversed by the high court in 1965 after holding the Georgia House could refuse to seat black legislator Julian Bond because he made statements against the Vietnam war. The justices ruled unanimously Bond had a First Amendment right to speak out.

The study also showed he made a major ruling on constitutinal challenge favorable to civil rights workers and another striking down a loyalty oath required of Georgia school teachers.

If Bell is confirmed as attorney general, he will be the nation's top law enforcement officer. A major task will be to seek enforcement of civil rights and voting rights acts. The NAACP has condemned Bell's nomination on grounds he was lax in ordering full school desegregation.

The decisions examined were those in whch Bell wrote the majority opinion for a three-judge appeals court panel or a three-judge district court when the constitutionality of state laws was at stake. The opinions do not include cases, probably numbering in the hundreds, in which Bell was a panel member but did not write the decision.

In one decision, Bell gave southern

Why does it always seem to end the same?

Numbing cold; gray skies blocking out the sun that had sparkled only an hour ago; the austere background of a concrete cross; snowflakes beginning to fall.

And now only the handful of mourners watching the casket being lowered, the cemetery workers covering the plot.

The hundreds who had stood along 111th Street in south suburban Worth, waiting for hours at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in a stiffening winter wind, were gone. A half hour before, the dignitaries, family and friends had left, too, the end to the somber rite of death concluded.

ONLY THE FINAL task remained, the one which ultimately brings equality to paupers and kings.

Mayor Richard J. Daley had often spoke of himself as a common man, "just a kid from the stockyards." Now, as he was committed to the ground, it was the commoners who had stayed.

Perhaps the finality of it chilled more than the biting wind. But the tributes that had come hours earlier reminded them that a legacy remained.

And from the hundreds who had come to this Roman Catholic resting place, the silent tribute, enduring the elements for a final farewell, was another kind of salute, akin in its own way to the grandiose celebrations that had followed Mayor Daley before.

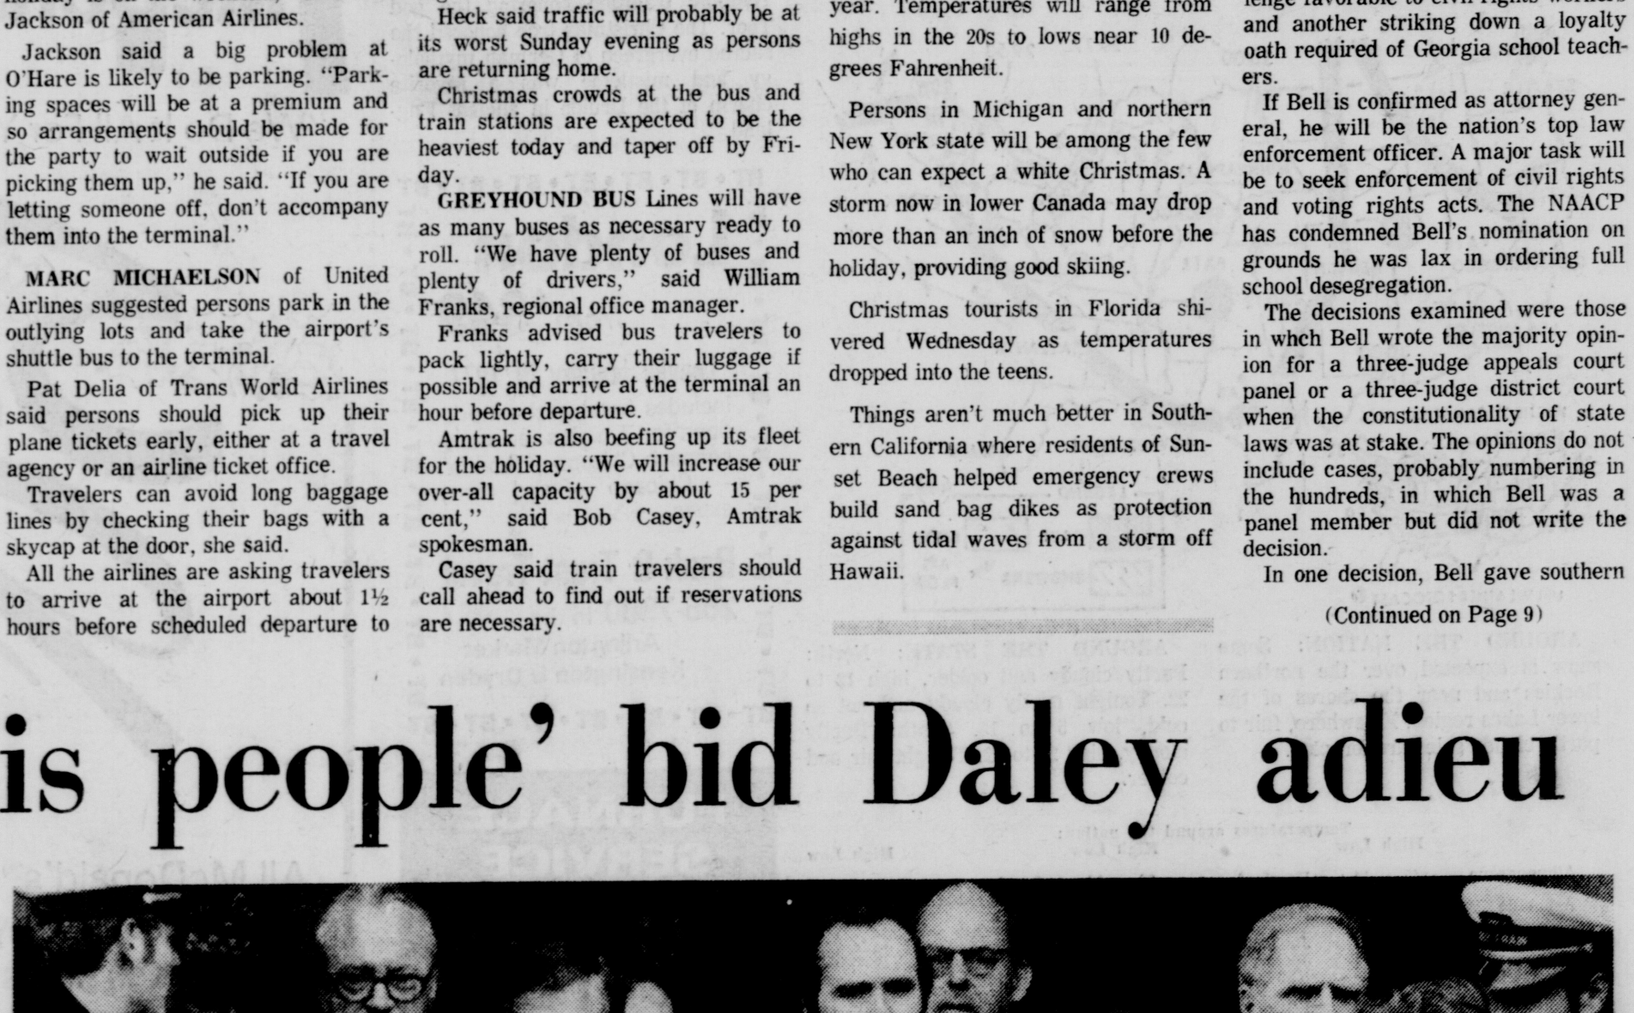
THEIR RANK was obvious. No limousines here. Young children masked under scarves, teen-agers foolishly attired in unbuttoned coats, laborers shifting from foot to foot in futile attempts to stay warm, red-faced women — these were the ones waiting.

The cemetery entrance had been blocked. The Daleys had requested a private burial and no one begrudged the family its few last personal moments with their patriarch.

Instead, they watched from the roadway, the plot easily visible just to the east of the entrance, marked by two large maroon-colored tents set up temporarily for the brief graveside rites.

It had seemed an eternity waiting in the frigid temperatures until the motorcade finally arrived at 12:40 p.m. But within 15 minutes the services had concluded, the limousines pulling away, the crowd of onlookers drifting apart.

The last few ventured forward when the cemetery gates were opened. In the shadow of the winter-barren trees near the plot, they watched the story of a kingmaker, a boss, a builder, a commoner come to a close.



THE HEADS OF state came Wednesday to Nativity of Our Lord Church in Bridgeport to pay final respects to Mayor Richard J. Daley. President-elect Jimmy Carter, center, was flanked by Gov. and Mrs. Dan Walker and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, far right, Democratic National Committee chairman Robert Strauss, behind Carter, and Sen. Adlai Stevenson, behind Strauss.

'Tis the season to be jolly? Well, it wasn't always so

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — If Christian elders had had their way, there would be little merriment at Christmas, and children would be more likely to get sack cloth than sacks of toys, a religious scholar said Wednesday.

For centuries, church leaders were suspicious of the faithful who wanted Christmas to be a joyous event and warned against a return to hedonistic paganism, said Clifford W. Edwards, a professor of religious studies at Virginia Commonwealth University.

The Puritans in England even outlawed the celebration of Christ's birth, said Edwards, a New Testament scholar.

IN THE AMERICAN Colonies, the Blue Laws of Massachusetts Bay and New Haven even banned mince meat pie as inappropriate. Those who chose to ignore a 1640 Massachusetts law forbidding labor or feasting at Christmas, faced a fine of five shillings, he said.

The modern Christmas, with its symbols of joy, happiness and hope, is a victory of popular demand for a bright holiday over the austere celebration — if there was to be any celebration at all — envisioned by the keepers of the faith, Edwards said.

"The church officials wanted the mood of Christmas to be more like that at a funeral than a birthday party," he said.

"Church officials were suspicious if the populace was having too much fun," he said. "They viewed Christianity as being serious, oriented toward the death of Christ, not his birth."

CLIFFORD EDWARDS

"THE POPULACE wanted a joyful celebration, and they obviously won," he said. "Christmas can be viewed as the triumph of the common people revolting against the institutional church and claiming a celebration of their own."

During the first three centuries of its history, the church had no official date for the celebration of Christ's birth, Edwards said, and May 20, April 18, March 28 and Jan. 8 were dates argued by clerical scholars.

When one was finally adopted, Edwards said, the church pragmatically chose Dec. 25, a pagan holiday, so that Christians would have something to do besides join in heathen revelries.

The date marked the Roman celebration of the winter solstice by devotees of Mithra, pagan god of the sun, he said.

CHURCH OFFICIALS considered Christianity as an Easter faith, with the emphasis on the death and resurrection of Christ, rather than a Christmas faith, based on the new hope symbolized by Christ's birth, he said.

"The church insisted on emphasizing the crucifixion, the cross and a suffering figure on the cross," Edwards said. "But the populace wanted something happy . . .

"The populace could more readily grasp the idea of a new baby than the idea of a tortuous death on a cross and subsequent resurrection," he said.

The image of a jolly Santa Claus, dressed in red and white and seated in a sleigh with reindeer, came from an 1823 poem by Clement Moore.

The Yule log was borrowed from Teutonic tradition honoring the god Thor. The Christmas tree honored the sacred evergreen of German mythology and mistletoe was a favorite charm of the Druids in ancient England.

'Tis the season to be jolly? Well, it wasn't always so

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — If Christian elders had had their way, there would be little merriment at Christmas, and children would be more likely to get sack cloth than sacks of toys, a religious scholar said Wednesday.

For centuries, church leaders were suspicious of the faithful who wanted Christmas to be a joyous event and warned against a return to hedonistic paganism, said Clifford W. Edwards, a professor of religious studies at Virginia Commonwealth University.

The Puritans in England even outlawed the celebration of Christ's birth, said Edwards, a New Testament scholar.

IN THE AMERICAN Colonies, the Blue Laws of Massachusetts Bay and New Haven even banned mince meat pie as inappropriate. Those who chose to ignore a 1640 Massachusetts law forbidding labor or feasting at Christmas, faced a fine of five shillings, he said.

The modern Christmas, with its symbols of joy, happiness and hope, is a victory of popular demand for a bright holiday over the austere celebration — if there was to be any celebration at all — envisioned by the keepers of the faith, Edwards said.

"The church officials wanted the mood of Christmas to be more like that at a funeral than a birthday party," he said.

"Church officials were suspicious if the populace was having too much fun," he said. "They viewed Christianity as being serious, oriented toward the death of Christ, not his birth."

CLIFFORD EDWARDS

"THE POPULACE wanted a joyful celebration, and they obviously won," he said. "Christmas can be viewed as the triumph of the common people revolting against the institutional church and claiming a celebration of their own."

During the first three centuries of its history, the church had no official date for the celebration of Christ's birth, Edwards said, and May 20, April 18, March 28 and Jan. 8 were dates argued by clerical scholars.

When one was finally adopted, Edwards said, the church pragmatically chose Dec. 25, a pagan holiday, so that Christians would have something to do besides join in heathen revelries.

The date marked the Roman celebration of the winter solstice by devotees of Mithra, pagan god of the sun, he said.

CHURCH OFFICIALS considered Christianity as an Easter faith, with the emphasis on the death and resurrection of Christ, rather than a Christmas faith, based on the new hope symbolized by Christ's birth, he said.

"The church insisted on emphasizing the crucifixion, the cross and a suffering figure on the cross," Edwards said. "But the populace wanted something happy . . .

"The populace could more readily grasp the idea of a new baby than the idea of a tortuous death on a cross and subsequent resurrection," he said.

The image of a jolly Santa Claus, dressed in red and white and seated in a sleigh with reindeer, came from an 1823 poem by Clement Moore.

The Yule log was borrowed from Teutonic tradition honoring the god Thor. The Christmas tree honored the sacred evergreen of German mythology and mistletoe was a favorite charm of the Druids in ancient England.

Dear constituent

You better not cry, you better not pout... if you don't get a card from a politician because they're mailing out plenty

by STEVE BROWN

Politicians, who sometimes are accused of stuffing ballot boxes, are busy filling the mailman's pouch with cards and letters hoping the holiday greetings might put a few votes under their tree for use in the next election.

With Christmas card lists that resemble phone books and cards of all descriptions, area public officials are sending Christmas and holiday greetings to thousands of persons.

"We sent out about 2,200 this year, only to our closest friends, of course," said State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights. In exchange, come untold hundreds of cards from politicians and constituents.

GIFT GIVING, except in rare instances, is out for politicians. State Rep. Virginia B. Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, said she has always made it a practice not to accept gifts from lobbyists or others related to her duties as a legislator.

Mrs. Macdonald said she sends about 500 cards each year and gets several hundred in return.

While the holiday greetings can sometimes be perfunctory messages from other officials, Mrs. Macdonald said the cards and letters can be good ways to keep in touch with other political acquaintances from throughout the state.

"Of course it is always nice to hear from the White House," she added.

AN UNSCIENTIFIC RULE of thumb seems to suggest the larger the district the larger the Christmas card list.

"We sent out at least 7,000 this year," said Earl Lewis, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane's administrative assistant.

The 12th District Congressman's card combines the traditional red and green holiday colors with the official congressional seal. A full-color picture of Crane with a pocket calendar was enclosed.

All of the public officials or aides questioned about the holiday mailing lists were quick to mention that taxpayers do not foot the bill for the cards. Most either use left over campaign funds or their own money to finance their Christmas cards.

THERE ARE special cards that some area political figures wait for each Christmas. Mrs. Macdonald recalled the annual handmark greeting from Thomas Downs and his wife.

Downs, an official of former Gov. William Stratton, and his wife try to combine a topical message, Republican themes and the holiday season all in one card.

"This year we got an elephant flying like a trumpeting angel noting the GOP victories this year," Mrs. Macdonald said.

Mrs. Chapman pointed to the annual greeting from Secretary of Stae Michael J. Howlett.

"THEY ALWAYS send a beautiful family picture with everyone smiling," she said. This year's card carried out the same theme, suggesting that even Howlett's Nov. 2 defeat to Governor-elect James T. Thompson couldn't diminish the happiness of the holiday season.

The election produced another duty for Thompson who found himself and his wife expanding their greeting card list substantially.

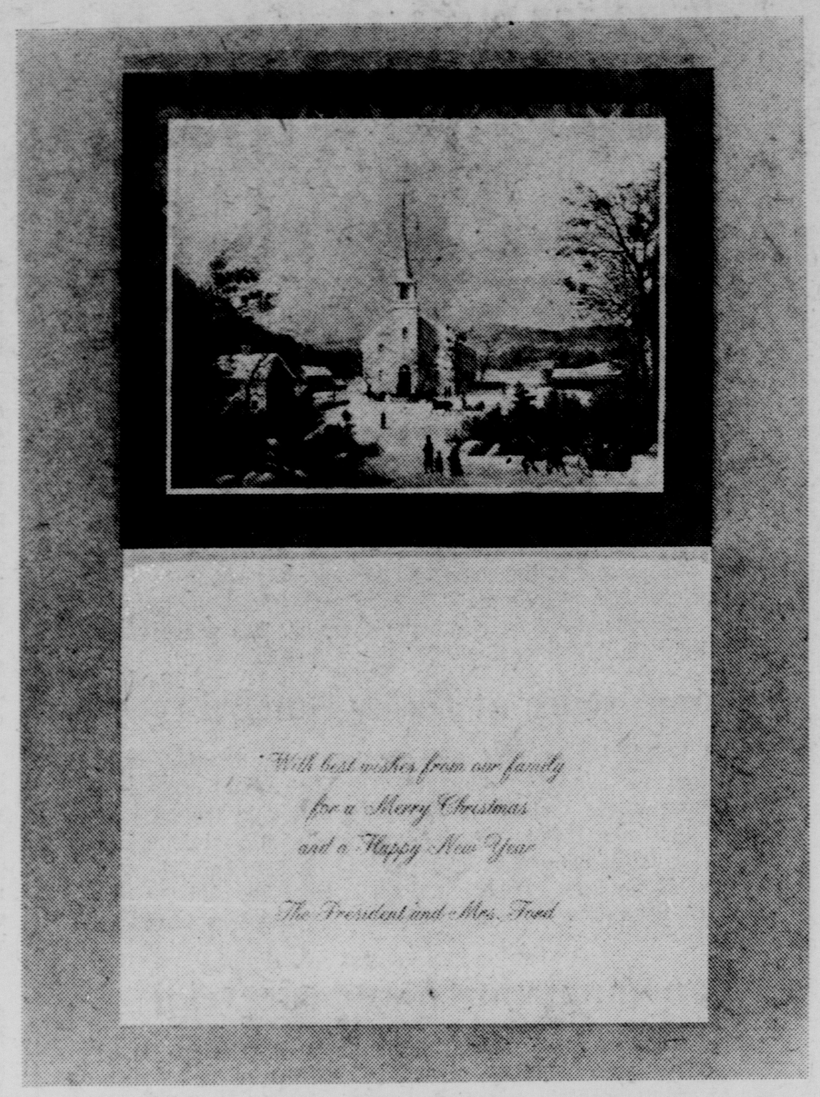
"There were hundreds," one said said, unable to offer a more definite number of cards mailed by Thompson.

An aide to another newly elected politician, President-elect Jimmy Carter, said the press of reviewing administration appointments and the task of establishing and coordinating the names of the 400,000 persons who will be asked to the presidential inaugural made a mass Christmas card mailing impossible.

THE CARTER family did send cards to a limited number of long-time friends and associates, the aide added.

Some public officials try to do more than just sending cards. State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and his wife put out a special holiday newsletter to out-of-town friends and relatives. He said his combined mailing of cards and letters amounts to more than 800.

Shlickman and others admit that it is difficult to keep up with reading all of the cards received. "I usually find myself sitting down a few days before Christmas or Christmas day to look through the cards. It is a nice part of the holidays," he said.



SOME AREA families will be receiving this card from President and Mrs. Ford along with the holiday greetings from many other local public officials who send Christmas cards each year.

Oil tanker wreck deliberate says caller

NANTUCKET, Mass. (UPI) — The broken hulk of the tanker Argo Merchant was battered into more pieces by stormy seas Wednesday, sending the rest of its oil cargo into the Atlantic, and the Coast Guard said the ship may have been deliberately run aground.

The 400-foot bow section of the Liberian ship, pummeled by 40-knot winds and 15-foot seas, broke apart and dumped the final million gallons of the tanker's 7.6 million gallon thick industrial oil cargo into rich fishing grounds.

A portion of the bow section, including the pilot house, sank.

The Coast Guard said it had received a telephone call from a Pakistani crew member of the tanker saying the Argo Merchant may have been deliberately run aground on Nantucket Shoals.

"HE STATED that the vessel was old and leaking and may have been deliberately beached, with the owner' knowledge," the Coast Guard said.

It was not known if the caller was telling the truth, but the Coast Guard informed the government of Liberia, where the ship was registered.

Rear Adm .William Benkert, chief of the Coast Guard's Office of Merchant Marine Safety, said the telephone call was received at the Coast Guard office at Governor's Island, N.Y. The caller identified himself as either "M. Labir" or "M. Sabi."

THE TANKER has been involved in at least 18 other high seas mishaps since 1964 including two previous groundings off the coast of Italy and off Borneo in 1969 and 1971.

The Coast Guard abandoned plans to board the hulk. But an official said the remains of the tanker will be towed out to sea. The wreck, now in three parts, would not be bombed, the official said.

Splotches of oil from the worst Atlantic Coast oil spill yet were seen 100 miles from the site of the tanker. It has been wedged for a week on the Nantucket Shoals, 27 miles to the southeast.

"It looks like nothing else can be done," Coast Guard spokesman Richard Griggs said.

A RIVER OF oil snaked east, touching a portion of Georges Bank, a ledge area so rich with fish that foreign nations annually send scores of trawlers there. Ecologists feared the oil would contaminate spawning beds for haddock, cod and pollack, protein rich fish that begin reproduction during winter.

Hundreds of sea birds, coated with oil and unable to fly, stood shivering on sandy resort beaches and waited to freeze to death. Federal and state health officials along the coast intensified dockside inspections of fish and shellfish landed by commercial trawlers to ensure supplies were not contaminated.

Massachusetts asked the White House to declare a state of emergency instead of a disaster.

"That will kick off more immediate relief, like small business loans for our fishermen who are suffering financially already," an aide to Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis said.

FEDERAL OFFICIALS' hands in Washington appeared tied.

"There isn't much that the EPA can do with regards to a spill of this sort," Russell Train, Environmental Protection Agency chief said.

The spill, which occurred just days after the Interior Dept. held hearings on offshore oil drilling, need not affect scheduled leasing of 206 nine-square mile offshore oil tracts next spring, Train said.

"Not developing those resources means there are going to be more tankers coming in from offshore and that's the tradeoff," Train said. He called for international review of tanker construction and safety standards.

To use against organized crime

Secret wiretaps urged by panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government panel Wednesday urged all states to permit secret use of wiretaps as a weapon against the "conspiratorial safeguards" organized crime sets up to protect itself.

"Because of their organization and methods of operation, organized crime activities require sophisticated means of evidence gathering," the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals said in a report.

The report, funded by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, said prosecutors probing into organized crime often find they lack witnesses, imformants and an ability to penetrate the mob.

"ONE WAY TO break through these conspiratorial safeguards is to enact a state statute permitting nonconsensual wiretap and microphonic surveillance," the committee said.

The report came after the FBI issued its uniform crime statistics for the first nine months of this year showing murders and robberies down 10 per cent from the same period last year, and the total number of violent crimes down 5 per cent.

But over-all crime rose 2 per cent, due largely to a 31 per cent increase in thefts from motor vehicles and thefts of motor vehicle accessories, the FBI said. It said the 2 per cent increase was the lowest in three years.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration report urged states to think carefully before legalizing or decriminalizing "victimless crimes" such as gambling, drug use, prostitution and pornography.

"THERE IS insufficient evidence that legalization or decriminalization of such crimes will materially reduce the income of organized crime," the report said. "On the contrary, evidence does exist that the elimination or reduction of legal restraints can encourage expansion of organized crime activities."

The committee, chaired by New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne, recommended a series of steps states can take to fight organized crime, including establishment of "organized crime intelligence" units at the state, regional and local levels.

It also urged creation of statewide grand juries, witness immunity and protection statutes and election campaign finance reforms.

Regionally, the FBI statistics showed there was an 8 per cent rise in over-all crime in the northeast, 2 per cent in the West and 1 per cent in the South. North-central states showed a decline of 1 per cent.

Atty. Gen. Edward Levi said while he was gratified at the drop in violent crimes, "We mustn't forget . . . crime still remains an urgent national problem."

U.S. investigates alleged sale of Mexican babies

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Several government agencies Wednesday launched an investigation into the alleged sale of Mexican babies to American families by the Casa del Sur, a branch of Easter House Adoption Agency of Chicago.

Health Secretariat officials, aided by members of the Federal Judicial Police and the Attorney General's Office, began with an investigation of the administrative offices, including an audit of the Casa del Sur's finances.

The local Casa del Sur is a branch of Chicago's Easter House Adoption Agency, whose president is Seymour Kurtz, an attorney.

IN AN INTERVIEW with UPI in Chicago last week, Seymour said he would bring Mexican-born babies across the border and place them with American families for a flat fee of $5,000.

Kurtz' adoption agency is licensed by the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

"Up until this minute we have no proof of wrong-doing," a spokesman for the Mexican investigative group said. "However, in case any irregularities or violations should be found the law will be applied with all its force."

He added that a second Casa del Sur in Mexico, located in Ciudad Juarez on the Texas border, also is being investigated.

THE CASA DEL Sur, officials said, fulfilled all law obligations when established over three years ago in southern Mexico City. However, they said, there exists the possibility that there may have been some violations.

According to Casa del Sur administrator Julia Irma Salinas, the mothers of babies who are given for adoption, voluntarily give up all claims to the child before a judge and public notary.

However, under Mexican law a mother, or the parents of a child, cannot renounce their children's rights voluntarily. Parents may lose such claim if denied by a judge or when either the father or the mother have committed two or more felonies, or if they are unable to support the child.

It also urged creation of statewide grand juries, witness immunity and protection statutes and election campaign finance reforms.

Regionally, the FBI statistics showed there was an 8 per cent rise in over-all crime in the northeast, 2 per cent in the West and 1 per cent in the South. North-central states showed a decline of 1 per cent.

Atty. Gen. Edward Levi said while he was gratified at the drop in violent crimes, "We mustn't forget . . . crime still remains an urgent national problem."

U.S. investigates alleged sale of Mexican babies

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Several government agencies Wednesday launched an investigation into the alleged sale of Mexican babies to American families by the Casa del Sur, a branch of Easter House Adoption Agency of Chicago.

Health Secretariat officials, aided by members of the Federal Judicial Police and the Attorney General's Office, began with an investigation of the administrative offices, including an audit of the Casa del Sur's finances.

The local Casa del Sur is a branch of Chicago's Easter House Adoption Agency, whose president is Seymour Kurtz, an attorney.

IN AN INTERVIEW with UPI in Chicago last week, Seymour said he would bring Mexican-born babies across the border and place them with American families for a flat fee of $5,000.

Kurtz' adoption agency is licensed by the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

"Up until this minute we have no proof of wrong-doing," a spokesman for the Mexican investigative group said. "However, in case any irregularities or violations should be found the law will be applied with all its force."

He added that a second Casa del Sur in Mexico, located in Ciudad Juarez on the Texas border, also is being investigated.

THE CASA DEL Sur, officials said, fulfilled all law obligations when established over three years ago in southern Mexico City. However, they said, there exists the possibility that there may have been some violations.

According to Casa del Sur administrator Julia Irma Salinas, the mothers of babies who are given for adoption, voluntarily give up all claims to the child before a judge and public notary.

However, under Mexican law a mother, or the parents of a child, cannot renounce their children's rights voluntarily. Parents may lose such claim if denied by a judge or when either the father or the mother have committed two or more felonies, or if they are unable to support the child.

Flood's jury trial delayed to Feb. 15

The jury trial of John Flood, president of the Combined Counties Police Assn., who was arrested on traffic charges in October, has been postponed until February. Ray Carlson, Mundelein village attorney, said Wednesday Flood will be tried Feb. 15 on charges of driving while intoxicated and improper lane usage and Feb. 22 on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Flood, 36, was arrested Oct. 6 by Mundelein police after the car he was driving allegedly struck another auto in a parking lot.

Police allege Flood left the accident scene but was apprehended after authorities received a description of his car. Police reported Flood was placed in the municipal lockup after refusing to be fingerprinted and photographed. He later posted bond and was released after consenting to criminal processing. The police union has chapters in Wheeling, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines.

Bomb scare at Daley funeral

Cecil Wilson, 42, a West Side resident, was arrested early Wednesday for allegedly telling police a bomb would explode in the church where Chicago residents were viewing the body of Mayor Richard J. Daley. Wilson was charged with a misdemeanor for giving false information and released on $100 bail. He was arrested at his home. Police Lt. Earl R. Fleming said the call came on the police emergency number 911 and was traced to Wilson.

Man found unfit for murder trial

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Louis B. Garippo ruled Wednesday Lester Cahill, 50, was unfit to stand trial for the murder of an attendant in a halfway house in Evanston. Cahill and Philip J. Weber, 25, both residents of the Evanston-Ridgeview Sheltered Care Home, were charged in the stabbing death last Aug. 26 of Mitchell Stern, 20, a telephone operator. Garippo ruled Weber unfit to stand trial last month. Both men were remanded to the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health until they are fit to be tried.

Howlett asks staff retake state tests

About 2,000 employes in the Illinois secretary of state's office are being notified they will have to take and pass new civil service examinations or lose their jobs an office spokesman Wednesday said. The notice is included in preChristmas pay envelopes distributed this week. Sec. of State Michael Howlett said a recent court order puts most of his office's employes under jurisdiction of the Illinois Personnel Code. The code is administered by the Dept. of Personnel, which is controlled by the governor.

Because of the ruling, Howlett said in a letter to his workers, "that most employes are going to be required to requalify for continued employement in the jobs they now hold, regardless of seniority. In most cases, 'requalification' will be by open competitive examination, which the employe must pass with a grade high enough to be 'reachable' on the eligibility list." To be "reachable," Howlett said, an employe would have to score with the top 25 per cent of those taking the test for the position. The exams will be open to anyone, including persons now not employed in the office.

Overrides hurt revenue: Lindberg

Overrides of Gov. Daniel Walker's appropriation vetoes have considerably worsened the state's financial condition and will require planning adjustments. Comptroller George Lindberg Wednesday said in the last monthly fiscal report of his administration. Lindberg said next year's expected beginning balance must be lowered by the $39 million in general revenue fund overrides plus an anticipated $50 million deficiency in this year's public aid appropriation.

In addition, he said, economic growth forecasts have been less optimistic since early fall than they were last summer so next year's revenue may be lower than expected. And the lottery already this year is $11 million below last year's take, he said. "What the state is facing, as a result, are continued periods of pinched cash flow during which the state will have trouble paying its bills on time," Lindberg said.

2 children die in mobile home fire

Fire destroyed a mobile home in Villa Ridge Wednesday and two children died in the flames. Woodrow Wilson, Pulaski County coroner, said the dead were Danny Lee Hood Jr., 8, and his brother Matthew, 6.

Their father, Danny, came home from night work and was in bed when the children ran to him and said the house was on fire, Wilson said. He told them to run, and they apparently ran into a hallway and into a bedroom with no exit. The father was treated at Padco Community Hospital in Cairo for burns. The mother, Kathy, and a younger child, 2, were absent when the fire started and returned as it was in progress. The mother was treated at the hospital for shock.

County segregates smokers

From now on the Rock Island County Board will be segregated — into smokers and nonsmokers. Twenty-five of the 29 member board voted 13-12 Tuesday night to separate members' chairs, regardless of party affiliation, into smoking and nonsmoking sections. The two reporters' desks at the meetings also will be segregated.

Jean Arndt, the Republican county chairman, brought up the resolution. "I've wanted to do it for a long time," she said. "I have an allergy and just find smoke very offensive and I think others do too. It's time smokers started to respect the wishes of others."

Radio telescopes linked

University of Illinois astronomers, in cooperation with colleagues in Canada, have succeeded in linking two distant radio telescopes by a communications satellite and a computer delay circuit. The technique could provide the equivalent of a telescope with the diameter of the whole earth and vastly improve methods of studying the size and shape of distant galaxies and quasars.

It also could be used for geodetic surveying, including measurement of continental drift and for earthquake prediction, Illinois Professor George W. Swenson said. The experiment linked a rado telescope at the National Radio Astronomy Obesservatory in Green Bank, W. Va., with one at the Algonquin Aadio Obesrvatory in Ontario, Canada.

Each of the instruments reported its observations to a computer in Canada. But, since signals from the West Virginia instrument took a quarter of a second longer to reach the computer, the scientists had to devise a delay mechanism for their telescope which would permit simultaneous input. That quarter-second hold on one signal, Swenson said, required a system with more than 10 million transistors and two years of work.

Measles shot clinic set at Randhurst

An emergency measles vaccination clinic will be conducted from 1 to 7 p.m. Dec. 28 at the Randhurst Shopping Center, Elmhurst and Rand roads, Mount Prospect.

Cook County public health officials are urging that all children 1 to 18 years old who have not been immunized, were immunized before 1969 or before they were 1 year old get a free measles shot.

A major outbreak of measles has been reported in south suburban Cook County and increasing numbers of measles cases are showing up in north and west Cook County, said Dr. John B. Hall, medical director of the county public health department.

"Analysis of these cases reveals that the majority of children catching measles were improperly immunized," Hall said. "Children are not protected if they never received measles vaccine or if they received vaccine before their first birthday or were immunized before 1969."

Parents who are not sure if their child has been vaccinated should see that the child gets a second shot, Hall said.

For further information on the vaccination program persons may call the county health department's north office in Des Plaines, 298-5800.

Resumption of flu shots for elderly urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's top doctor said Wednesday he is urging a prompt public review of the pros and cons of partially resuming the swine flu immunization program and other flu shots for the elderly and chronically ill.

Some private doctors and state health officials are demanding a resumption of flu shots for their "high risk" elderly and ill patients, said Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health in the Health, Education and Welfare Dept.

"Some decisions have to be made, and I would like that decision to be made promptly," he said Wednesday.

COOPER SUSPENDED the controversial swine flu program last week after at least 58 persons who received the shots developed a sometimes paralyzing condition known as Guillain-Barre syndrome. As of Wednesday morning, that number had risen to 97.

Cooper said, without his knowledge and in conflict with testimony he gave on Capitol Hill last Friday, the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta advised against traditional Hong Kong flu shots as well when the swine flu program was suspended.

The center included the Hong Kong flu vaccine because two persons who received it also got Guillain-Barre syndrome.

Cooper blamed his unawareness on "a lapse in communication" and said he later concurred in CDC's advice.

CDC AND OTHER major government health agencies report to Cooper, who also is ultimate head of the national flu immunization program and would make the decision whether to resume swine flu inoculations.

Cooper said he has urged the convening next week of a government immunization advisory panel to "review the data openly and publicly" on the risks, if any, of flu immunizations and the risks of getting various types of flu.

If any flu shots are resumed, the government would have to consider public distribution of vaccine through clinics as well as private immunizations in doctors' offices, he said.

HEW spokesman John Blamphin noted earlier that the government runs the swine flu program, but has no role in buying or distributing the Hong Kong vaccine which traditionally is purchased by private doctors from drug companies for elderly and chronically ill patients.

BLAMPHIN SAID Cooper may have been "uninformed" when he told Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., at an emergency hearing last Friday: "This suspension applies only to swine flu, not to any other immunization program.

"Let me assure the American public," Cooper told that hearing, "there's no evidence of any kind to challenge the reliability, safety and importance of any of the other immunization programs."

Blamphin also described Hong Kong flu shots as "an inconsequential part of influenza immunizations."

The Type B-Hong Kong strain of flu virus is less virulent than swine flu and Type A strains but still represents a threat to older and ill persons.

Public health investigators say they have not yet established any link between Guillain-Barre syndrome and any of the flu shots.

disappointed" by Palmatier's decision.

"I PERSONALLY would have preferred if he had gone through the caucus process again, especially in view of his long association with the caucus and its selection process. I'm sure he must have thought through the matter very carefully before making his decision; nevertheless, I disagree with it and am disappointed," Woods said.

Jack Walsh, another former village president who was elected as a caucus candidate, said Wednesday the caucus' troubles were brewing three years ago when he resigned and moved to Lake Geneva, Wis.

"The need for a revamping of the system was being discussed at that time, so these new problems don't come as that great of a surprise to me," he said.

Woods said it's too soon to tell what effect Palmatier and Barboro's decision to run as independents will have on the caucus. Lester Ploetz, also an organizer of the caucus in 1956 and a current member of its executive committee, said it will not have a damaging effect on the caucus. And Russell Colvin, another long-time supporter of the caucus and a former trustee, said the damage already has been done.

Clarbour may run

Former Village Pres. Ralph Clarbour announced Wednesday he is considering seeking a position on the village board in April's village election, but will not seek endorsement from the Arlington Heights Caucus.

Clarbour, 45, said he has not decided whether he will run against Villageg Pres. James T. Ryan or seek one of four trustee posts.

Clarbour said he has decided definitely not to go through the caucus' candidate selection process.

In 1975, Clarbour and Frank Palmatier were recommended by the caucus' candidate recommendation committee to run for village president, but at a public meeting Trustee David Griffin was elected to head the caucus slate.

"BUT I THINK the damaging effect has come from The Herald," Colvin said. "The Herald killed the caucus. In the last two or three elections The Herald came out strongly against the caucus and killed it."

Mrs. Schroeder, however, blamed the caucus' problems on resistance to needed changes in the caucus' bylaws.

"It's difficult to get them to realize the bylaws need to be changed. There's a kind of contentment that settles in. If the people or The Herald don't understand the caucus process, then the caucus isn't doing its job," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder also said she does not foresee the Palmatier-Barboro decision doing great damage to the caucus.

"I think the damage was done long ago. This is a result of that damage, rather than causing the damage," she said.

Palamatier said he is confident the caucus will survive without him.

"I HAVE EVERY reason to believe they'll put out a full slate of candidates. Time will tell how they'll do in the election, but I think they're far from being dead at the present time," he said.

Woods, however, admitted the caucus may be in trouble.

"I certainly would have to say the caucus has lost some support, however, I feel the major problem is the lack of adequate communication with the newer residents of the community as to the exact nature and purpose of the caucus," Woods said.

"Its purpose is a very limited one; that is, to assure that at least one well-qualified slate is presented to the voters. I think the caucus welcomes competition. To me it isn't any sort of disaster if caucus candidates don't win consistently. The sole purpose is that people have a choice," he said.

ISRAELI TROOPS patrol Manger Square in front of the Church of Nativity in Bethlehem Wednesday during final preparations for Christmas celebrations . . . the eighth since Israel occupied the West Bank of Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war.

Immediate probe of massacre urged

Black nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo Wednesday demanded an international inquiry into the massacre Sunday of 27 black plantation workers, saying the killers could be mercenaries. The white Rhodesian government responded that it also "would welcome an immediate, on-the-spot investigation by the British or American governments into the Honde Valley Tea Estate massacre."

Nkomo called the slayings "ghastly" and said he doubted whether regular Rhodesian forces would commit such an atrocity. "The important thing is to discover who exactly killed these people. You are told something, I am told something, and that is all we know. We don't know who killed them," Nkomo said. "Only an independent international inquiry can get at the facts. It must be done, and quickly."

Rhodesia plan over hurdle

Sir Ivor Richard, chairman of the Geneva Rhodesia conference, said Wednesday he has gotten general approval in Washington of a proposal for a British presence in Rhodesia, and he will now seek the agreement of the black and white parties in Africa. Richard told a news conference that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger "expressed support" for a set of proposals, which, in effect, replace Kissinger's five-point plan that got the Geneva conference started.

The conference has stalled over several key points in the Kissinger proposals, including control of the ministries of Defense and Law and Order during the period of interim government in Rhodesia. Richard said he also received statements of support for the British direct presence from several important congressional voices on Africa.

Israel eyes election date

Leaders of Israel's ruling Labor party met Wednesday with representatives of other factions in parliament to set a date for general elections following Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's surprise resignation. Political sources said opposition leader Menachem Begin was still trying to gather enough votes to win a mandate to head a caretaker government until the voting for a new parliament expected in mid-May.

But Defense minister Shimon Peres made clear in unofficial contacts that he had no intention of splitting from Labor and taking his supporters along to join such a nationalist-rightist coalition. Former Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said he had no such contacts with Begin or his lieutenants and would pull out of the Labor party only if it decided to negotiate unacceptable withdrawals from occupied territory on the West Bank of Jordan.

Hijacker surrenders to pals

A mentally disturbed airline mechanic surrendered to two friends Wednesday morning, 14½ hours after he took two hostages and tried unsuccessfully to hijack a United Air Lines DC8 jet. One of the hostages was slashed several times with a four-inch knife by the hijacker, Palm J. Hinnant, 37, who also carried two guns. But the hostage, Richard Funk, 38, Hinnant's boss at the United maintenance base at San Francisco International Airport, was not seriously hurt.

"Because the knife was sharp, it didn't hurt much," Funk said, still shaking from the experience. "He didn't really want to hurt me. He was just trying to make his point." Hinnant had been on sick leave from his job since April, 1975, for mental reasons. His mother said he became mentally disturbed when his 3-year-old son died in a fire 13 years ago.

Olympic TV accord claimed

Satra, a Soviet-American trade corporation based in New York, confirmed Wednesday it had signed a "cooperation agreement" with the Soviet Olympic Committee for U.S. television rights to the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow. Although a Soviet spokesman said "the rights have not been sold to anyone" and his committee would continue negotiating with the three major U.S. television networks, Carl Longley Jr., Satra's Moscow representative, claimed the Soviets had provisionally awarded the rights to his firm.

Longley said the agreement involved a "flexible" price but refused to disclose the sums involved until approved by the International Olympic Committee. Network officials in New York, who had been negotiating for the television rights, refused to comment on Satra's claim.

Legion disease probe 'inept'

Congressional investigators have charged the Communicable Disease Center with "ineptitude and bungling" in the probe of the mysterious Legionnaire's disease, it was disclosed Wednesday. An interim report by a House consumer protection subcommittee said CDC, the federal health agency based in Atlanta, ignored too long the possibility that a toxic agent was the killer which claimed the lives of 29 persons who attended an American Legion convention in Philadelphia last August.

Led by Chairman John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., the subcommittee launched its own investigation and concluded that an unknown toxic substance was the cause. The interim report said: "Each avenue of exploration by the staff reflected CDC's ineptitude and bungling of their inquiry to detect the causative factor of the Philadelphia outbreak."

The investigators said it has been demonstrated "that the causal factor in the outbreak was of a toxic nature" and added "that CDC failed to implement a toxic substance investigation in a timely manner is indeed unfortunate."

Art dealer to face charges in murder of 300 Jews

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (UPI) — Dutch millionaire art dealer Pieter Menten, 78, arrived in Holland from Switzerland Wednesday accompanied by two detectives and a male nurse to face charges of complicity in the World War II murder of 300 Polish Jews.

The seven-member Swiss cabinet voted only hours earlier to expel Menten, a onetime Nazi SS officer in occupied Poland, and return him to Holland. Menten had been arrested in a small hotel outside Zurich on Dec. 6.

A Dutch Justice Ministry spokesman said the special plane carrying Menten, the detectives and nurse landed at Beek in southeastern Holland. He said Menten would be held in custody but would not say where he would be detained.

Menten had disappeared from his villa near Amsterdam on Nov. 15, one day before he was to be arrested by Dutch police.

Menten in 1951 served an eight-month prison term in Holland for collaboration with the Nazis in Poland in 1941 and 1942, when he had the rank of an SS officer.

Allegations against Menten in Holland claim he returned to his native country in 1943 with three railroad cars full of valuable furniture and paintings.

Hinnant had been on sick leave from his job since April, 1975, for mental reasons. His mother said he became mentally disturbed when his 3-year-old son died in a fire 13 years ago.

Olympic TV accord claimed

Satra, a Soviet-American trade corporation based in New York, confirmed Wednesday it had signed a "cooperation agreement" with the Soviet Olympic Committee for U.S. television rights to the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow. Although a Soviet spokesman said "the rights have not been sold to anyone" and his committee would continue negotiating with the three major U.S. television networks, Carl Longley Jr., Satra's Moscow representative, claimed the Soviets had provisionally awarded the rights to his firm.

Longley said the agreement involved a "flexible" price but refused to disclose the sums involved until approved by the International Olympic Committee. Network officials in New York, who had been negotiating for the television rights, refused to comment on Satra's claim.

Legion disease probe 'inept'

Congressional investigators have charged the Communicable Disease Center with "ineptitude and bungling" in the probe of the mysterious Legionnaire's disease, it was disclosed Wednesday. An interim report by a House consumer protection subcommittee said CDC, the federal health agency based in Atlanta, ignored too long the possibility that a toxic agent was the killer which claimed the lives of 29 persons who attended an American Legion convention in Philadelphia last August.

Led by Chairman John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., the subcommittee launched its own investigation and concluded that an unknown toxic substance was the cause. The interim report said: "Each avenue of exploration by the staff reflected CDC's ineptitude and bungling of their inquiry to detect the causative factor of the Philadelphia outbreak."

The investigators said it has been demonstrated "that the causal factor in the outbreak was of a toxic nature" and added "that CDC failed to implement a toxic substance investigation in a timely manner is indeed unfortunate."

Art dealer to face charges in murder of 300 Jews

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (UPI) — Dutch millionaire art dealer Pieter Menten, 78, arrived in Holland from Switzerland Wednesday accompanied by two detectives and a male nurse to face charges of complicity in the World War II murder of 300 Polish Jews.

The seven-member Swiss cabinet voted only hours earlier to expel Menten, a onetime Nazi SS officer in occupied Poland, and return him to Holland. Menten had been arrested in a small hotel outside Zurich on Dec. 6.

A Dutch Justice Ministry spokesman said the special plane carrying Menten, the detectives and nurse landed at Beek in southeastern Holland. He said Menten would be held in custody but would not say where he would be detained.

Menten had disappeared from his villa near Amsterdam on Nov. 15, one day before he was to be arrested by Dutch police.

Menten in 1951 served an eight-month prison term in Holland for collaboration with the Nazis in Poland in 1941 and 1942, when he had the rank of an SS officer.

Allegations against Menten in Holland claim he returned to his native country in 1943 with three railroad cars full of valuable furniture and paintings.

The very center of our faith and love is the Child in the manger. Every Service - every hymn - every prayer and every sermon has its center and its meaning in Jesus Christ, born for us in Bethlehem.

We invite you, your family and friends, to join us in this great celebration at the 11 pm Christmas Eve Candelight Service and the 10:30 a.m. Christmas Day Song Service.

Johnson aide to be named to HEW post

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter is expected to round out his Cabinet Thursday by announcing selection of Joseph Califano, a former Lyndon Johnson aide and confidant, as HEW secretary, sources close to the president-elect said Wednesday.

The sources said Carter also is likely to announce that former Defense Sec. James Schlesinger will head the Federal Energy Administration, and that former John Kennedy speech writer Theodore Sorenson is the almost certain choice for director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Carter also predicted Wednesday that the outcry against his appointment of GriffinBell as attorney general will be "short-lived," and that Bell will turn out to be a popular member of his cabinet.

THE PREDICTION was made on his return flight from Chicago where he attended the funeral of Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Announcement of the three newest members of Carter's team is expected at his 9 a.m. news conference Thursday in Plains.

Califano, 45, a native of Brooklyn, has had long experience in government and in Democratic party affairs. He was special assistant to Johnson for domestic affairs from 1965 to 1969, and previously was a special adviser to the Defense Dept. and to the Army.

Schlesinger, 47, was chairman of the old Atomic Energy Commission and director of CIA before President Nixon put him in charge of the Pentagon in 1973. President Ford fell into disagreement with Schlesinger and removed him from the job a year ago.

Sorenson, 48, was an assistant to John Kennedy in the Senate and accompanied him to the White House as special assistant and chief speech writer. He is the author of several books.

Price is nice, but walking away with clubs that are precisely suited to your own strength, build and playing style is what's really important. Clubs that are not exactly what you need may be a bargain, but they're not a value. Our Super Swift Artist has drawn three average golfers for you. You can't possibly believe that one particular set of clubs can fit all three players. Visit us for Golf Clubs and thru the use of the electronic swing recorder we will determine the optimum combination of shaft length, shaft flex, swing weight, grip size and composition, loft and lie, and set make up. (We offer over 20 different wood finishes.) All this at stock prices. A representative set of 4 woods (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7) and 9 irons (any combo) fitted as previously stated for $385.

For those who are happy with their current clubs, we also repair all types right here. Clubs with worn finishes can be affected by moisture absorption or drying out which will alter swing weight, delaminate, swell or shrink the wood itself. And the way we are set up you can watch safely as the work is being done. Do so and you'll be amazed at the talent recruited at Dahle's.

Bell resigns from private clubs

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Griffin Bell, Jimmy Carter's nominee as attorney general, announced Wednesday he will resign his membership in all private clubs, saying his new job needs to be "a symbol of equality."

Bell is Carter's most controversial appointee thus far. Civil rights groups have attacked his civil rights decisions as a federal judge, particularly an Atlanta desegregation case in which he called for busing only as a last resort.

One major criticism is that he belonged to private clubs which discriminate on the basis of race or religion, including the Piedmont Driving Club in Atlanta which has no blacks or Jews.

"WITH RESPECT TO my membership in private clubs, I believe that the attorney general is a symbol of equality before the law and therefore I should and will resign my membership in all private clubs to which I now belong," Bell said in a statement issued through Carter's office.

The statement was issued shortly after Carter delivered a strong defense of Bell, saying the controversy would be "short-lived" and that the former federal appeals court judge would turn out to be the most popular member of his Cabinet.

Carter also reiterated full confidence in Bell at his news conference in Plains Tuesday to announce additional appointees to his administration.

IN RESPONSE TO questions, the president-elect said he would not ask members of his Cabinet to get out of private clubs with exclusive membership, but that he hoped they would do so on their own.

"I've never not discussed it (with Bell)," he said. "Almost everyone in the past has belonged to some kind of club who doesn't have both women and blacks or Christians or Catholics or Protestants."

Carter said he had taken the position that he would not belong to such clubs but was not telling his Cabinet officers not to do so.

On the Air Force jet returning him from Mayor Richard Daley's funeral in Chicago, Carter told reporters he said he stood by the position that any such resignations would be voluntary.

ANOTHER CRITICISM of Bell was for his support for Judge G. Harrold Carswell as a nominee for the Supreme Court. President Richard Nixon's appointment of the federal judge from Florida was withdrawn in the face of a major attack in the Senate on his judicial and civil rights record.

Bell acknowledged in his statement that he was mistaken in his news conference with Carter in saying he wrote his recommendation of Carswell before he learned of a pro-segregation speech Carswell had made several years earlier.

"It appears that I wrote the letter on Jan. 26, 1970," Bell said. "According to news reports, this was several days after the account of his speech became public.

"Thereafter, and shortly before the vote in the Senate on confirmation, I joined a group of judges at the request of Judge Carswell in sending a telegram reiterating the recommendation of him.

"The letter of Jan. 26 as well as the letters of recommendation in prior years for other positions were written at the request of Judge Carswell, a law school classmate and friend."

civil rights workers a major procedural victory by opening federal courts to constitutional challenges against state picketing and assembly laws.

The Supreme Court reversed, but this time with the four most liberal members of the court dissenting in favor of Bell's opinion.

BELL ALSO WAS forthright in a 1965 decision striking down an oath demanded of all Georgia public school teachers barring instruction of any theory "inconsistent with the fundamental principles of patriotism and high ideals of Americanism." Bell said the oath was too vague, requiring teachers to guess what was acceptable and what was not.

The school desegregation cases were a mixed series of victories and defeats for the NAACP and black parents seeking more rapid desegregation of southern school districts. Bell generally granted blacks some additional relief on appeal, but like many of his fellow circuit judges, was hesitant to modify substantially district court decisions in the area.

Bell's trademark was caution, and by 1971 Burger complained that Bell's court gave "inadequate consideration" to use of busing and other remedies in Mobile where a Bell-approved plan left nine elementary schools segregated with 64 per cent of all Mobile area black students.

In the 1963 Atlanta case, Bell declined to modify a district court order permitting year-by-year school desegregation on a voluntary transfer basis beginning in the 12th grade.

Civil rights lawyers appealed, and in 1964 the Supreme Court vacated the order in light of new information. But the justices noted nearly a decade had passed since school desegregation was struck down, and suggested speedier action.

The way we see it

Open field for Daley replacement

The impact of Richard J. Daley's career, and the loss felt by many in his death, were reflected in the faces and in the number of those mourning him.

Important people, including President-elect Jimmy Carter, attended Daley's funeral, but not before an estimated 50,000 persons — many simple working people — crowded past his casket in the church that had also witnessed his baptism and marriage.

The full impact of Daley's death will be difficult to measure; there are many institutions linked to him, and his roles varied with each.

There are those who contend that all the political equations in Chicago, Cook County and Illinois will change with the passing of this legendary public figure.

If nothing else, public officials no longer will be able to mask their actions behind the excuse that Daley's will was at work as mayor of Chicago or chairman of the powerful Cook County Democratic organization.

In Chicago, the buses will continue to run and the streets will be cleaned, but there will be those who wonder how well and for how long.

If, as civic boosters claim, Chicago is the city that works, a substantial degree of credit must go to Daley. Even his harshest critics and political opponents muted their attacks long enough to offer praise.

The death of Daley opens for some the chance for more power, but does not seem to offer an opportunity for substantial change in the quality of life in Chicago.

Water needed by the suburbs to replace their dwindling underground supply will not flow more quickly from Lake Michigan through Chicago with Daley gone. Nor will the giant jets that rumble overhead operate more quietly.

Any scramble for power that lies ahead will take place without the moderating presence of Daley or the knowledge of how he would have preferred the transition to take place.

His death will remove, at least temporarily, the boogie man that some Republicans and independents found so easy a symbol to use. For the moment, there will be no big city boss to blame.

The future form of government and politics in this region will undergo change, and while the horizon holds no image of a Daley-like boss to take charge, time will be the only real indicator of how dramatically and perceptibly things will change with the passing of Mayor Daley.

Ryan takes lead in taxi service improvement

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan has taken the leadership in trying to improve taxi service to village residents.

Ryan has said he will revoke the license of the Arlington City Cab Co. if service does not improve by February. He and members of the village staff have asked the head of the cab company to submit suggestions for improving service.

The problem with Northwest suburban cab service was clearly pointed out last month. A Herald survey found that persons who call cabs face waits ranging from five minutes to 1 hour 15 minutes in Arlington Heights. Similarly erratic service was discovered in other communities.

We hope Ryan's threat to revoke the cab company's license does not have to be carried out. Instead, we hope the company, with the help of village officials, will find a way to overcome the problems which now plague the service.

However, we agree with Ryan's statement, "I think the village and residents have an absolute right to expect good service. Any licensee is expected to handle himself in a fashion that's acceptable to the community."

Reader is pleased with taxi service; says courtesy needed on both sides

In response to The Herald's front page story on Nov. 29, regarding taxi service, and the following rebuttal to comments made in that article by Mrs. Hutchins, it appears that humans never will be considerate of other human beings. Why do people have to feel that taxpaying corporations, who deal with the general public, have to be their "servants" at a time convenient to "their" schedule?

If it is important and proper to make an appointment with a doctor or hairdresser in advance, who also serve the "general public," why shouldn't one's method of transportation also be included in this elite group?

I have yet to have any taxi company turn my "fare" down, by my making an appointment in advance, to make sure I arrive at other appointments on time. This in particular applies to one company mentioned in The Herald article of Nov. 29, the T & D Cab Service. In fact, my courtesy to them has resulted in their many times having their driver arriving 15 minutes in advance, just to make sure we don't run into any unexpected events. It goes to show that if individuals like to be shown courtesy and respect from taxi drivers, they should give it in return.

By the way, in case the lady might want to try my taxi service, ask for driver Bob Ollen. He usually drives in Cab 76, but let me give some advice: Make an appointment in advance — he will probably be helping one of his many satisified clients!

You're welcome, glad we could help

This year's congressional election had all kinds of attention paid to it — afterwards as well as during the campaign. The excellent coverage provided by your paper was in the best tradition of objective, competitive journalism. Thanks to the consistently high caliber writing and analysis of The Herald staff, 10th District residents were better informed on the issues — and the candidates — than ever before.

Perhaps at no other time is political reporting more important and more carefully scrutinized than during the election season — and especially during a close race. You have my respect for doing a difficult job with fairness and thoroughness.

Some Lampoon facts 'in the dark'

Pat Gerlach's article "Is the Lampoon for children?" was interesting, but mention of its happening during a recent power failure would have been helpful. Under these strains the usually friendly, helpful, interested desk staff was anxious to clear the library and the teachers were not able to carefully monitor their students' materials. The National Lampoon, a humor and satire magazine, was discovered in the humor section of the library. The rest is a comedy of errors which would not occur under normal conditions.

Most people find the staff of Schaumburg Township Public Library both concerned and aware of the information needs of the community. The library policies have always encouraged people to recommend materials for purchase, make general suggestions in the suggestion box and fill in special forms when bringing objections to library policy before the library board.

Thank heavens the Schaumburg Township Public Library doesn't feel that they should interfere with family and school material selection. Parents and teachers bringing children to the public library should guide them in their selections. How sad it would be to limit children to the materials in the youth section when other materials on their interests and on their ability levels might be provided in the adult section. Guidance is the key to full use of our fine community library.

Marijuana reform: On the horizon?

by DAVIE E. ANDERSON
A Commentary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unlike the 1972 presidential campaign, the issue of the reform of marijuana laws was not a big issue in the recent campaign, nor, like the issue of amnesty, is it one the new administration is expected to give a high priority.

But advocates of marijuana law reform — reform aimed at loosening the criminal penalties surrounding the private use of pot — believe they now have the ammunition to force a major change in the way marijuana is treated by the federal government.

Under current federal law, marijuana is classified as a "schedule one" dangerous drug with no known medical use and, like heroin, is a prohibited substance.

The ammunition came in the form of a court decision in the District of Columbia where Robert Randall, a 28-year-old speech teacher, was acquitted on charges of possession of marijuana on the grounds that he had a medical and therefore legal necessity for the drug.

"The Randall case is the convincing piece of evidence that will force a reclassification of marijuana," says Keith Stroup, director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws.

NORML has been in the courts since 1972 arguing that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare should hold reclassification hearings. In early December they argued their case once again between the U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington using the Randall precedent, and Stroup was confident the court would direct the hearings be held.

Randall, buttressed by medical testimony, argued that he suffers from glaucoma — an eye disease that inevitably results in blindness — but that smoking marijuana successfully retarded the advancement of the disease.

"There will be a serious effort to force the reclassification of marijuana this year," Stroup said, "either through administrative action, with the Drug Enforcement Administration acting, or through a congressional amendment if the DEA drags its feet too long."

In reclassification, the reform advocates would like marijuana set as a schedule five drug — the equivalent of over-the-counter cough syrups — but would be happy with even a slightly tougher reclassification which would make the drug available by prescription for therapeutic use.

"Equally important," says Stroup, "the issue of imagery has now been decided in our favor. People are awakened to the fact that marijuana is not the degenerative drug the propaganda has always said but that it may be a helpful drug."

He said there would be decriminalization legislation introduced in some 30-34 states after the first of the year and that Randall would be testifying in many of them. Eight states already have decriminalization laws which remove criminal penalties for possession of small amounts of marijuana for private use.

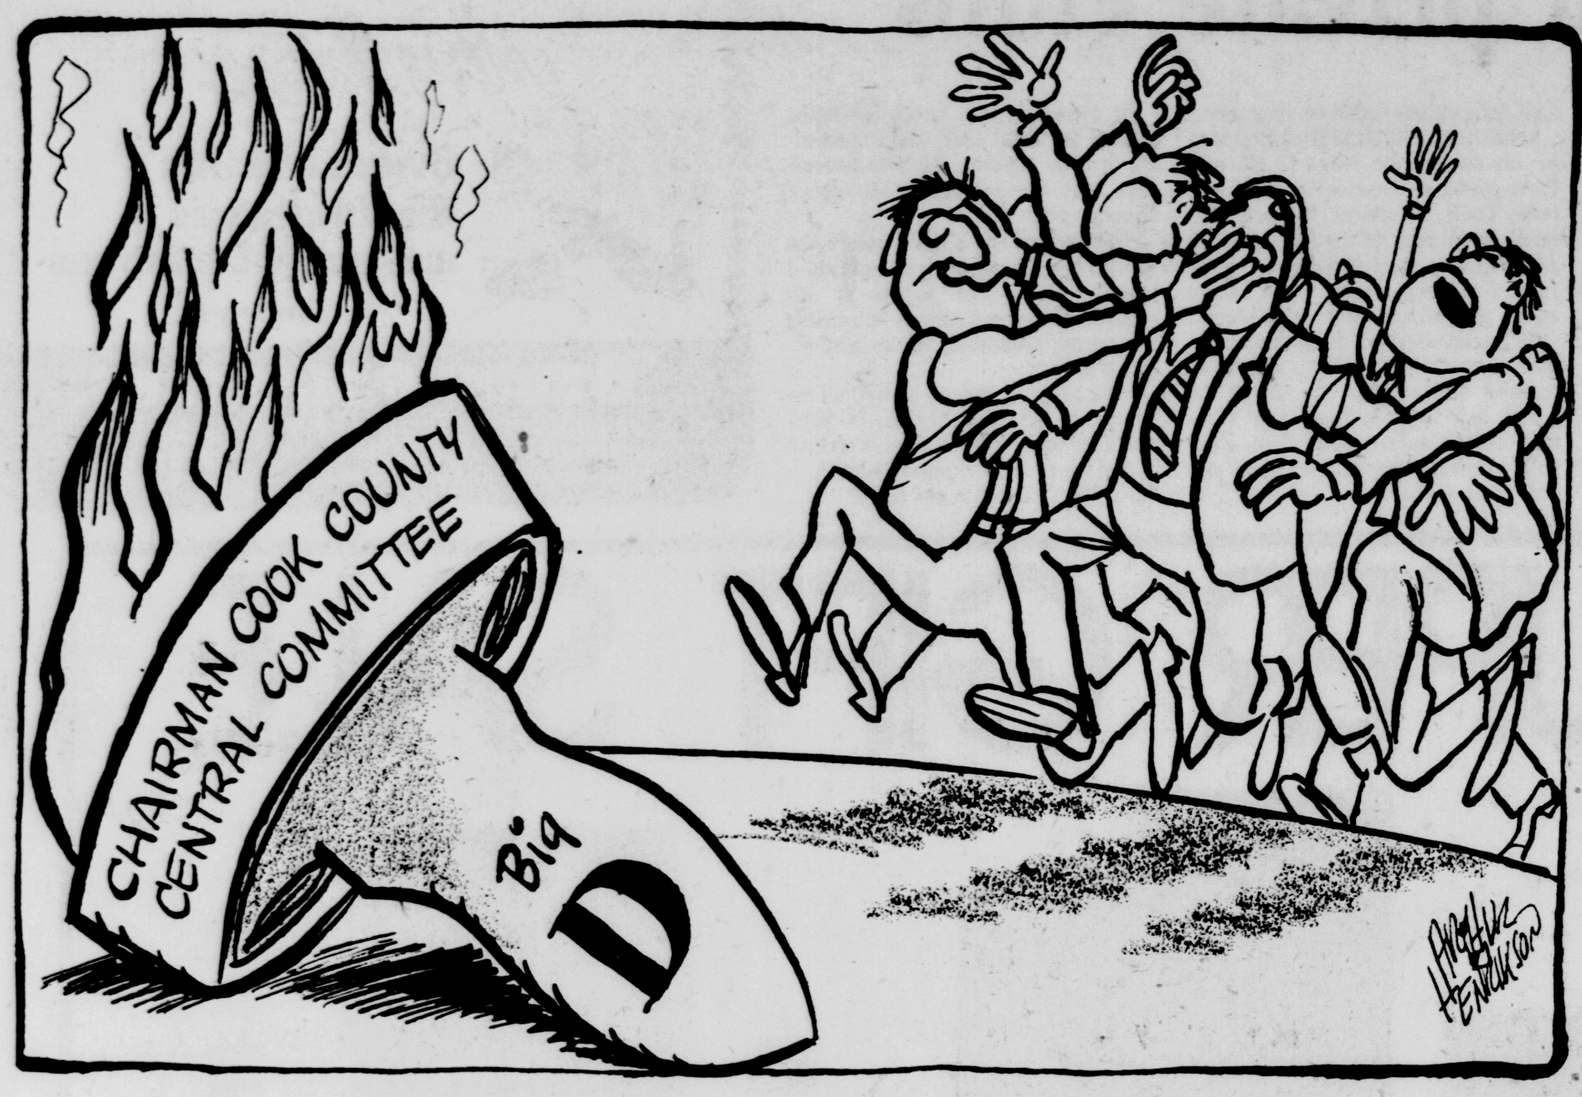
"It will be difficult for a legislator to keep sending young people to jail for doing the same thing Randall does legally," he said.

NORML has also been in touch with the President-elect Jimmy Carter's transition team, reminding them of Carter's campaign position favoring decriminalization and urging "that the Carter administration assume a leadership role in decriminalizing minor marijuana offenses under federal law."

While Stroup is confident that perhaps as many as half the states will have decriminalized marijuana by the 1978 elections, he said "many states will not change their marijuana laws so long as the federal . . . law remains as a model."

"We are asking for an amendment to the federal law to remove marijuana smokers from the jurisdiction of the federal law altogether," he said.

Whether Carter acts or not, NORML is confident that the turning point in marijuana reform has been reached and it's basically all down hill from here.



C'mon you guys! Let's keep this mad rush orderly!

The way we see it

Open field for Daley replacement

The impact of Richard J. Daley's career, and the loss felt by many in his death, were reflected in the faces and in the number of those mourning him.

Important people, including President-elect Jimmy Carter, attended Daley's funeral, but not before an estimated 50,000 persons — many simple working people — crowded past his casket in the church that had also witnessed his baptism and marriage.

The full impact of Daley's death will be difficult to measure; there are many institutions linked to him, and his roles varied with each.

There are those who contend that all the political equations in Chicago, Cook County and Illinois will change with the passing of this legendary public figure.

If nothing else, public officials no longer will be able to mask their actions behind the excuse that Daley's will was at work as mayor of Chicago or chairman of the powerful Cook County Democratic organization.

In Chicago, the buses will continue to run and the streets will be cleaned, but there will be those who wonder how well and for how long.

If, as civic boosters claim, Chicago is the city that works, a substantial degree of credit must go to Daley. Even his harshest critics and political opponents muted their attacks long enough to offer praise.

The death of Daley opens for some the chance for more power, but does not seem to offer an opportunity for substantial change in the quality of life in Chicago.

Water needed by the suburbs to replace their dwindling underground supply will not flow more quickly from Lake Michigan through Chicago with Daley gone. Nor will the giant jets that rumble overhead operate more quietly.

Any scramble for power that lies ahead will take place without the moderating presence of Daley or the knowledge of how he would have preferred the transition to take place.

His death will remove, at least temporarily, the boogie man that some Republicans and independents found so easy a symbol to use. For the moment, there will be no big city boss to blame.

The future form of government and politics in this region will undergo change, and while the horizon holds no image of a Daley-like boss to take charge, time will be the only real indicator of how dramatically and perceptibly things will change with the passing of Mayor Daley.

Ryan takes lead in taxi service improvement

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan has taken the leadership in trying to improve taxi service to village residents.

Ryan has said he will revoke the license of the Arlington City Cab Co. if service does not improve by February. He and members of the village staff have asked the head of the cab company to submit suggestions for improving service.

The problem with Northwest suburban cab service was clearly pointed out last month. A Herald survey found that persons who call cabs face waits ranging from five minutes to 1 hour 15 minutes in Arlington Heights. Similarly erratic service was discovered in other communities.

We hope Ryan's threat to revoke the cab company's license does not have to be carried out. Instead, we hope the company, with the help of village officials, will find a way to overcome the problems which now plague the service.

However, we agree with Ryan's statement, "I think the village and residents have an absolute right to expect good service. Any licensee is expected to handle himself in a fashion that's acceptable to the community."

Reader is pleased with taxi service; says courtesy needed on both sides

In response to The Herald's front page story on Nov. 29, regarding taxi service, and the following rebuttal to comments made in that article by Mrs. Hutchins, it appears that humans never will be considerate of other human beings. Why do people have to feel that taxpaying corporations, who deal with the general public, have to be their "servants" at a time convenient to "their" schedule?

If it is important and proper to make an appointment with a doctor or hairdresser in advance, who also serve the "general public," why shouldn't one's method of transportation also be included in this elite group?

I have yet to have any taxi company turn my "fare" down, by my making an appointment in advance, to make sure I arrive at other appointments on time. This in particular applies to one company mentioned in The Herald article of Nov. 29, the T & D Cab Service. In fact, my courtesy to them has resulted in their many times having their driver arriving 15 minutes in advance, just to make sure we don't run into any unexpected events. It goes to show that if individuals like to be shown courtesy and respect from taxi drivers, they should give it in return.

By the way, in case the lady might want to try my taxi service, ask for driver Bob Ollen. He usually drives in Cab 76, but let me give some advice: Make an appointment in advance — he will probably be helping one of his many satisified clients!

You're welcome, glad we could help

This year's congressional election had all kinds of attention paid to it — afterwards as well as during the campaign. The excellent coverage provided by your paper was in the best tradition of objective, competitive journalism. Thanks to the consistently high caliber writing and analysis of The Herald staff, 10th District residents were better informed on the issues — and the candidates — than ever before.

Perhaps at no other time is political reporting more important and more carefully scrutinized than during the election season — and especially during a close race. You have my respect for doing a difficult job with fairness and thoroughness.

Some Lampoon facts 'in the dark'

Pat Gerlach's article "Is the Lampoon for children?" was interesting, but mention of its happening during a recent power failure would have been helpful. Under these strains the usually friendly, helpful, interested desk staff was anxious to clear the library and the teachers were not able to carefully monitor their students' materials. The National Lampoon, a humor and satire magazine, was discovered in the humor section of the library. The rest is a comedy of errors which would not occur under normal conditions.

Most people find the staff of Schaumburg Township Public Library both concerned and aware of the information needs of the community. The library policies have always encouraged people to recommend materials for purchase, make general suggestions in the suggestion box and fill in special forms when bringing objections to library policy before the library board.

Thank heavens the Schaumburg Township Public Library doesn't feel that they should interfere with family and school material selection. Parents and teachers bringing children to the public library should guide them in their selections. How sad it would be to limit children to the materials in the youth section when other materials on their interests and on their ability levels might be provided in the adult section. Guidance is the key to full use of our fine community library.

Marijuana reform: On the horizon?

A Commentary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unlike the 1972 presidential campaign, the issue of the reform of marijuana laws was not a big issue in the recent campaign, nor, like the issue of amnesty, is it one the new administration is expected to give a high priority.

But advocates of marijuana law reform — reform aimed at loosening the criminal penalties surrounding the private use of pot — believe they now have the ammunition to force a major change in the way marijuana is treated by the federal government.

Under current federal law, marijuana is classified as a "schedule one" dangerous drug with no known medical use and, like heroin, is a prohibited substance.

The ammunition came in the form of a court decision in the District of Columbia where Robert Randall, a 28-year-old speech teacher, was acquitted on charges of possession of marijuana on the grounds that he had a medical and therefore legal necessity for the drug.

"The Randall case is the convincing piece of evidence that will force a reclassification of marijuana," says Keith Stroup, director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws.

NORML has been in the courts since 1972 arguing that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare should hold reclassification hearings. In early December they argued their case once again between the U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington using the Randall precedent, and Stroup was confident the court would direct the hearings be held.

Randall, buttressed by medical testimony, argued that he suffers from glaucoma — an eye disease that inevitably results in blindness — but that smoking marijuana successfully retarded the advancement of the disease.

"There will be a serious effort to force the reclassification of marijuana this year," Stroup said, "either through administrative action, with the Drug Enforcement Administration acting, or through a congressional amendment if the DEA drags its feet too long."

In reclassification, the reform advocates would like marijuana set as a schedule five drug — the equivalent of over-the-counter cough syrups — but would be happy with even a slightly tougher reclassification which would make the drug available by prescription for therapeutic use.

"Equally important," says Stroup, "the issue of imagery has now been decided in our favor. People are awakened to the fact that marijuana is not the degenerative drug the propaganda has always said but that it may be a helpful drug."

He said there would be decriminalization legislation introduced in some 30-34 states after the first of the year and that Randall would be testifying in many of them. Eight states already have decriminalization laws which remove criminal penalties for possession of small amounts of marijuana for private use.

"It will be difficult for a legislator to keep sending young people to jail for doing the same thing Randall does legally," he said.

NORML has also been in touch with the President-elect Jimmy Carter's transition team, reminding them of Carter's campaign position favoring decriminalization and urging "that the Carter administration assume a leadership role in decriminalizing minor marijuana offenses under federal law."

While Stroup is confident that perhaps as many as half the states will have decriminalized marijuana by the 1978 elections, he said "many states will not change their marijuana laws so long as the federal . . . law remains as a model."

"We are asking for an amendment to the federal law to remove marijuana smokers from the jurisdiction of the federal law altogether," he said.

Whether Carter acts or not, NORML is confident that the turning point in marijuana reform has been reached and it's basically all down hill from here.

Folger's coffee hiked another 20c

Folger Coffee Co., the nation's second largest coffee wholesaler, Wednesday boosted ground coffee prices another 20 cents to a record $3.08 a pound and instant coffee by 3 cents an ounce, effective immediately. The Folger announcement came two days after General Foods Corp., the biggest processor in the United States, raised ground coffee prices by 20 cents to $2.91 a pound. The General Foods' action, which takes effect Jan. 3, also will boost the price of instant brands by 3 to 4 cents an ounce and freeze-dried brands by 5 to 7 cents an ounce. The latest price move by Folger, a division of Procter & Gamble, makes its wholesale list price for ground coffee at $3.08 a pound, the highest for any major U.S. processor.

$225 million given for minitrains

The Transportation Dept. Wednesday awarded $225 million to Cleveland, Houston, Los Angeles and St. Paul, Minn., to build "people movers" — minitrains that will carry shoppers and businessmen between stores and offices. People movers — in use at amusement parks and some airports — consist of an automated string of cars running on a pathway that connects stores, theaters and other buildings. They arrive no longer than 45 seconds apart. The passenger steps on board, the car — something like a small bus — moves to the next point, and the passenger alights where desired.

Transportation Sec. William E. Coleman Jr. said 11 cities were finalists in the competition for federal financing of the people mover projects.

Uncle Ben's rice to drop TV ad

The makers of Uncle Ben's rice will drop a television commercial the Federal Trade Commission said might have lured children into hovering dangerously near pots or pans of hot food, it was announced. The commercial, aired late last year and early this year, showed a 4-year-old girl whose mother was cooking rice.

Farmers cut 1977 wheat crop

Farmers facing a mounting surplus of wheat after record harvests in 1976 and 1975 have cut plantings of 1977 winter wheat by 3 per cent and the crop may fall 8 per cent below this year's level, the Agriculture Dept. Wednesday said. The government's first report on 1977 winter wheat prospects warned that moisture supplies in the Great Plains, which produces most of the winter wheat crop, were low.

The prospective cutback in production, however, did not threaten any wheat shortage for consumers.

Dow higher amid profit taking

NEW YORK (UPI) — Glamor stocks, showing early strength amid tax trading manuevers and portfolio adjustments, sent prices higher Wednesday in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Profit taking shaved gains, however.

The Dow Jones industrial average, ahead more than 10 points in the early afternoon, finished with a gain of 6.15 to 984.54. It climbed 5.98 points Tuesday, snapping a three-session losing streak that cost it more than 11 points in profit taking.

The NYSE common stock index rose 0.27 to 56.44 and the average price of a common share increased by 17 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.49 to 104.71.

Advances topped declines, 974 to 503, among the 1,929 issues crossing the tape.

VOLUME TOTALED 26,970,000 shares, compared with 24,390,000 traded Tuesday.

Tax manuevers influenced the market throughout the day, analysts said, because it was the last day investors could take profits to qualify for capital gains breaks.

At the same time, however, institutions appeared to be reinvesting in glamors, continuing a buying spree that began late Tuesday. More than one analyst said investors, aware the market had rallied in January 1976 and 1975, were taking positions because they didn't want to be left out again in 1977.

Among the glamors, Coca-Cola climbed 2½ to 77¼, PepsiCo 1¾ to 77¼, MCA Corp. 1 3/8 to 39-1/8, Burroughs 1-3/8 to 88-5/8, Fairchild Camera 1¼ to 40¾ and Walt Disney 1 to 47¾. However, Technicare, an institutional favorite earlier this year, plunged 4½ to 35.

SEVERAL OILS generally were higher, particularly those with interests in the Alaska pipeline. Ohio Standard gained 2½ to 78½ and Atlantic Richfield ¾ to 58-5/8.

Occidental Petroleum, which has been recommended by a number of analysts because of its North Sea holding, was the third most active big-board issue, gaining ½ to 24-1/8 on 284,600 shares.

A. B. Dick led the big board active list, unchanged at 7¾ on 346,200 shares, including a block of 328,400 shares at 7-3/8. Southern Co., which reported lower 11-month earnings, followed, up ¼ to 16-1/8 on 289,800 shares, including a block of 159,900 shares at 16.

Prices registered a sharp gain in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The averagt price of an Amex share increased 10 cents. Volume totaled 3,170,000 shares, up from the 2,980,000 traded Tuesday.

Ward's credit policy criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the first such action under a new law, the Federal Trade Commission Wednesday accused Montgomery Ward and Co. of failing to tell unsuccessful credit applicants why they were turned down.

The company refuses to give credit to 600,000 persons every year, one FTC official said.

When persons ask why their applications were rejected, they are told the company uses a point scoring system and they did not have enough points to qualify for credit. No specific reasons — such as bad debts in the past or questionable credit ratings — are given, the agency said.

The FTC said Wednesday's action is the first taken under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, which went into effect Oct. 28, 1975.

THE ACT FORBIDS discrimination by creditors such as banks, finance companies, department stores and firms that issue credit cards on the basis of sex or marital status. Controversial amendments to the act earlier this year require a company turning down a credit applicant to state the specific reasons — not just give generalities.

The FTC complaint said Montgomery Ward tells applicants it "uses a 'credit risk evaluation system' that assigns points to various items appearing on the credit application.

"The (company) further states that the applicant's total point score failed to meet the . . . minimum required point level, and, for this reason, the applicant's request for credit was rejected."

In addition to seeking a cease and desist order to halt the allegedly illegal practice, the complaint would require the company to tell rejected applicants the four specific parts of its point formula that most significantly determined the reason they were turned down.

Health-care cost controls urged by wage, price panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The President's Council on Wage and Price Stability said Wednesday unless business and labor put controls on health-care costs, the price tag will continue to increase far faster than other factors in the general economy.

The council reported on a year's investigation that included extensive public hearings into ways of controlling medical costs. It concluded that doctors, hospitals and the federal government are not going to control costs because there is not enough incentive to do so.

In view of the experience so far with Medicaid and Medicare, a federal takeover of health care would bring medical costs of "truly astronomical proportions," the council said.

WILLIAM LILLEY III, acting council director, told reporters, "Simple answers are doomed to failure. The inflationary problems of the health-care industry must be dealt with on their own terms."

The council said health-care costs have been going up at nearly twice the rate of the consumer price index.

"Unless and until cost-control incentives are introduced which will exert discipline on the providers and consumers of health care, we can expect only a continuation of the present cost spiral," the report said.

"Cost-control incentives proposed by the private sector — that is, by industry and labor — promise to be more effective than those imposed by the multitude of government agencies which have attempted to tackle the problem.

". . .A federal takeover would result in national expenditures of truly astronomical proportions."

Examples cited by the council of effective controls by industry and labor include forms of self-insurance, forms of health maintenance organizations and areawide health systems agencies.

A separate report by the Social Security Administration said Wednesday personal health-care spending last year increased by $17 billion over the previous year to a total of $139.3 billion.

CBers get gift as FCC ends license fees

From Herald news services

If a Citizen's Band radio appears under the Christmas tree this year, wait until Jan. 1 to send in the license application and you can save the $4 fee.

The Federal Communications Commission Wednesday suspended the fees it collects from everyone who needs an FCC license, including the 7.4 million CB radio operators.

As of Jan. 1, applicants need not pay the $4 license fee, and the roughly 10,000 radio and television stations and thousands of other licensees will not have to pay fees that range from $2 for a radiotelephone license to $77,500 to operate a television station in a top market.

THE ACTION came in response to a U.S. Court of Appeals decision last week that the fee structure, first imposed in 1970 and revised last year, was improper because it was not based on the actual cost of processing applications and did not fairly reflect benefits the user derives from having the license.

"The FCC determined that the appropriate immediate response to these decisions would be to suspend any further collection of fees and to make a study of the legal and administrative implications of refunding fees in order to determine the extent and nature of any refunds that might be necessary," the commission said.

FCC financial management chief Thomas Campbell said more than $155 million has been collected since 1970.

Congress had directed the commission to collect an amount each year equal to its appropriation, which currently is more than $50 million a year.

CAMPBELL SAID whether the fees are reinstituted is a matter for Congress to decide. "No decision, categorically, has been made on the refund program," Campbell said. "We don't know how much, we don't know when, we don't know who will get them."

One official said the fees were "arbitrary figures" arrived at by determining how many license applications there were and dividing that figure into the agency's appropriation to come up with individual fees.

"It costs us, very frankly, somewhere less than a dollar to process a CB application," he said. "But we charge four. Until about two years ago we were charging 20. But we were getting too much money so we cut it back."

Germ warfare tests conducted in U.S. subways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army said Wednesday it conducted germ warfare tests in New York subways, the Pentagon and six other American cities and regions between 1950 and 1966 using "nondisease-causing biological substances."

But an Army spokesman disputed a newspaper report that the tests may have cased minor epidemics of pneumonia and a rare heart valve infection. He said the full reports of the experiments were kept in vaults in Utah and no complete statement could be made until they were studied.

"This happened up to 25 years ago," the spokesman said. The Long Island, N.Y. newspaper Newsday said there was evidence linking some outbreaks of disease to the tests.

THE TESTS ended in 1969 following a White House ban on offensive biological warfare and stockpiling.

"The biological substances involved in the tests were used as simulants for training and field evaluation to determine vulnerability to enemy biological attack and adequacy of defense measures," the Army said.

"The substances were routinely used at the Chemical Corps School for training students on biological sampling and analysis procedures."

The substances in the tests included bacillus globigii, serratia marcescene and aspergillus fumigatus.

BACILLUS GLOBIGII and serratia marcescene were described as "present throughout the environment and . . . considered not to cause disease."

"However, for some individuals who lack a capability to develop immunity to most diseases serratia marcescene could conceivably act as an opportunist and produce an infection," the statement said.

Serratia marcescene was used in tests in 1950 in the San Francisco Bay area. The statement said it was not believed to have any connection with an outbreak there from 1969 to 1974 of serratia marcescene endocarditis, a rare heart valve disease.

Nineteen cases of the disease were discovered in the bay area, 17 of them involving drug addicts and 14 of them fatal.

COL. IGNACIO Hernandez-Fragoso of the Army Medical Corps wrote to the San Francisco General Hospital last year, "There is no way that presently found organisms can be related to the trials. Our data indicates that these organisms decayed at an extensively rapid rate and that none remained after 24 hours."

The spokesman dismissed any connection between a doubling in the number of pneumonia cases in the Ft. McClellan, Ala., area and the Key West, Fla., area in the year following 1952 germ warfare tests there.

In a simulated test in the New York subway in 1966, a harmless substance was said to have been dropped on the tracks from a moving train and its progress through the tunnels traced by experts.

A simulated contamination of the drinking water supply in the Pentagon and air conditioners of several government buildings in Washington was carried out in 1950 to test the buildings' vulnerability.

Other tests the Army said were made at a U.S. Navy installation at Mechanicsburg, Pa., in 1951; at Panama City, Fla., in 1953; and at Point Mugu and Fort Hueneme, Calif. in 1954.

Christmas spirit

They show it at work

by BARBARA LADD

Jolly Santas and Scrooge-type moneymongers are not the only persons who choose to work on the Christmas holidays, despite what many folks may think.

Just take a trip to the hospital.

Several employes, from receptionists to doctors, wanted to work this Christmas at Northwest Community Hospital.

But why?

"Part of the reason is my bad memory," laughed Dr. Tom Longabaugh, as he threaded his way past some patients. "I figure someone has to be here. And every time the holiday schedule goes up, I see a blank space on Christmas and forget that I worked the year before."

He didn't forget this year, although he has worked the past seven Christmas days. His family talked him into taking his vacation during Christmas week.

"I GUESS MY wife resented my always working on that day," Longabaugh admitted.

But up on the surgical ward there was a different story.

Bev Garchie, Schaumburg, has worked the past 10 Christmases nursing patients who were too sick to go home. This year is no exception.

"I enjoy being here on Christmas," she explained over a cup of coffee. "My husband and I have no children and I think it's more important that others be with their youngsters."

Besides, she added, her Christmas day stint in the hospital has become traditional in their household. "My husband comes to the hospital at noon to eat with me," she said. "He accepts the fact that I work on Christmas."

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT also comes into play, Bev said.

"For some here it's their last Christmas. They appreciate the fact that someone is with them. We try to cheer patients up and make the day as pleasant as possible. And isn't that what Christmas is all about?"

But back in the emergency ward, Christmas is not just cheering up people. It's also Hong Kong flu and drunks, according to nurse Pat Riggs, Hoffman Estates.

She jokes that she has worked for 13 Christmas Eves because "I like to see the Santa Claus and his green elf." (The Rolling Meadows Jaycees have been playing Santa at Northwest Community for years.)

ACTUALLY Pat works on Christmas Eve because she likes to, she said.

But the emergency room is different from the rest of the hospital on Christmas Eve, she said. Several years ago, when an epidemic of Hong Kong flu hit the Northwest suburbs, the ward was flooded with feverish persons who wanted a miracle cure so they could enjoy Christmas, Pat laughed. "But usually the people who come in have a serious problem."

Regardless of how Pat's night in the emergency room goes, it's traditional for her to catch the midnight service at her church afterwards. This year, she said proudly, her daughter is also working in the hospital on Christmas Eve and they've already planned to attend church together.

ALTHOUGH PAT and her daughter go to church after work because it enhances their Christmas, some persons work holidays because they don't recognize Dec. 25 as a holiday.

Larry Johnson, a respiratory therapist, says Christmas is just like any other day for him and his family because as Jehovah Witnesses followers, they don't attach any special meaning to the day. (Their religion, a puritan, Christian one, maintains that there is no factual basis for celebrating Dec. 25 as the date of Jesus' birth, he said.)

So the reasons for wanting to work on Christmas may vary. It depends upon individual beliefs, family traditions and good will. Most agreed it would be different if they were not working in a hospital — pumping gas or waiting tables would not be enjoyable for them on Christmas.

"CHRISTMAS IS a relationship with people," said the evening receptionist, Doris Collins, Mount Prospect. She has worked on the past four Christmas days. "It's caring and warmth. I have a much nicer feeling afterwards when I work."

"We're doing a service here, just like police and firemen," added Bev as she finished her coffee and headed back to the surgical floor. "It would be a sad world if everything shut down on Christmas."

CHEERING PATIENTS like Richard Barrett, Mount Prospect, has become a Christmas tradition for Bev Garchie. She has volunteered to work on Christmas Day for the past 10 years.

WORKING HOLIDAYS is cheerful business for Sally Bakkom, Arlington Heights. As a volunteer and now as a Northwest Community Hospital employe, she has helped run the non-denominational Christmas service in the hospital as well as write Christmas cards to all of the hospital's Christmastime patients.

Babies for sale

Attorneys reap a profit from private adoptions

by GEORGE FRANK and JOHN MOODY

An unwed California teenager, under pressure from doctors and lawyers, broke into tears and said, "All they want is my baby, what about me?"

They got Cathy's baby.

In New York City, Marcia, a former prostitute, told her lawyer she was pregnant again and wanted to sell the baby. The next day, the attorney had a buyer. It was the third baby Marcia had sold.

A UPI investigation into the murky world of private adoptions shows there are thousands of Cathys and Marcias who bypass traditional adoption agencies to place — and in many instances, sell for profit — their unwanted infants.

Dozens of lawyers and doctors in large and small cities are making money from these adoptions. Some are reaping huge profits and some are running afoul of the law.

EXPERTS IN the adoption field estimate 5,000 babies are sold for profit each year. Nationwide about 150,000 children of all ages are adopted annually through private and public means.

There are no federal statutes outlawing baby sales, and the laws of the 50 states are highly diverse. Loopholes abound, and enforcement is lax.

Often prosecutors, if they catch up with the baby-sellers at all, do so on technical violations.

Officials in some states are demanding tighter laws and stiffer penalties, and prosecutors are beginning to crack down. Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., has proposed federal legislation to regulate private placements.

IN NEW JERSEY, five lawyers and two other persons were charged with running a five-state baby ring. The Bergen County, N.J., prosecutor assigned an investigator full time to ferret out black market operators.

In Washington, D.C., where babies born out of wedlock outnumber babies born to married women, two lawyers and one doctor are charged with baby-selling.

Authorities in Los Angeles broke up what they called the seeds of a worldwide baby ring that, prosecutors charged, would have netted disbarred attorney Ronald Silverton $3.3 million in two years.

In an 18-month period, California health officials received 250 complaints of irregular placements by doctors and attorneys.

AS A RESULT of UPI's investigation into black market baby operations in California, health authorities acknowledged the problem was more serious than they had thought, and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. proposed legislation making it a felony for arranging adoptions without a state license.

The private adoption business — the illegal along with the legal — is thriving because there are few healthy white babies available for adoption through traditional agencies.

"The girl who has, quote, 'made a mistake' is now deciding to keep her child and raise it alone, or else she's having it aborted," said Lillian Sikes of the Children's Aid Society of New York.

Even Nevada prostitutes are being approached. Reno brothel owner Joe Conforte says two Oklahoma attorneys offered up to $10,000 per child for babies produced by his prostitutes. He said, however, that because of the pill and easy abortions, pregnancies among his 30 to 35 girls are "nonexistent."

IMPATIENT childless couples — mostly white and middle to upper class — are willing to pay large sums to people who can get them a healthy child fast with minimum fuss. Reports of purchase prices as high as $15,000

If you're going to return a gift

by BARBARA LADD

If you're going to return a holiday gift you gave or received for refund or exchange, you should know the return/exchange policy of the store where it was purchased.

"Refunds and returns are a privilege and not a right, despite what most people think," said James Baumhart of the Chicago Better Business Bureau. "And a simple question will tell you how liberal the store is about this privilege."

Shoppers should inquire about the policies, advised Hugh Muncy of the Illinois Retailers Association. "And they should look for posted signs which state the store's policies. We have encouraged stores to provide them," he said.

POLICIES VARY from one store to the next, Muncy said. Some accept returns up to Christmas, some accept them up to a week after Christmas, and some retailers will refund anytime in the next year. Often a receipt is necessary and occasionally stores refuse to refund money but will give a store credit for another item.

"People have to realize that it's impossible for smaller businesses always to give refunds and returns on all merchandise," Muncy continued. Inventory might be limited and the retailer would be stuck with too many items and little hope of selling all of them. This is especially true for expensive items like jewelry, cars, fur coats and stereo sets, he explained.

"That's why most (smaller) stores prefer to give a credit in the store and do not simply take the merchandise back and return the money," he said.

MOST OF THE larger store chains have a flat exchange for items purchased in any of their stores, according to a J. C. Penney spokesman. There is usually no time limit and no receipt is required for anything labeled with the store brand, he said.

"But it's more difficult to return national brand merchandise (like Levis, or Bobbie Brooks) since without the receipt those items could be purchased from any store in the country," he noted.

Besides knowing refund and return policies in stores where you shop, it's also smart to find out who is responsible if something is wrong with the merchandise, Baumhart said.

"WILL THE STORE give you the missing parts in a do-it-yourself kit? Will they give you a whole new kit? Or will you have to send to the manufacturing company for parts and repairs? These are important things to know," he said.

Besides knowing who is responsible for faulty merchandise, it is also wise for the consumer to find out who handles store problems, according to the J. C. Penney spokesman. "In some stores, only the management can handle returns and complaints. It wouldn't do much good to yell at a salesperson," he commented.

The most effective course of action to take when complaining is to talk and write to the store management, according to Muncy. If that doesn't help, a call to the Better Business Bureau or the Consumer's Advocate Office might elicit a response. Eventually, a lawyer and a trip to court might be in order.

BUT DON'T stop payment on merchandise unless you are sure of your reasons, cautioned Baumhart. "The merchant could take you to the State's Attorney's Office."

"Just be patient and reasonable," he advised. "People make up their problems. Remember, if you rub someone the wrong way, it might be hard to have your demands met."

There are no federal statutes outlawing baby sales, and the laws of the 50 states are highly diverse. Loopholes abound, and enforcement is lax.

Often prosecutors, if they catch up with the baby-sellers at all, do so on technical violations.

Officials in some states are demanding tighter laws and stiffer penalties, and prosecutors are beginning to crack down. Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., has proposed federal legislation to regulate private placements.

IN NEW JERSEY, five lawyers and two other persons were charged with running a five-state baby ring. The Bergen County, N.J., prosecutor assigned an investigator full time to ferret out black market operators.

In Washington, D.C., where babies born out of wedlock outnumber babies born to married women, two lawyers and one doctor are charged with baby-selling.

Authorities in Los Angeles broke up what they called the seeds of a worldwide baby ring that, prosecutors charged, would have netted disbarred attorney Ronald Silverton $3.3 million in two years.

In an 18-month period, California health officials received 250 complaints of irregular placements by doctors and attorneys.

AS A RESULT of UPI's investigation into black market baby operations in California, health authorities acknowledged the problem was more serious than they had thought, and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. proposed legislation making it a felony for arranging adoptions without a state license.

The private adoption business — the illegal along with the legal — is thriving because there are few healthy white babies available for adoption through traditional agencies.

"The girl who has, quote, 'made a mistake' is now deciding to keep her child and raise it alone, or else she's having it aborted," said Lillian Sikes of the Children's Aid Society of New York.

Even Nevada prostitutes are being approached. Reno brothel owner Joe Conforte says two Oklahoma attorneys offered up to $10,000 per child for babies produced by his prostitutes. He said, however, that because of the pill and easy abortions, pregnancies among his 30 to 35 girls are "nonexistent."

IMPATIENT childless couples — mostly white and middle to upper class — are willing to pay large sums to people who can get them a healthy child fast with minimum fuss. Reports of purchase prices as high as $15,000

If you're going to return a gift

by BARBARA LADD

If you're going to return a holiday gift you gave or received for refund or exchange, you should know the return/exchange policy of the store where it was purchased.

"Refunds and returns are a privilege and not a right, despite what most people think," said James Baumhart of the Chicago Better Business Bureau. "And a simple question will tell you how liberal the store is about this privilege."

Shoppers should inquire about the policies, advised Hugh Muncy of the Illinois Retailers Association. "And they should look for posted signs which state the store's policies. We have encouraged stores to provide them," he said.

POLICIES VARY from one store to the next, Muncy said. Some accept returns up to Christmas, some accept them up to a week after Christmas, and some retailers will refund anytime in the next year. Often a receipt is necessary and occasionally stores refuse to refund money but will give a store credit for another item.

"People have to realize that it's impossible for smaller businesses always to give refunds and returns on all merchandise," Muncy continued. Inventory might be limited and the retailer would be stuck with too many items and little hope of selling all of them. This is especially true for expensive items like jewelry, cars, fur coats and stereo sets, he explained.

"That's why most (smaller) stores prefer to give a credit in the store and do not simply take the merchandise back and return the money," he said.

MOST OF THE larger store chains have a flat exchange for items purchased in any of their stores, according to a J. C. Penney spokesman. There is usually no time limit and no receipt is required for anything labeled with the store brand, he said.

"But it's more difficult to return national brand merchandise (like Levis, or Bobbie Brooks) since without the receipt those items could be purchased from any store in the country," he noted.

Besides knowing refund and return policies in stores where you shop, it's also smart to find out who is responsible if something is wrong with the merchandise, Baumhart said.

"WILL THE STORE give you the missing parts in a do-it-yourself kit? Will they give you a whole new kit? Or will you have to send to the manufacturing company for parts and repairs? These are important things to know," he said.

Besides knowing who is responsible for faulty merchandise, it is also wise for the consumer to find out who handles store problems, according to the J. C. Penney spokesman. "In some stores, only the management can handle returns and complaints. It wouldn't do much good to yell at a salesperson," he commented.

The most effective course of action to take when complaining is to talk and write to the store management, according to Muncy. If that doesn't help, a call to the Better Business Bureau or the Consumer's Advocate Office might elicit a response. Eventually, a lawyer and a trip to court might be in order.

BUT DON'T stop payment on merchandise unless you are sure of your reasons, cautioned Baumhart. "The merchant could take you to the State's Attorney's Office."

"Just be patient and reasonable," he advised. "People make up their problems. Remember, if you rub someone the wrong way, it might be hard to have your demands met."

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Breast cysts need frequent attention

Is there any cure or treatment for fibrocystic disease of the breast besides surgery once or twice a year? My doctor says I have to learn to live with it. I have a mammogram once a year and just had surgery for a large mass of cysts from one breast that looked like grapes full of yellow fluid. The other breast has the same, but the doctor said they were cystic so just keep a close watch on them.

I want to know what can be done and if there are any treatments or should I change doctors.

Is having the breast removed the answer or not? I can't see going to the hospital once or twice a year for surgery. I would just as soon have both breasts removed if it will put a stop to these cystic formations. This is making an emotional wreck of me. I am 44.

You have a perplexing problem. However, as many as a third of adult women have fibrocystic disease (also called chornic mastitis). The amount of difficulty depends upon the extent of the disease. The recurrent formation of cysts is not dangerous although cysts can cause pain and tenderness. Symptoms are relieved some with a well-fitting brassiere and with the application of heat. A cyst or cysts can be drained with a needle.

The important point is establishing whether a woman has cysts in the breast or if there a definite nodule that is not a cyst. If it is a nodule the question of a malignancy of the breast must be settled.

I hate to frighten you, but you may make the wrong decision if you don't have the right facts. Cancer of the breast is three to five times as common in women with cystic mastitis. That is why your doctor is wisely keeping such close track of you. It is not unusual to have a biopsy or removal of an area to be sure it is a cyst and not a nodule. If the cyst can be drained and there is no residual lump, then one is on safer grounds.

IT IS WELL and good to say that the important point is to tell easy in a breast that is full of cysts. That is why a woman with a lot of these should have a breast examination by her doctor every four to six months.

Although there is a lot of discussion currently on the value and danger of mammography, it is used in cases such as yours because of the high incidence of cancer and the consequences if cancer is not detected early. You should continue to rely on your doctor to advise you on how often you should have such an examination as it applies to your case.

Some doctors are now more in favor of a simple mastectomy in cases such as yours. It depends again on how much trouble it causes. In most cases, howver, a regular careful evaluation combined with self-examination will be adequate. In a woman with severe problems and with a family history of breast cancer the choice might be different. Talk it over with your doctor if you continue to need surgery and perhaps ask for a consultation with a specialist in gynecology.

Sunflower seeds may be toasted for eating

Dear Dorothy: This year, for the first time, we rasied a lot of sunflowers. I'm now wondering how to prepare the seeds for eating. Can you help?—Isabelle Duke

We have a recipe for toasting sunflower seeds that has made many readers happy, particularly those who don't have to worry about calories. Stir one cup of raw, hulled sunflower seeds with two teaspoons of salad oil (sesame seed oil can be used), put on a cookie sheet and place in a 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. Stir every five minutes. When brown, drain on paper towels and sprinkle with salt.

Dear Dorothy: Is there some easy way to separate whites and yolks? Sometimes when I have several to do, I can't help but wonder if there isn't a better way than separating each egg into two bowls.—Monica Marshfield

There is a gadget that holds the yolk and allows the white to strain through into a bowl below. The safe way is to do each egg strain through into a bowl below. The safe way is to do each egg separately as any yolk that accidentally gets into the white will bollix up the works.

Many of you probably are thinking about New Year's parties and wondering what to serve. Normally, I shy away from dishes that suggest a trip to the bank to float a loan, but this one is susceptible to change. It's a luscious hor d'oeuvre concocted by Ethel Spiegel. She mixes crab meat with a little sour cream, mustard, curry and lemon juice and then fills the tender inner leaves of Belgian endive (one of the "Tiffany" greens). Ethel says she has made it with tuna fish and that one really doesn't have to use endive. Meaning, of course, that one can use celery. I had it the expensive way. Spoils one rotten.

Attorneys reap profit from private adoptions

have been documented, and there are unverified reports of couples paying as much as $50,000.

Like commodities in a free market, price depends on quality. In marketing of babies, the determining factors are the physical health and appearance of the infant and the background of the natural parents — their physical appearance and health as well as educational and socio-economic levels.

There are several reasons why baby-selling is flourishing.

One is the lack of comprehensive, consistent legislation. Some states permit private adoptions; some do not. Some states allow go-betweens to accept fees for arranging the adoption; some prohibit it.

The strict guidelines employed by adoption agencies tend to frighten away both unwed mothers and prospective adoptive parents.

Another problem is what state officials claim is an indifferent attitude by federal agencies.

In Chicago, a staff investigator of Cook County state's attorney said he once asked the Internal Revenue Service to check the tax records of a lawyer suspected of hiding income from baby-selling. "They told me to get lost — they said it was a state problem," he said disgustedly.

ADOPTION laws themselves shield baby-peddlers. Adoption records are sealed for the protection of the child and parents. But this makes it almost impossible to check records to see if the same attorneys and doctors are involved in private adoptions of suspicious nature.

But, more than anything else, what deters prosecution of black market baby operations is the refusal of adoptive parents to testify against lawyers or doctors out of fear they will lose their children or, at the least, expose them to publicity.

New York state officials launched a major investigation into baby-selling, called it off because they could not convince adoptive parents to testify in open court, and then reopened it when UPI publicized the problem.

In Gary, Ind., Vicki Williams, a county welfare worker who conducts state-required home studies of adoptive parents, has despaired of using normal channels to check out reports of profiteering by lawyers.

"There's always talk that there's money going under the table," said Miss Williams. "I ask couples how much they're paying. The usual attorney's fee is $500, but I think they're getting more. The attorneys know they can get more."

"In Lake County," she said, "corruption is just a way of life. If the attorney in an adoption proceeding knows a judge and they're buddies, he can get his way on anything and I don't think there's a prosecutor anywhere who can break up that kind of arrangement."

SHE SAID attorneys sometimes skirt adoption procedures by instructing adoptive parents to bring children home before the required home study. "We've gone in a couple times to fight adoptions and judges have told us, 'Well, the child is placed now, and it's too late for all that business anyway.'

"At other times, adoptive mothers have refused to let us in to do home studies. They say their attorney told them not to let us in and they refer us to him. The mothers are afraid they're going to lose their baby. They're afraid of the attorneys."

Most attorneys engaged in private adoptions say they are performing a valuable social service, providing care for natural mothers and finding homes for unwanted babies with parents who have the means to care for them.

But, says Phil Toia, New York's social services commissioner, there often are "tragic hitches in the switches."

"ONE OF THE unwritten rules of the black market adoption business is that if a baby is born imperfect, the deal is off," said Toia. "The parents can back out of the deal. But the natural mother doesn't want the kid, and the lawyer who got the fee for arranging the adoption sure as hell won't take care of him.

"There was one girl from the Midwest who came to New York to have her baby, at the advice of an attorney who planned to sell it," Toia said. "The girl got all the proper considerations during her pregnancy — a nice place to stay, food, clothes, spending money.

"But then the child was born with a birth defect, and the deal was off. The attorney wouldn't give her any money to go home, the adoptive parents wouldn't accept the child, and the girl didn't want the child."

Toia's face hardened. "That child is a ward of the state now."

NOR DO THE middlemen care about the biological mother, says Bill Mesan, who investigated illegal adoptions for the Child Welfare League.

"These intermediaries — doctors and lawyers — don't really care about the biological mother," said Mesan. "The natural mother is getting pinned to the wall just like the adoptive parents. Most of these mothers are teenagers — 15, 16, 17 years old — who are pregnant and who don't know what's going to happen to them.

"The intermediaries offer a solution, maybe not the best solution, but a solution nonetheless, and these poor kids go for it."

Today, said Mesan, any woman with an unwanted pregnancy is considered fair game.

Simulated sunshine turns animals on Independent researchers have discovered that the quality of light has a great deal to do with the quality of living — including an animal's appetite for the basics of life.

Jozsef Laszlo of the Reptile Department of the Houston Zoological Gardens used this information and some full-spectrum Vita-Lite fluorescent lights, man's closest simulation of sunlight, to turn a fasting viper on — to food.

Donald Bruning, ornithologist affiliated with the New York Zoological Gardens, used these full-spectrum lights to induce Tufted Puffin birds to develop adult plumage and lay eggs, the first known to hatch in captivity.

And researchers at the University of the Pacific, Tufts University and the Veterans Administration Outpatient Clinic in Boston dicovered that golden hamsters raised under fluorescent lights had five times fewer dental cavities when the lights were full spectrum. (UPI)

Memories make Christmas special

by Mary B. Good

Most persons have nostalgic memories of childhood Christmases. For me, midlife holidays have some especially memorable moments, too!

The tradition in our little church is to have a church decorating party the Sunday before Christmas. Everyone comes, and in our small town, it is a big social event, believe it or not. Afterwards, we have pizza and beer in the parish hall, and we recharge our batteries.

The unique, creative talents of all who come are cleverly utilized. The restaurant-owner cum engineer builds a scaffold to facilitate reaching all parts of the enormous tree that a group of men have gone out to cut. Children make the ornaments. A housewife turned florist teaches a bridge club group how to make wreaths and wire evergreens into a garland. The plumber constructs pulleys to lift the garland like a bunting over the heads of churchgoers. The gas station attendant builds platforms for the flowering plants. Secretaries and nurses arrange the creche. Everyone helps, and it turns out super spectacular because of the effort of so many persons sharing their time and resources.

THIS YEAR WE lifted the idea of a "family tree" from some other town and invited each family in the congregation to bring with them to church on Sunday an ornament from their own collection. The ornament could be homemade, with all family members contributing to the finished product, a family heirloom, or any favorite decoration, store-bought or handmade. Mainly, we wanted every family represented on our "family tree" symbolically with the inclusion of their ornament on our church tree.

Then we invited any family who wished to contribute the cost of a poinsettia plant tagged with their name that they can take home and enjoy after the plants grace the altar for Christmas.

The response was fantastic, mainly because the people really felt a big part of the Christmas celebration. They planned it, they executed it, and the very success of the outcome of the decorating project depended on the cooperation of many.

AND NOW the phone keeps ringing with people asking how to take care of their poinsettias to keep them growing and blooming and reminding them of a Christmas that is very special.

The care of a poinsettia is relatively easy: A bright window, two to three hours of sunlight a day and a house temperature of 65 to 72 with some added humidity will suit the poinsettia just fine. Poinsettias like a uniformly moist soil. Too much or too little water will cause leaf drop and yellowing. Allowing enough water to drain through the soil so that an ounce or two comes out the drainage hole will insure thorough watering about twice a week. To prolong bloom, poinsettias should be protected against damaging cold drafts, hot air registers and heat from the top of the TV set.

Oakton offers semester break study

Skills and strategies which can improve educational, family and career situations are the topics for two semester break "mini courses" planned by the Oakton Community College Women's Program.

In "Decision-Making Skills," participants will learn to explore their decision-making processes and obstacles and conflicts which prevent them from making the best possible decision. Leading this "mini" will be Gale Grossman, career counselor for Oakton's Adult Career Resource Center. The class, beginning Jan. 4, will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. until noon for two weeks.

"Effective Study Habits" is aimed particularly at the woman who is considering a return to school but feels she has forgotten how to study. Instructor Kathy Riordan, who has taught at Mundelein College in Chicago, and for MONACEP, Oakton's Adult and Continuing Education Program, will outline effective study skills which increase the enjoyment of learning. Beginning on Jan. 3, this class will meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 9 a.m. until noon for two weeks.

Tuition is $10 for "Decision-Making Skills" and $12 for "Effective Study Habits." For further information, or to register, women may call 967-5120, ext. 350.

Women can learn to assert selves

Beginning and advanced classes in assertiveness training will be offered as "semester break minis" by the Oakton Community College Women's Program.

Designed for those with no previous background in assertiveness, "Assertiveness Training I" teaches participants to express their beliefs in an honest, direct, and appropriate way, without being either aggressive or non-assertive.

"Assertiveness Training II," open only to those who have learned the fundamentals of assertiveness in previous workshops or classes, will emphasize behavior rehearsal, role playing, and reinforcement of assertive actions.

Both courses will be held on Tuesdays and Thursays from 1-3 p.m. for two weeks, beginning Jan. 4. Tuition for either workshop is $20.

For further information, interested readers may call the Women's Program Office at 967-5120, ext. 350.

Engineers tackle taconite for iron

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Jeff Kubel, 12, of Cudahy, Wis., for his question:

WHAT IS TACONITE?

The iron we use for so many things is found in the earth. Generally it is hidden in some mineral or combined with other chemicals. A mineral that contains a metal we want is called an ore, and the principal ores from which iron is produced are hematite, limonite, magnetite and taconite.

Geologists know that taconite ore is about 30 per cent iron oxide. But it is also a very hard rock — so hard, in fact, that regular drilling and blasting methods hardly faze it. The iron content, however, was so desirable that in the early 1950s mining engineers went to work to see if they could crack the stubborn stuff. In time the problem was solved, for even the rough taconite could not resist the new mining methods.

Even hard rocks tend to crack through such forces as heat and pressure, or sudden temperature changes. The methods for cracking taconite, making good use of this information, employed intense heat followed by a shower or gushing cold water. The heat is supplied by a machine that shoots out streams of burning kerosene. The temperature of the taconite soars upwards to about 4,700 degrees F., making it white hot. A shower of cold water produces great clouds of steam, and the sudden change in temperature causes the stubborn mineral to crack. This is just enough of an opening for the next mining operation.

Explosive charges are placed in the cracks and detonated. The explosions blast the hard rock apart in huge chunks. The next order of business is to grind it up into smaller and smaller bits. After several different grinders have reduced the ore to a fine powder, mighty magnets separate the useful taconite from sand and other rocky waste materials.

Coal dust is added to the powdered taconite and fed into a steel barrel and heated. In the process, the coal dust is burned away and the taconite forms into small round marbles. These marbles are ready to be shipped to steel mills where they will be mixed with other materials to produce steel or iron.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Il. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Search for extra chance

North really scraped the bottom of the barrel to dig up his raise to two spades. Fortunately, South had a mighty sound rebid to the game contract, so there was some play for it.

South won the diamond lead with his ace and noted that East had dropped the eight spot. It looked like the start of an echo to show a doubleton. There didn't seem to be much chance of getting a discard on the 10 that could be established.

However, South found a way to give himself an extra chance. He cashed his ace and jack of trumps and then led his jack of diamonds.

West took his queen and shifted to the ten of clubs. This held and a second club went to East's jack. East led a third club.

South ruffed; entered dummy with the queen of trumps; discarded his deuce of hearts on the 10 of diamonds and made the rest of the tricks by means of a successful heart finesse. His play of drawing two rounds of trumps succeeded because East was short in trumps as well as in diamonds, but it risked nothing. If East had been able to trump the third diamond, South would overruff and still be able to make his contract if hearts broke 3-3.

Hallmark—theater with good taste

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christmas Eve marks the the 25th anniversary of the television premiere of the Hallmark Hall of Fame's production of the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Prime-time opera seems unimaginable today when most television is conceived with the idea of attracting the largest possible audience — and therefore the highest possible fees from sponsors interested in reaching the most persons.

Sponsors interested in image-building via quality shows, even if they can afford the astronomical costs of single sponsorship, have difficulty finding them. Even 15 years ago, advertising agencies for giant corporations such as U.S. Steel and 3M had to struggle to find shows that would provide a vehicle for institutional, as opposed to product, advertising.

TODAY THE usual outlet for such spending is public television, where the oil companies and other sponsors can underwrite programing without a network breathing down their neck, worrying about Nielsen ratings, leads in and leads out.

Weekly single sponsorship drama has become a thing of the past, but one company has stuck to the commercial networks, hoping to boost both image and sales with quality drama — Hallmark's Hall of Fame series of dramas continues, still offering drama but now with less emphasis on Shakespeare and the classics.

The Hall of Fame began as a weekly program of half-hour and hour-long dramas, but since the end of the 1953-54 television season, it has been reduced to five or six shows a year on NBC — always NBC. The dramas have ranged from the April 26, 1953, production of "Hamlet," with Maurice Evans, to this year's Dec. 12 "Peter Pan" starring Danny Kaye.

That "Hamlet," incidentally, was television's first two-hour drama and its first full production of Shakespeare.

The policy that subordinated numbers to quality was originated by Joyce C. Hall, founder and board chairman of Hallmark Cards, when he said, "Good taste is good business. I'd rather make eight million good impressions than 28 million bad ones."

WHAT IS TACONITE?

The iron we use for so many things is found in the earth. Generally it is hidden in some mineral or combined with other chemicals. A mineral that contains a metal we want is called an ore, and the principal ores from which iron is produced are hematite, limonite, magnetite and taconite.

Geologists know that taconite ore is about 30 per cent iron oxide. But it is also a very hard rock — so hard, in fact, that regular drilling and blasting methods hardly faze it. The iron content, however, was so desirable that in the early 1950s mining engineers went to work to see if they could crack the stubborn stuff. In time the problem was solved, for even the rough taconite could not resist the new mining methods.

Even hard rocks tend to crack through such forces as heat and pressure, or sudden temperature changes. The methods for cracking taconite, making good use of this information, employed intense heat followed by a shower or gushing cold water. The heat is supplied by a machine that shoots out streams of burning kerosene. The temperature of the taconite soars upwards to about 4,700 degrees F., making it white hot. A shower of cold water produces great clouds of steam, and the sudden change in temperature causes the stubborn mineral to crack. This is just enough of an opening for the next mining operation.

Explosive charges are placed in the cracks and detonated. The explosions blast the hard rock apart in huge chunks. The next order of business is to grind it up into smaller and smaller bits. After several different grinders have reduced the ore to a fine powder, mighty magnets separate the useful taconite from sand and other rocky waste materials.

Coal dust is added to the powdered taconite and fed into a steel barrel and heated. In the process, the coal dust is burned away and the taconite forms into small round marbles. These marbles are ready to be shipped to steel mills where they will be mixed with other materials to produce steel or iron.

Search for extra chance

North really scraped the bottom of the barrel to dig up his raise to two spades. Fortunately, South had a mighty sound rebid to the game contract, so there was some play for it.

South won the diamond lead with his ace and noted that East had dropped the eight spot. It looked like the start of an echo to show a doubleton. There didn't seem to be much chance of getting a discard on the 10 that could be established.

However, South found a way to give himself an extra chance. He cashed his ace and jack of trumps and then led his jack of diamonds.

West took his queen and shifted to the ten of clubs. This held and a second club went to East's jack. East led a third club.

South ruffed; entered dummy with the queen of trumps; discarded his deuce of hearts on the 10 of diamonds and made the rest of the tricks by means of a successful heart finesse. His play of drawing two rounds of trumps succeeded because East was short in trumps as well as in diamonds, but it risked nothing. If East had been able to trump the third diamond, South would overruff and still be able to make his contract if hearts broke 3-3.

An Iowa reader wants to ask James Jacoby his age when his father first taught him bridge.

Jim's reply. "I learned bridge when I was 16 and a Freshman at Notre Dame. At that time my father was in the Navy in Korea, but he did answer questions for me when I wrote to him."

Hallmark — theater with good taste

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christmas Eve marks the the 25th anniversary of the television premiere of the Hallmark Hall of Fame's production of the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Prime-time opera seems unimaginable today when most television is conceived with the idea of attracting the largest possible audience — and therefore the highest possible fees from sponsors interested in reaching the most persons.

Sponsors interested in image-building via quality shows, even if they can afford the astronomical costs of single sponsorship, have difficulty finding them. Even 15 years ago, advertising agencies for giant corporations such as U.S. Steel and 3M had to struggle to find shows that would provide a vehicle for institutional, as opposed to product, advertising.

TODAY THE usual outlet for such spending is public television, where the oil companies and other sponsors can underwrite programing without a network breathing down their neck, worrying about Nielsen ratings, leads in and leads out.

Weekly single sponsorship drama has become a thing of the past, but one company has stuck to the commercial networks, hoping to boost both image and sales with quality drama — Hallmark's Hall of Fame series of dramas continues, still offering drama but now with less emphasis on Shakespeare and the classics.

The Hall of Fame began as a weekly program of half-hour and hour-long dramas, but since the end of the 1953-54 television season, it has been reduced to five or six shows a year on NBC — always NBC. The dramas have ranged from the April 26, 1953, production of "Hamlet," with Maurice Evans, to this year's Dec. 12 "Peter Pan" starring Danny Kaye.

That "Hamlet," incidentally, was television's first two-hour drama and its first full production of Shakespeare.

The policy that subordinated numbers to quality was originated by Joyce C. Hall, founder and board chairman of Hallmark Cards, when he said, "Good taste is good business. I'd rather make eight million good impressions than 28 million bad ones."

No-waste community environment near

by LYNN ASINOF

Solar energy and wind power used to be considered part of the hippy culture. Today they are just considered "hip," and soon they will be part of everyday living.

The arrival of alternative power, sources, however, is just the beginning of changes that will reshape the way people live, according to a group of students and faculty at the University of Illinois Circle Campus.

The group formed two years ago during the now almost forgotten energy crisis and started planning a self-sufficient, ecologically sound community. The result is a plan of ECSOL — an ecological community with solar-based organic life-support system.

"WE GOT into the project right at the end of the energy crisis, to relieve our fears really," said William S. Becker, assistant professor of art. "The more we did our research, the more enthusiastic we became that the alternatives that are available are perhaps more beneficial than our present system."

The ECSOL community is proposed as a "no-waste" environment, tied together with solar energy, wind energy, photoelectric cells and waste recycling. All buildings in the community support energy producing equipment and thus contribute toward "repaying" the energy debt created from their construction and maintenance.

Homes are built with solar collectors. Each unit has earth insulation and a rooftop garden for growing food. More than 80 per cent of the community's food is to be grown, processed and eaten locally, saving considerably on fuel for transportation.

Public buildings are designed primarily as utility buildings, with each having both solar collectors and wind generators. Each unit could support 10 family units in addition to the industrial and commercial uses housed inside.

THE KEY TO the concept is waste recycling which would provide fertilizer and methane gas for fuel. This allows the community to be self-sufficient either as a community within a city or as an independent rural community.

Becker said the plan sounds lika a fantasy but said similar communities already are coming into existence in places where energy is both scarce and expensive.

"There's a guy in Vermont who calls himself the first hippy developer," Becker said, referring to the Newfane condominium project that has solar energy and will be phased into windmills to provide electricity.

"Within three months, these buildings were totally occupied," Becker said. "There's a market there. There are people who want to be part of this new ecological living."

BECKER SAID he doesn't expect an ECSOL community to spring up overnight. He said, however, there will be increasing incentives for establishing such communities as energy sources shrink and utility prices skyrocket.

"Although a lot of this looks somewhat novel, we are putting together things that have already been done," Becker noting that the use of earth insulation dates back to primitive times.

Other parts of the community can be implemented on a small, even an individual basis. For example, solar energy is already available commercially and wind generators are starting to gain acceptance.

In the area of waste treatment, Becker said anaerobic toilets are not yet approved for installation in houses in this area, and now must be used outside. The toilets, which produce a sterile chip that can be used for either fertilizer or fuel, have been in use in Europe for 10 or 15 years.

BECKER, HOWEVER, said he doesn't think it will be long before building codes allow installation of anaerobic toilets. "Just as the flush toilet came indoors, so I think will these," he said.

The big difference between an ECSOL community and today's living is decentralization. ECSOL communities are designed to be self-sufficient. There are no large regional power plants, sewage treatment facilities or food producing areas. Instead of operating by regions, everything is scaled down to neighborhood size.

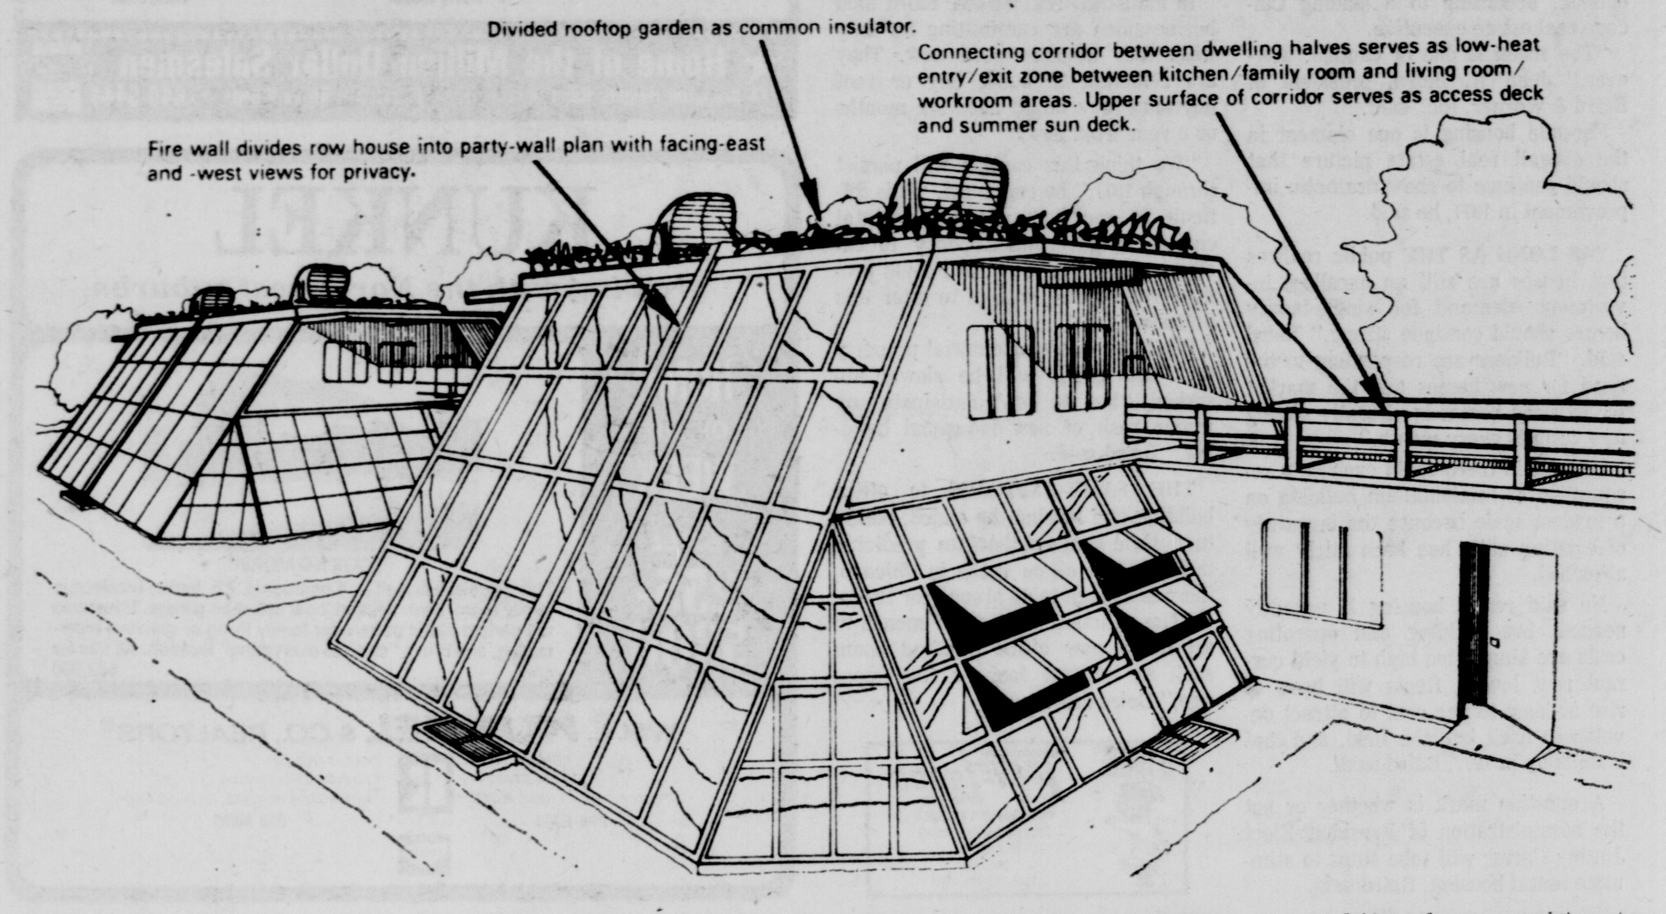
Becker said that to make an ECSOL community work there will have to be a change in philosophy. For example, he said we will have to change our ideas about "waste being waste and not a resource."

Moreover, Becker said every system from waste recycling to wind generators will have to be integrated for most efficient use.

"IT ALMOST doesn't matter what you are doing as long as you integrate it better," Becker said.

That means that buildings constructed today should be designed for adaptation to solar energy, wind power and other energy-saving systems.

"A lot of this can be built without solar initially," Becker said, explaining that cost increases dramatically if plans have to be modified or building redesigned.



Homeownership provides cushion against inflation

With inflation taking heavy toll on every family's budget, many homeowners have discovered the current value of their property is the brightest spot in their financial picture.

"Since 1966, while the cost of living has increased 82.7 per cent, the average selling price of most homes has climbed well over 100 per cent," said Mary Jane Starck of Robert W. Starck & Co.,Realtors . "For many families, homeownership has provided a cushion of real profit that meets the challenges of recent inflation."

But if you're planning to sell your home in the near future, pricing can be difficult. "It's as easy to underestimate a home's market value as it is to overestimate its potential selling price. That impressive 100 per cent 10-year figure is a national average that may or may not reflect local market conditions," Starck said. "To determine a fair and realistic selling price, a home seller can benefit from the advice of a professional real estate broker in hisor her own community."

Mary Jane Starck

"A LOT OF things other than market appreciation can affect a home's selling price," Starck said. "Home improvements, for instance, can either add or detract from selling appeal, depending on how they're handled."

Homewners concerned with their home's potential resale should keep the home in tip-top repair. Repaint when needed, replace garage doors, shutters, wooden steps. While these kinds of improvements may add little to a home's selling price, left undone, they put a home in the real estate market's bargain basement.

- Make improvements certain to appeal to potential buyers. Modernize kitchen and bathrooms. Add a first floor powder room.
- Make home improvements in line with other homes in the neighborhood. If your house has two bedrooms and all your neighbors have three or four, a room addition is likely to increase your home's resale value.
- Scrap ideas for a basement recreation room. Few buyers today want to spend much time underground.
- Consider a ground level family room and patio. Both are high demand items among shoppers for homes today.
- Don't let your home improvements outprice other houses in your neighborhood. The most important factors in determining any home's market value are the homes nearby. Swimming pools and tennis courts seldom fit into communities dominated by $30,000 bungalows, with swing sets in the backyards.
- Before going ahead with your home improvement plans, ask a reputable real estate broker for his opinion. He'll be able to give you a pretty good estimate of just how much the improvement can add to your home's selling price. "Sometimes, a family's needs and wants outdistance their present home and neighborhood," said Starck. It's a good idea, then to consider moving.

Home warranty program worth cost, survey shows

Over 75 per cent of the new homeowners questioned in a recent survey said they would ask about the housing industry's insured buyer protection plan, the Home Owners Warranty (HOW), when purchasing their next house, and that the program's 10-year protection is worth its cost.

HOW is a combination warranty and insurance program offered by participating builders on their new houses. It was created by the National Assn. of Home Builders (NAHB), a Washington D.C.-based trade association representing 80,000 builder and related industry members.

Under HOW, builders provide their home buyers with a one-year warranty on the workmanship and materials of the home and also warrant against major structural defects. During the second year of coverage, HOW homes are warranted against faults in the wiring, piping and duct work systems of the house and against major structural defects. During the first two years, the builder's warranty is insured by the American Bankers Insurance Company of Florida (ABIC), if for any reason the builder cannot or will not meet his warranty obligations.

The home is further insured against major structural defects for the next eight years by ABIC. During the 10-year period, the coverage is transferable to subsequent owners of the home. The cost of HOW coverage is a one-time fee, generally calculated at $2 per thousand of the home's selling price (minimum cost is $50). The charge for condominiums is slightly higher. The fee is paid by the builder, and passed on to the buyer like other builder costs of doing business.

The home owner survey was taken by the Ladies Home Journal's reader reaction bureau in 10 cities where HOW is currently available to consumers, and studied a random sampling of home buyers who were the first owners of their homes and had lived in them for less than one year. The bureau conducts public attitude surveys for the magazine's editors and advertisers, and at the request of special groups within private industry.

The first part of the survey dealt with the buyers' attitudes toward owning new homes and the problems encountered with their new homes. One question in this part asked respondents how important a builder's reputation is when considering the purchase of a house. Ninety-three per cent felt the builder's reputation is important.

In the section dealing with HOW, 53 per cent of the respondents said they had heard of HOW or had HOW coverage on their new homes. Seventy-one per cent said that, in choosing between two comparable homes, one having HOW coverage and the other not having HOW protection, HOW would make a difference in their decision of which house to buy.

The respondents represented a cross-section of American home buyers. Two-fifths said that their home was valued between $40,000 and $60,000, while another quarter valued their home under $40,000. More than a fourth of the respondents reported an annual family income between $20,000 and $25,000 and almost a third were under $20,000.

The survey was conducted among new home buyers in Buffalo, Atlanta, Tampa, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Denver, Las Vegas, Seattle and San Diego.

HOW is currently available in 40 states through builders registered with 90 local and state HOW councils. More than 112,000 homes have been enrolled in the program by over 4,300 builders.

It's a great time of the year. We hope you enjoy every minute of it.

Baird sees '77 plateau for real etate industry

Real estate development next year is expected to remain on a plateau, although there will be a chance for rapid improvement if general economic conditions brighten and business gains confidence in the long-term outlook, according to a leading Chicago real estate executive.

For-sale housing is one element in the overall real estate picture that should continue to show dramatic improvement in 1977, he said.

"AS LONG AS THE public realizes that houses are still an excellent investment, demand for single-family homes should continue strong," Baird said. "Builders are responding to the need for new homes and the market for existing homes is virtually setting new records every month."

Baird said there could even be a resumption of condominium building on a modest scale because the inventory of existing units has been fairly well absorbed.

He said rental housing is urgently needed, but building and operating costs are simply too high to yield current rent levels. Rents will have to rise at least 25 per cent to attract developers back into the field, and that is unlikely in 1977, Baird said.

A question mark is whether or not the administration of President-Elect Jimmy Carter will take steps to stimulate rental housing, Baird said.

"ANY NEW PROGRAM Carter might recommend would have to go through Congress," he said, "so it's doubtful that any stimulus he might apply would have an effect next year."

In industrial real estate, Baird said businessmen are committing for only what they actually need now. They are reluctant to build, buy or rent anything they might need six months or a year from now.

"We think this caution will persist through 1977," he continued. "It is difficult to see how any fundamental change in government policy to encourage building to expand could produce results fast enough to alter this attitude."

Whatever vacant industrial property that now exists will be slowly absorbed, "but we don't anticipate any major rash of new industrial building," Baird said.

THE SAME APPLIES to office building and leasing, he added, noting that while some authorities predict a tightening of office space in Chicago, there is enough to go around for 1977.

"The situation is not tight enough to set off a new office building boom such as we saw four or five years ago," Baird said.

Baird sees '77 plateau for real etate industry

Real estate development next year is expected to remain on a plateau, although there will be a chance for rapid improvement if general economic conditions brighten and business gains confidence in the long-term outlook, according to a leading Chicago real estate executive.

For-sale housing is one element in the overall real estate picture that should continue to show dramatic improvement in 1977, he said.

"AS LONG AS THE public realizes that houses are still an excellent investment, demand for single-family homes should continue strong," Baird said. "Builders are responding to the need for new homes and the market for existing homes is virtually setting new records every month."

Baird said there could even be a resumption of condominium building on a modest scale because the inventory of existing units has been fairly well absorbed.

He said rental housing is urgently needed, but building and operating costs are simply too high to yield current rent levels. Rents will have to rise at least 25 per cent to attract developers back into the field, and that is unlikely in 1977, Baird said.

A question mark is whether or not the administration of President-Elect Jimmy Carter will take steps to stimulate rental housing, Baird said.

"ANY NEW PROGRAM Carter might recommend would have to go through Congress," he said, "so it's doubtful that any stimulus he might apply would have an effect next year."

In industrial real estate, Baird said businessmen are committing for only what they actually need now. They are reluctant to build, buy or rent anything they might need six months or a year from now.

"We think this caution will persist through 1977," he continued. "It is difficult to see how any fundamental change in government policy to encourage building to expand could produce results fast enough to alter this attitude."

Whatever vacant industrial property that now exists will be slowly absorbed, "but we don't anticipate any major rash of new industrial building," Baird said.

THE SAME APPLIES to office building and leasing, he added, noting that while some authorities predict a tightening of office space in Chicago, there is enough to go around for 1977.

"The situation is not tight enough to set off a new office building boom such as we saw four or five years ago," Baird said.

Planning, foresight needed for retirement home

About real estate
by Don G. Campbell

One day we're not giving a passing thought to it, and the next day it's here; that's retirement age.

It's a lucky person who has the foresight to start planning for it 10, 15 or 20 years beforehand.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I am very much interested in buying a cottage next spring with the intention of using it as a retirement home in the future, while, at the present time, it would provide us and our children (seven in all) a place to spend our summers. My husband seems to think we can't afford such a venture at present, and I would like your opinion.

WHAT I HAVE in mind is a cottage that is winterized and therefore could be used all-year around — price range, $17,000. My husband and I are both 52 with two boys at home, ages 14 and 18. An older boy is in college, paying his own way.

We bought a house seven years ago for $22,500 and, with improvements, it's value is about $36,000 or more. Mortgage payments are $134 a month, including taxes, with 18 years to go. We have no other bills other than regular utility bills which are about $200 a month.

My husband has a pretty secure job with a take-home pay of $200 a week and a good pension plan. He also receives a $250 a month disability pension which we bank and will total $6,000 by spring. We also get back about $800 a year on our income tax which we also bank.

The children would contribute $2,500 toward the down-payment and my married daughter would live in the cottage year-round, paying $150 a month rent, plus the utilities.

WOULD IT BE feasible to take out a loan at the credit union and pay off the house where we currently live? Or, should we put $5,000 as a down payment on the cottage, receiving $150 a month rent? Mrs. A. G. (E. Hartford, Conn.)

A. I don't see that you have any problem, nor do I see any necessity for borrowing from the credit union to pay off your existing house. If you put $5,500 down on the cottage (of which your children will be putting up $2,500), and take out a 13-year mortgage — carrying you up to normal retirement time — the monthly principal and interest would only be about $131. Your daughter's monthly rent of $150 would carry this comfortably — even taking taxes into account.

The only thing that strikes me of a negative nature is the fact that this cottage is going to be a real beehive of activity in the summertime with the seven of you on hand as well as your daughter and her family (although I assume that she IS one of the seven).

Dear Mr. Campbell:

Another columnist, Sam Shulsky, refuses to give real estate advice, just as you should refuse to give financial advice. In a recent column you approved of a family's plans to take out a 30-year mortgage at 8½ per cent while investing the $35,000 from its old house at a minimum of 7 per cent. Shulsky would be quick to point out. how ridiculous it is to be taking in only 7 per cent while paying out 8½ per cent. It's a plain financial loss. Mr. F. R. (Buffalo, N.Y.)

A. KNOWING SAM, as I do, I can assure you that he wouldn't point out any such thing. He would concur with me that you're all wet.

What you're suggesting is that the family buy the replacement home outright instead of going the mortgage route which, in nin out of 10 cases, is just plain dumb.

The point is NOT that they're paying out 8½ per cent and taking in 7 per cent. In the first place the tax deductibility of mortgage interest and real estate taxes would make investment income and mortgage-pay-out about equal.

The real point is that it is dumb to pay off the entire cost of a home with 1976 dollars when it should be obvious that inflation is a long way from being licked and that future dollars are going to be progressively cheaper.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We are renting in a part of town that has been going downhill for the past couple of years. Our house has been broken into twice in the past nine months. The landlord says that there is nothing he can do about making the place safer for us and he has even refused to replace the broken windows that the crooks used to get in. What can we do about this? Mrs. W. T. G. (San Diego, Calif.)

A. Not a blessed thing, I'm afraid. It isn't the landlord's responsibility to protect his tenants in this sort of a situation and, frankly, I don't think it should be — it's the responsibility of the authorities to make the neighborhood livable. The landlord, actually, is a bigger loser than you are: he's stuck with a piece of property that, if the present trend continues, he's not going to be able to give away.

Planning, foresight needed for retirement home

by Don G. Campbell

One day we're not giving a passing thought to it, and the next day it's here; that's retirement age.

It's a lucky person who has the foresight to start planning for it 10, 15 or 20 years beforehand.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I am very much interested in buying a cottage next spring with the intention of using it as a retirement home in the future, while, at the present time, it would provide us and our children (seven in all) a place to spend our summers. My husband seems to think we can't afford such a venture at present, and I would like your opinion.

WHAT I HAVE in mind is a cottage that is winterized and therefore could be used all-year around — price range, $17,000. My husband and I are both 52 with two boys at home, ages 14 and 18. An older boy is in college, paying his own way.

We bought a house seven years ago for $22,500 and, with improvements, it's value is about $36,000 or more. Mortgage payments are $134 a month, including taxes, with 18 years to go. We have no other bills other than regular utility bills which are about $200 a month.

My husband has a pretty secure job with a take-home pay of $200 a week and a good pension plan. He also receives a $250 a month disability pension which we bank and will total $6,000 by spring. We also get back about $800 a year on our income tax which we also bank.

The children would contribute $2,500 toward the down-payment and my married daughter would live in the cottage year-round, paying $150 a month rent, plus the utilities.

WOULD IT BE feasible to take out a loan at the credit union and pay off the house where we currently live? Or, should we put $5,000 as a down payment on the cottage, receiving $150 a month rent? Mrs. A. G. (E. Hartford, Conn.)

A. I don't see that you have any problem, nor do I see any necessity for borrowing from the credit union to pay off your existing house. Add a Christmas touch

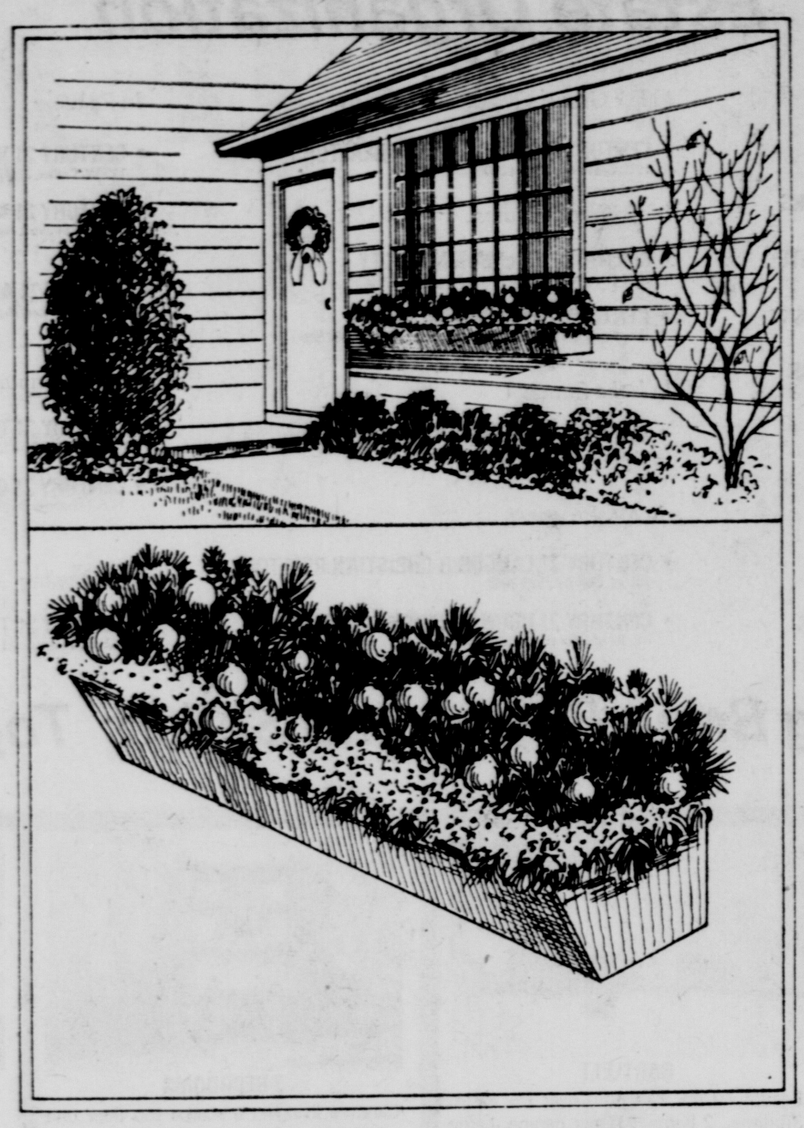
How to decorate your flower box

A window box or planter near your front entrance gives you an excellent opportunity to do some unusual Christmas decorating.

Most window boxes are rather stark and unattractive-looking after the petunias, geraniums or other flowering plants have been killed by freezing weather and then removed.

Some people taake down their flower boxes, empty them and store them over winter. This entails a lot of work in the fall and again in the spring when they must be hauled out of storage, put back in place, filled with soil and replanted.



It's your landscape

by George Creed

THERE IS NO reason why you can't make your window boxes or planter attractive in the "off season" as well as during the growing season. A few carefully arranged evergreen boughs will improve the appearance of any window box and the little effort required to cut and place these boughs will save much time and energy for those of you who remove, store and replace your window boxes every year. Cut evergreen will last a surprisingly long time outside in winter weather.

Evergreen boughs accented with American holly or Winterberry make attractive combinations for Christmas.

You can make the decoration even more elaborate by adding Christmas ornaments as in the plan. Since these are made of extremely light and fragile materials, fasten them securely, so they will not be blown away by the wind. You can add nighttime glamour to your arrangement, if you have an electrical outlet nearby, by adding some Christmas lights. Be sure the lamps you use are the outdoor type. A box or planter decorated in this way is pleasant to look at both from the inside and outside of your house.

After the Christmas holidays you need only remove the artificial ornaments and you will still have an attractive planter or window box until it's time to plant in the spring.

How you decorate is only limited by your imagination and inventiveness.

Q. What connection is there between snow and snow mold?

A. Melting snow in late winter provides ideal conditions for the growth of the fungus snow mold that affects lawns.

Q. How long should geranium cuttings be?

A. About four inches.

Record 3rd quarter home orders

U. S. Home Corp. reported its orders for new housing in its third quarter ended Nov. 30 were the best of any comparable quarter in the company's history.

Appearing before the New York Society of Security Analysts, Charles Rutenberg, chairman of U. S. Home, said that new orders of 1,647 units topped the previous high established in the third quarter ended Nov. 30, 1972.

Commenting on earnings, Robert J. Strudler, vice president and chairman of the operating committee, said that while results for the third quarter are not yet final, the companay anticipates reporting net income of approximately $2.2 million or 22 cents per share fully diluted. This compares with net income of $1.5 million or 15 cents per share fully diluted for the third quarter of last year. He added that net income for the nine months ended Nov. 30 would approximate $6.8 million or 67 cents per share fully diluted compared with net income of $3.1 million or 31 cents per share for the first nine months of last year.

RUTENBERG TOLD the analysts that for the fiscal year ending Feb. 28, 1977, U. S. Home will "surpass its stated goal of at least doubling its net income of 41 cents per share, fully diluted, for the year ended February 1976.

"The favorable mortgage market, low prime borrowing rates, lack of surplus housing inventory, and a moderated rate of inflation create an ideal climate for housing as we enter 1977. Barring a major negative change in the overall economic picture, we project for next year important growth in U. S. Home's sales and earnings," the U. S. Home chairman said.

Headquartered in Clearwater, Fla., U. S. Home Corporation is the nation's largest home builder. It has major operations in Arizona, Texas, Colorado, Illinois, Minnesota, New Jersey, the Washington, D.C. area and Florida.

Home building marketing class set

A new course in home building marketing will be introduced in January at Roosevelt University's Walter E. Heller College of Business Administration.

The course is designed to update skills of established marketers in the home building field as well as to introduce business students to a new profession. Students will examine home building advertising, merchandising, market planning, market research, design and sales management. Environmental factors and consumer relations also will be explored.

Builders taking the course can earn credit toward membership in the Institute of Residential Marketing.

The course is offered through the joint cooperation of Roosevelt University and the National Assn. of Home Builders as a means of coping with tremendous changes in the industry within the last few years. University and NAHB officials cite the appearance of the condominium home and new attitudes of the consumer as two of these new factors.

The course will be offered during Roosevelt's spring semester which begins Jan. 10. For registration information, call 341-3827.

Taking a winter vacation? Keep home heating down

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

About this time of year, people begin to think about winter vacations. Every year we receive many letters asking the same question. That is, should the heat be turned off in a house when it's to be left empty for a while?

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My husband has been doing so well with his business these past few years that we've been planning a really luxurious winter vacation.

We expect to be away for three months. Isn't that exciting? In the old days we didn't have the money to do this sort of thing. But now we're going to live it up!

Our question to you is, will it harm the house to shut down the heat while we're gone? Successful as my husband has become, we don't want to return home to find high heating bills when we haven't even been in the house. — LIVING IT UP.

It is definitely not a good idea to turn off the heat in a house that is occupied vear round. When a house remains unheated during cold weather, it often results in wallpaper loosening, swelling of floors, moisture seeping into the woodwork, doors sticking, etc.

Many other things can happen when heat is shut down. If you plan to be away for three months, lower your theremostat to 55 or 60 degrees. In this way you will protect your house, and yet your heating bills will not be so high.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I hired a local carpenter to install several new doors at my house. He installed a new front door, and then installed three interior doors. The work took about two days. After he finished, he presented me with a large bill and left.

When I inspected the work, I noticed he put three hinges on the front door, but only two on the new inside doors he had installed. I think he is cheating me. If it took three hinges to do a good, workmanlike job on the front door, why did he only put two hinges on the bedrooms?

I told him I won't pay the bill unless he comes back and installs the extra hinge. Do you think I am doing the right thing? — UNHINGES.

No, you are not. An exterior door such as a front door weighs much more than an interior door. Most interior doors are hollow. The number of hinges required is truly governed by the weight of the door. That is why a heavy front door requires a pair and a half of hinges, while an interior hollow door can be hung with only a pair.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We found a house we love, but haven't signed the agreement of sale yet. Here's the problem.

The owner of the house promised to redo the kitchen, which is really a disaster. The rest of the house is lovely. I think the lady of the house must have been very sloppy. The dishwasher is all banged up. The sink has big cracks in it, etc.

As I said, the owner agreed to renovate the kitchen, but refuses to insert this clause in the agreement of sale. He drew himself up to his full height and very haughtily assured me that he is an honest man, and that I shouldn't insult his integrity by making such a suggestion.

Shall we trust him, or shall we continue to insist that everything be spelled out in the agreement of sale? — ARE WE SUSPICIOUS?

An honest man, especially one with integrity, should have no objections to inserting a clause in the agreement of sale stating that he will make the kitchen renovations.

I have been around a long time, and it has been my experience that when someone objects to putting a deal in writing, you should question his honesty and integrity.

Don't sign the agreement until everything is spelled out clearly and fully. And don't make settlement until the work is completed.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: In all the years I have been a landlord, nothing lke this has ever happened to me.

I rented an apartment to a single man who seemed very conservative, very well behaved and very considerate. In the year he has lived in it, I have never had occasion to enter it.

Imagine my surprise when he gave notice that he was leaving and I went up to inspect his apartment! He had painted the living room a solid black. I couldn't believe it. When I questioned him, he said he meditates a lot and does yoga — and he finds the black surrounding very restful.

I consulted the painter I normally employ. He looked at the walls and said it would cost double to repaint it because of the black. I told the "crazy" tenant I would take that money from his escrow deposit. His reply was to threaten me.

What recourse do I have? — UNMEDITATING.

Whenever an apartment is rented, it is clearly understood that the tenant will leave the apartment in the same condition he received it. If it will cost you more to have it returned to its original condition, you are entitled to the money from the tenant.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: For years we have lived in our beautiful house and loved it. The only thing that had been a thorn in our side was our basement.

Everything down there was musty and mildewed. We, understandably, had always been reluctant to store anything down there. What puzzled us was that we never had a wet basement. Actually, it's very dry.

Well, after talking with numerous people, we had heat installed in the basement. You guessed it! Now it's perfect. We can't understand why this made such a difference, since the basement was dry to begin with. — WHADDYA THINK?

By installing heat in the basement, the temperature differential between the basement and the upper part of the house is eliminated.

When heat is installed, there is no condensation of moisture on the colder basement floors, walls, etc. As a result, the mildew and mustiness disappear.

Just as simple as that!

'Zone' heat your home

As you walk from a warm room into a chilly room, do you wish you had taken the man's advice last fall? You get the greatest advantage from a hot water heating system if different sections of your home are separately zoned, each with its own thermostat, as any good heating contractor can tell you.

The bedrooms upstairs, the playroom in the basement, each has its own heating needs, advises the Better Heating-Cooling Council. With zoned hydronic heating, you can get the temperature you want in each area, when you want it.

AT LAST:

A Florida Condominium we can heartily endorse.

As winter approaches, the lure of Florida sand and surf is getting stronger.

And now, there is a Florida development Gladstone, Realtors can enthusiastically recommend. We have visited this beachfront condominium on the Gulf of Mexico and investigated it thoroughly. The Sarasota location on Siesta Key's famed Crescent Beach is magnificent. As are the elegant condominium residences and recreation facilities. Not surprisingly, it is enjoying a remarkable sales success. One we believe its value justifies.

That's why, if this superb opportunity for vacation home or retirement living appeals to you, we urge you to contact Gladstone, Realtors at your earliest convenience.

Taking a winter vacation? Keep home heating down

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

About this time of year, people begin to think about winter vacations. Every year we receive many letters asking the same question. That is, should the heat be turned off in a house when it's to be left empty for a while?

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My husband has been doing so well with his business these past few years that we've been planning a really luxurious winter vacation.

We expect to be away for three months. Isn't that exciting? In the old days we didn't have the money to do this sort of thing. But now we're going to live it up!

Our question to you is, will it harm the house to shut down the heat while we're gone? Successful as my husband has become, we don't want to return home to find high heating bills when we haven't even been in the house. — LIVING IT UP.

It is definitely not a good idea to turn off the heat in a house that is occupied vear round. When a house remains unheated during cold weather, it often results in wallpaper loosening, swelling of floors, moisture seeping into the woodwork, doors sticking, etc.

Many other things can happen when heat is shut down. If you plan to be away for three months, lower your theremostat to 55 or 60 degrees. In this way you will protect your house, and yet your heating bills will not be so high.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I hired a local carpenter to install several new doors at my house. He installed a new front door, and then installed three interior doors. The work took about two days. After he finished, he presented me with a large bill and left.

When I inspected the work, I noticed he put three hinges on the front door, but only two on the new inside doors he had installed. I think he is cheating me. If it took three hinges to do a good, workmanlike job on the front door, why did he only put two hinges on the bedrooms?

I told him I won't pay the bill unless he comes back and installs the extra hinge. Do you think I am doing the right thing? — UNHINGES.

No, you are not. An exterior door such as a front door weighs much more than an interior door. Most interior doors are hollow. The number of hinges required is truly governed by the weight of the door. That is why a heavy front door requires a pair and a half of hinges, while an interior hollow door can be hung with only a pair.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: We found a house we love, but haven't signed the agreement of sale yet. Here's the problem.

The owner of the house promised to redo the kitchen, which is really a disaster. The rest of the house is lovely. I think the lady of the house must have been very sloppy. The dishwasher is all banged up. The sink has big cracks in it, etc.

As I said, the owner agreed to renovate the kitchen, but refuses to insert this clause in the agreement of sale. He drew himself up to his full height and very haughtily assured me that he is an honest man, and that I shouldn't insult his integrity by making such a suggestion.

Shall we trust him, or shall we continue to insist that everything be spelled out in the agreement of sale? — ARE WE SUSPICIOUS?

An honest man, especially one with integrity, should have no objections to inserting a clause in the agreement of sale stating that he will make the kitchen renovations.

I have been around a long time, and it has been my experience that when someone objects to putting a deal in writing, you should question his honesty and integrity.

Don't sign the agreement until everything is spelled out clearly and fully. And don't make settlement until the work is completed.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: In all the years I have been a landlord, nothing lke this has ever happened to me.

I rented an apartment to a single man who seemed very conservative, very well behaved and very considerate. In the year he has lived in it, I have never had occasion to enter it.

Imagine my surprise when he gave notice that he was leaving and I went up to inspect his apartment! He had painted the living room a solid black. I couldn't believe it. When I questioned him, he said he meditates a lot and does yoga — and he finds the black surrounding very restful.

I consulted the painter I normally employ. He looked at the walls and said it would cost double to repaint it because of the black. I told the "crazy" tenant I would take that money from his escrow deposit. His reply was to threaten me.

What recourse do I have? — UNMEDITATING.

Whenever an apartment is rented, it is clearly understood that the tenant will leave the apartment in the same condition he received it. If it will cost you more to have it returned to its original condition, you are entitled to the money from the tenant.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: For years we have lived in our beautiful house and loved it. The only thing that had been a thorn in our side was our basement.

Everything down there was musty and mildewed. We, understandably, had always been reluctant to store anything down there. What puzzled us was that we never had a wet basement. Actually, it's very dry.

Well, after talking with numerous people, we had heat installed in the basement. You guessed it! Now it's perfect. We can't understand why this made such a difference, since the basement was dry to begin with. — WHADDYA THINK?

By installing heat in the basement, the temperature differential between the basement and the upper part of the house is eliminated.

When heat is installed, there is no condensation of moisture on the colder basement floors, walls, etc. As a result, the mildew and mustiness disappear.

Just as simple as that!

Hawks in shakeup! Reay out, White in

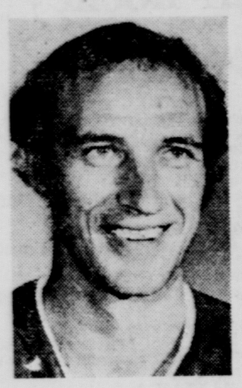
Vet player takes over; Orr, Mikita to help out

Billy Reay, for 13 years coach of the Black Hawks, was fired Wednesday. The slumping club and matching attendance announced his place will be taken for the balance of the season by veteran defenseman Bill White.

The Hawks' announcement, from President William Wirth, made no mention of any plans for Reay, 58. A club spokesman said "he is not in the organization."

White, sidelined this season because of a back injury, will have as his assistants two other injury-plagued veterans, all-star defenseman Bobby Orr, himself idled most of the year with recurring knee problems, and Stan Mikata, veteran center and playmaker, also out most of the year with injuries.

Billy Reay



Bill White

WIRTZ HAD announced the change one day after the Black Hawks tied the Minnesota North Stars, 3-3, to remain winless in their last 11 games. During that period, the Hawks had lost eight times and had three ties. The streak was continued Wednesday night as Buffalo trounced the Hawks, 4-2, to spoil White's coaching debut.

The Black Hawks are in second place in the Conn Smythe division, five points behind St. Louis who played at Colorado late Wednesday night.

White, 37, came to Chicago in the middle of the 1969-70 season from Los Angeles. He has been on five division championship teams with the Hawks. His wife and three daughters live in Park Ridge during the season.

The dean of the NHL coaches, Reay looked forward to a good year with the acquisition of Orr, who signed a multi-year contract in the $2 million range, after leaving the Boston Bruins.

THE HAWKS WON when Orr played at the start of the season. But his knee, operated on five times, has sidelined him in recent weeks.

Mikita expects to be back in the lineup in a week or 10 days, a spokesman said. A first team all-star six times, Mikita, 36, has been with the Hawks for 18 years.

Reay had been expected to serve as coach for the rest of the year, then move up to general manager, with Tommy Ivan being raised to vice president, under a plan announced earlier.

"That was the hope," said spokesman Don Murphy, "but things just haven't worked out."

REAY HAD WON over 500 games in the NHL, almost 40 per cent of all the games the Hawks have won in their 50 years in the league.

Reay played center for the Canadiens for eight seasons and once scored four goals in a playoaff game against the Boston Bruins.

His tenure as a coach with the Hawks, is almost equal to the rest of the coaches in the league.

WILD GOES WILD. Jack Wild of Forest View flips over Al Gasca of York in their 132-pound opening round match at the Prospect Holiday Wrestling Tourney Wednesday day's semifinal competition. Second-round action will unfold in three sessions at 1 p.m., 6 p.m. and the finals at approximately 7:30. York is the defending champion, but Downers Grove North is in command. (Photo by Jim Frost)

Buffalo blackens White's debut

Danny Gare scored two goals and assisted Terry Martin on another to lead red-hot Buffalo to a 4-2 win Wednesday night over the Black Hawks and vault ht Sabres past Boston into first place in the Adams Division of the NHL.

The Hawks, playing their first game under acting coach Bill White, extended their winless streak to 12 games.

The Sabres won their sixth straight game and secured the 21st victory for goalie Gerry Desjardins, now first in the league in wins.

GARE'S FIRST goal came on a power play midway into the first period, after he set up Martin 6:14 into the game. Andre Savard made it 3-0 for the Sabres when he beat goalie Tony Esposito from 15 feet at 18:31 of the second period.

Gare's second goal came 68 seconds later on a rebound of Jerry Korab's hard shot.

For the Hawks, J. P. Bordeleau stole the puck from Buffalo defenseman Bill Hajt and jammed it past Desjardins at 7:17 of the third period. The second Chicago goal came when Bob Murray intercepted Korab's clearing pass with six minutes left and knocked in a 45-footer.

Elsewhere around the NHL Wednesday night, Rod Gilbert and Phil Esposito scored power play goals within a 1:20 span late in the second period to enable the New York Rangers to overcome a two-goal deficit and gain a 3-3 tie against the Philadelphia Flyers.

STEVE VICKERS, who set up both Gilbert and Esposito with perfect passes, also drew an assist on an earlier goal by defenseman Carol Vadnais as the Rangers rallied for all their goals in the second period, when they fired 21 shots at netminder Bernie Parent.

Cleveland forward Bob Murdoch set a team scoring record with his ninth goal in the last seven games to give the Barons a 4-3 victory over the Minnesota North Stars.

WHEN MURDOCH scored on a power play goal in the second period, he set a record for scoring in consecutive games.

Cleveland opened the scoring when Jim Moxey tallied on a shot from just outside the right faceoff circle at 3:31. Minnesota goaltender Pete LoPresti appeared to have been screened from the shot by his own defenseman.

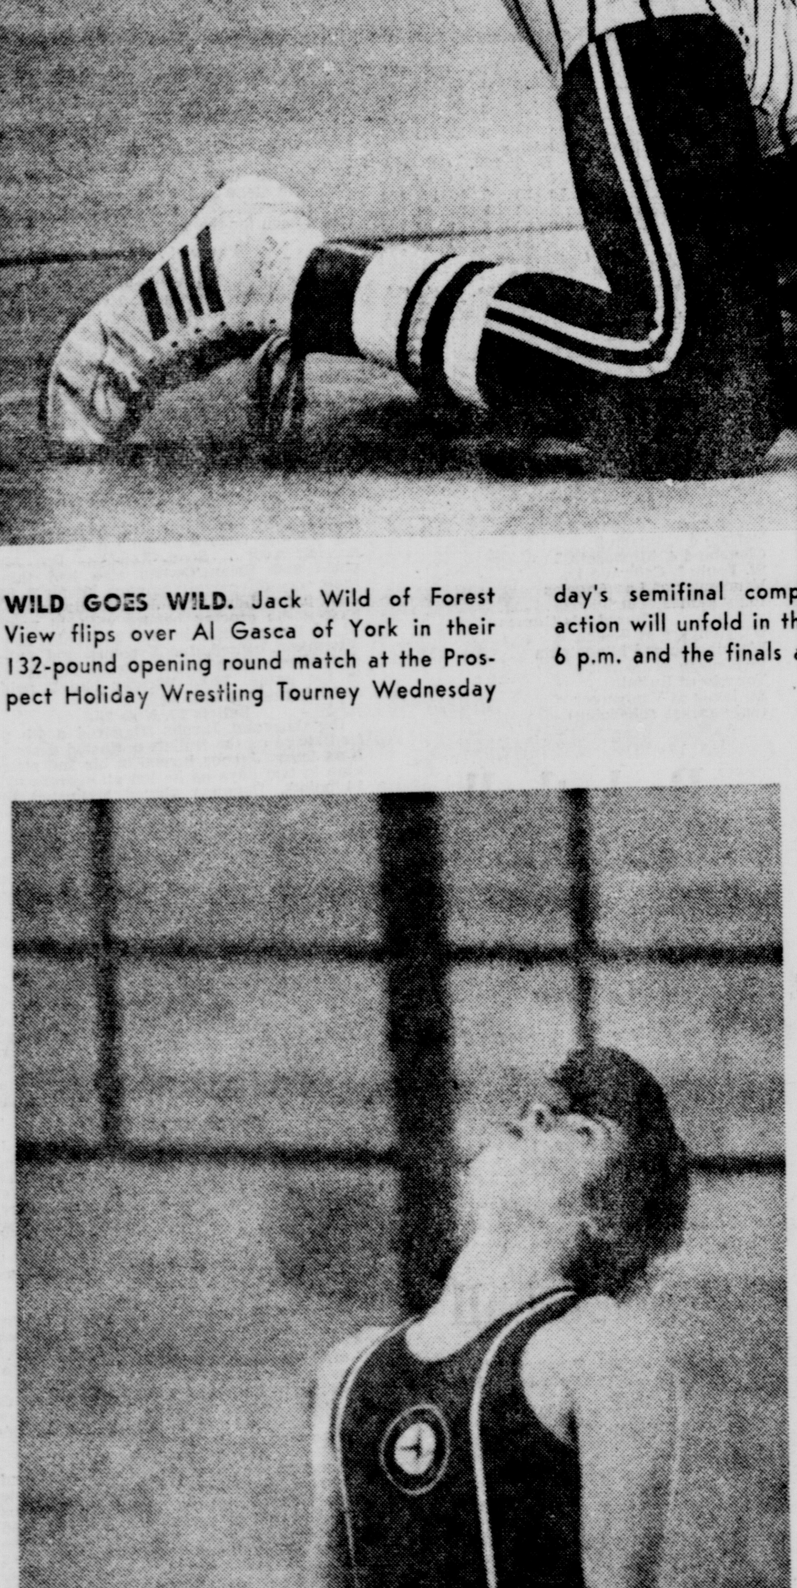
Syl Apps registered a goal and a pair of assists to pace the Pittsburgh Penguins to a 5-2 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Apps' ninth goal of the season at 1:11 was the only score of the opening period as he beat goalie Wayne Thomas on a low drive from inside the blue line.

Toronto fired 22 shots on goal in the second period at Pittsburgh's Dunc Wilson but the Penguins' 14 shots were more effective.

WILLIE PLETT won two rousing first period fights and then scored the first goal of the game Wednesday night to start the Atlanta Flames off to a 2-1 win over Detroit.

Plett drilled in a 25-foot shot from the middle after Rey Comeau fed him a pass from the left boards in the final minute of the first period for the game's first goal. It was the 11th goal in the 19 NHL games played by the big rookie.



GLENN JOHNSON of Rolling Meadows took second on the trampoline at the Maine East Invitational Saturday with a score of 8.20.

Forest View heads all-MSL volleyball team

Mid-Suburban League champion Forest View led the balloting by placing three selections on the 11-member all-conference volleyball team.

In voting conducted by the MSL coaches Monday night, Forest View's Debbie Brinkman, Lori Frighetto and Nancy Lancaster all were named to the elite team.

Runnerup Buffalo Grove placed Michelle Smithern and Deb Underwood on the squad and Schaumburg matched the twin choices with Laurie Minarcik and Kathy Svoboda.

Landing one player each were Prospect's Jeannine Hahn, Rolling Meadows' Pam Klein, Sandy Ohmerod of Fremd and Karen Zobel of Arlington.

Trojans advance 10 wrestlers in Prospect tourney

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Downers Grove North posted 10 triumphs in 12 bouts to take a commanding first-round lead in the Prospect Holiday Wrestling Tournament Wednesday.

The Trojans notched semifinalists in all weights but 98 and 138 while compiling 51½ points in the opening session of the 18th annual meet. That allowed them a comfortable 14-point lead over defending champ York and a 14½ point span over new entry Highland Park.

Downers Grove swept off with top honors in the tourney two years ago.

FOREST VIEW collected 30 points behind six triumphs to move into fourth place on opening night. Falcon winners were Mike Lucansky at 98, Jeff Lowe at 112, Kelly Martin at 119, Jack Wild at 132, Wally Jones at 145 and Lon Reitz at 185.

Lucansky, Martin and Jones all won by fall. Unbeaten Reitz had to come from behind to forge a 9-7 nod over John Dorman of Maine South.

The rest of the field had Maine North fifth with 23½ points, Maine South with 22, Prospect with 14 and Niles West with nine.

"We're in a mid-season slump," shrugged Knight coach Darryl Phillips, who counted among his setbacks a 9-5 loss absorbed by defending tourney champ Terry Reed at 145. Prospect winners Wednesday were Todd Doney at 155, Dick Paulus at 167 and returning champ Carl Schimmelman by pin at 185.

NILES WEST'S points were acquired, as expected, by the Porter brothers. Bill Porter, who won at 112 last year, opened with an impressive 16-1 victory at 119 while Bob triumphed at 112. Both will face Forest View entries in the semis.

Other defending champs posting leadoff wins were DGN's Noel Carter, up from 98 to 119 and Jim Farina of the Dukes up from 126 to 138.

Three grapplers who were runners-up in the 1975 Prospect tourney also opened with triumphs including Reitz. Steve Mikos of the Hawks won 6-2 at 155 and will now face a strong foe in Dave Geise of Highland Park.

MARK AMBROSE of York, who lost to Schimmelman in the 167-pound finals last winter, won 5-2 Wednesday to earn a semifinal rematch Wednesday against the same Knight.

The second round of competition will begin at 1 p.m. today and consolation action starts at 6 p.m. with the finals expected to start about one and a half hours later.

Hawks in shakeup! Reay out, White in

Vet player takes over; Orr, Mikita to help out

Billy Reay, for 13 years coach of the Black Hawks, was fired Wednesday. The slumping club and matching attendance announced his place will be taken for the balance of the season by veteran defenseman Bill White.

The Hawks' announcement, from President William Wirth, made no mention of any plans for Reay, 58. A club spokesman said "he is not in the organization."

White, sidelined this season because of a back injury, will have as his assistants two other injury-plagued veterans, all-star defenseman Bobby Orr, himself idled most of the year with recurring knee problems, and Stan Mikata, veteran center and playmaker, also out most of the year with injuries.

Bill White

WIRTZ HAD announced the change one day after the Black Hawks tied the Minnesota North Stars, 3-3, to remain winless in their last 11 games. During that period, the Hawks had lost eight times and had three ties. The streak was continued Wednesday night as Buffalo trounced the Hawks, 4-2, to spoil White's coaching debut.

The Black Hawks are in second place in the Conn Smythe division, five points behind St. Louis who played at Colorado late Wednesday night.

White, 37, came to Chicago in the middle of the 1969-70 season from Los Angeles. He has been on five division championship teams with the Hawks. His wife and three daughters live in Park Ridge during the season.

The dean of the NHL coaches, Reay looked forward to a good year with the acquisition of Orr, who signed a multi-year contract in the $2 million range, after leaving the Boston Bruins.

THE HAWKS WON when Orr played at the start of the season. But his knee, operated on five times, has sidelined him in recent weeks.

Mikita expects to be back in the lineup in a week or 10 days, a spokesman said. A first team all-star six times, Mikita, 36, has been with the Hawks for 18 years.

Reay had been expected to serve as coach for the rest of the year, then move up to general manager, with Tommy Ivan being raised to vice president, under a plan announced earlier.

"That was the hope," said spokesman Don Murphy, "but things just haven't worked out."

REAY HAD WON over 500 games in the NHL, almost 40 per cent of all the games the Hawks have won in their 50 years in the league.

Reay played center for the Canadiens for eight seasons and once scored four goals in a playoaff game against the Boston Bruins.

His tenure as a coach with the Hawks, is almost equal to the rest of the coaches in the league.

Buffalo blackens White's debut

Danny Gare scored two goals and assisted Terry Martin on another to lead red-hot Buffalo to a 4-2 win Wednesday night over the Black Hawks and vault ht Sabres past Boston into first place in the Adams Division of the NHL.

The Hawks, playing their first game under acting coach Bill White, extended their winless streak to 12 games.

The Sabres won their sixth straight game and secured the 21st victory for goalie Gerry Desjardins, now first in the league in wins.

GARE'S FIRST goal came on a power play midway into the first period, after he set up Martin 6:14 into the game. Andre Savard made it 3-0 for the Sabres when he beat goalie Tony Esposito from 15 feet at 18:31 of the second period.

Gare's second goal came 68 seconds later on a rebound of Jerry Korab's hard shot.

For the Hawks, J. P. Bordeleau stole the puck from Buffalo defenseman Bill Hajt and jammed it past Desjardins at 7:17 of the third period. The second Chicago goal came when Bob Murray intercepted Korab's clearing pass with six minutes left and knocked in a 45-footer.

Elsewhere around the NHL Wednesday night, Rod Gilbert and Phil Esposito scored power play goals within a 1:20 span late in the second period to enable the New York Rangers to overcome a two-goal deficit and gain a 3-3 tie against the Philadelphia Flyers.

STEVE VICKERS, who set up both Gilbert and Esposito with perfect passes, also drew an assist on an earlier goal by defenseman Carol Vadnais as the Rangers rallied for all their goals in the second period, when they fired 21 shots at netminder Bernie Parent.

Cleveland forward Bob Murdoch set a team scoring record with his ninth goal in the last seven games to give the Barons a 4-3 victory over the Minnesota North Stars.

WHEN MURDOCH scored on a power play goal in the second period, he set a record for scoring in consecutive games.

Cleveland opened the scoring when Jim Moxey tallied on a shot from just outside the right faceoff circle at 3:31. Minnesota goaltender Pete LoPresti appeared to have been screened from the shot by his own defenseman.

Syl Apps registered a goal and a pair of assists to pace the Pittsburgh Penguins to a 5-2 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Apps' ninth goal of the season at 1:11 was the only score of the opening period as he beat goalie Wayne Thomas on a low drive from inside the blue line.

Toronto fired 22 shots on goal in the second period at Pittsburgh's Dunc Wilson but the Penguins' 14 shots were more effective.

WILLIE PLETT won two rousing first period fights and then scored the first goal of the game Wednesday night to start the Atlanta Flames off to a 2-1 win over Detroit.

Plett drilled in a 25-foot shot from the middle after Rey Comeau fed him a pass from the left boards in the final minute of the first period for the game's first goal. It was the 11th goal in the 19 NHL games played by the big rookie.

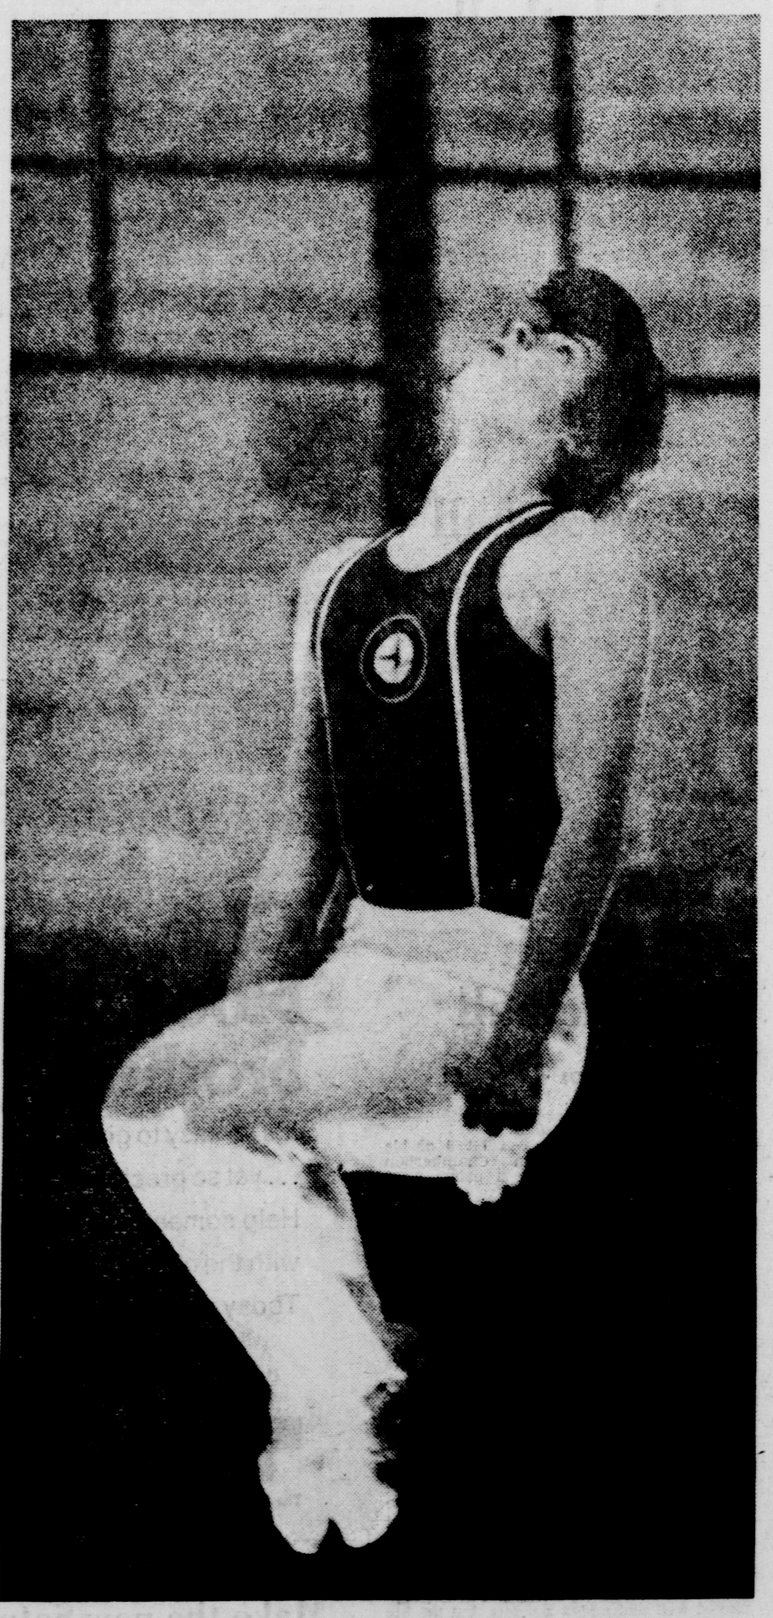
Forest View heads all-MSL volleyball team

Mid-Suburban League champion Forest View led the balloting by placing three selections on the 11-member all-conference volleyball team.

In voting conducted by the MSL coaches Monday night, Forest View's Debbie Brinkman, Lori Frighetto and Nancy Lancaster all were named to the elite team.

Runnerup Buffalo Grove placed Michelle Smithern and Deb Underwood on the squad and Schaumburg matched the twin choices with Laurie Minarcik and Kathy Svoboda.

Landing one player each were Prospect's Jeannine Hahn, Rolling Meadows' Pam Klein, Sandy Ohmerod of Fremd and Karen Zobel of Arlington.



GLENN JOHNSON of Rolling Meadows took second on the trampoline at the Maine East Invitational Saturday with a score of 8.20.

Downers Grove North posted 10 triumphs in 12 bouts to take a commanding first-round lead in the Prospect Holiday Wrestling Tournament Wednesday.

The Trojans notched semifinalists in all weights but 98 and 138 while compiling 51½ points in the opening session of the 18th annual meet. That allowed them a comfortable 14-point lead over defending champ York and a 14½ point span over new entry Highland Park.

Downers Grove swept off with top honors in the tourney two years ago.

FOREST VIEW collected 30 points behind six triumphs to move into fourth place on opening night. Falcon winners were Mike Lucansky at 98, Jeff Lowe at 112, Kelly Martin at 119, Jack Wild at 132, Wally Jones at 145 and Lon Reitz at 185.

Lucansky, Martin and Jones all won by fall. Unbeaten Reitz had to come from behind to forge a 9-7 nod over John Dorman of Maine South.

The rest of the field had Maine North fifth with 23½ points, Maine South with 22, Prospect with 14 and Niles West with nine.

"We're in a mid-season slump," shrugged Knight coach Darryl Phillips, who counted among his setbacks a 9-5 loss absorbed by defending tourney champ Terry Reed at 145. Prospect winners Wednesday were Todd Doney at 155, Dick Paulus at 167 and returning champ Carl Schimmelman by pin at 185.

NILES WEST'S points were acquired, as expected, by the Porter brothers. Bill Porter, who won at 112 last year, opened with an impressive 16-1 victory at 119 while Bob triumphed at 112. Both will face Forest View entries in the semis.

Jones named AFC's Player of the Year

NEW YORK — Bert Jones, the talented young quarterback who stood up for his coach last summer and solidified the Baltimore Colts into a title contender, Wednesday was named United Press International's Player of the Year in the American Football Conference.

Jones, a 6-foot-3, 215-pounder from Louisiana State, came to the forefront when Coach Ted Marchibroda was fired after an exhibition game loss. Jones interceded with management for Marchibroda's rehiring and then went out and led the Colts to an 11-3 record and the AFC Eastern Division title.

He finished the regular season with 207 completions in 343 attempts, good for a 60.3 percentage. He passed for a league high 3,104 yards and his 24 touchdown passes were second only to Oakland's Ken Stabler.

Jones was named on 28 of the 42 ballots cast by UPI's panel of 42 pro football writers, three from each conference city. Stabler was the runnerup with six votes while New England quarterback Steve Grogan and Baltimore running back Lydell Mitchell tied for third with three votes each.

Alabama, Louisville, Maryland roll

Kevin Looney sank two free throws with 10 seconds left to give fourth-ranked Alabama a 66-64 triumph over No. 20 Georgetown and Jim Graziano poured in 30 points to lead South Carolina past Harvard, 71-63, in the first round of the Carolina Classic.

Larry Williams' 17 points and 16 rebounds helped 13th-ranked Louisville withstand Chattanooga's swarming defense and downed the scrappy Moccasins, 81-71. Herm Harris and big Bob Elliott scored 22 points apiece to lead 14th-ranked Arizona to an 85-76 victory over Purdue.

Steve Sheppard scored 22 points as Maryland outshot, outrebounded and outran Bucknell to post an easy 106-72 victory. Three free throws in the final seconds boosted Nebraska to a 64-61 victory over Mankato State.

All-Star grid contest gets new life

WASHINGTON — The Washington Star is bidding to bring football's College All-Star game to the nation's capital now that it has been dropped by its Chicago sponsor, according to publisher Joe L. Allbritton.

"The Star is very intersted in bringing the All-Star game to Washington if possible," Allbritton said in a statement. "We think it would be a good attraction for the Washington community." He said proceeds would go to charity and added: "We will proceed with talks with (NFL Commissioner) Pete Rozelle."

Chicago Tribune Charities announced that it would no longer sponsor the annual contest between the NFL Super Bowl championship team against a squad of the previous year's college stars mainly because of rising costs. The announcement also cited the uncertainty of pro football's draft as it applied to the status of the all-stars needed for the game.

Satra claims Olympic TV rights

MOSCOW — Satra, a Soviet-American trade corporation based in New York, confirmed Wednesday it has signed a "cooperation agreement" with the Soviet Olympic Committee for U.S. television rights to the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow.

While a Soviet spokesman said, "the rights have not been sold to anyone," and that his committee would continue negotiating with the three major U.S. networks, Carl Longley Jr., Satra's Moscow representative, claimed the Soviets had provisionally awarded the rights to his firm.

Longley said the agreement involved a "flexible" price but refused to disclose the sums involved until approved by the International Olympic Committee. Network officials in New York refused to comment on Satra's claim.

Satra has done business with the Soviets for the past 25 years, involving worldwide marketing of such Soviet-produced goods as automobiles, tractors, motorcycles and industrial machinery.

Pilot links engine trouble to crash

BALTIMORE — The pilot whose plane crashed into Memorial Stadium after the Colts-Steelers game told a Maryland District Court judge Wednesday that he landed his plane plagued with engine failure in the safest place he could find.

Donald Kroner, 33, told Northern District Court Judge Harold Lewis that he faced a choice of landing in the street near the stadium or in the infield where fans were milling about.

Kroner appeared for his bail hearing and arraingment in the same bloodied shirt he wore when his plane slammed into the stadium about 10 minutes after the playoff game Sunday. After the court proceedings, Kroner was taken to City Hospital where he will undergo a 72-hour psychiatric evaluation at the state's request.

Beaten Hawks next for hot Bulls

From Herald Wire Services

Bob Lanier's 20 points and Kevin Porter's 14 points and 14 assists paced the Detroit Pistons to their eighth victory in the last 10 contests Wednesday night in a 107-94 win over the injury-riddled Atlanta Hawks. The Hawks invade the Stadium against the Bulls tonight.

The Hawks, playing without Geoff Petrie, Steve Hawes and leading scorer John Drew, fell quickly behind, 30-20 after the first period and 55-43 at halftime.

The Pistons boosted their margin to 88-68 after three periods and never faltered. Six Detroit players in all scored in double figures.

ATLANTA, LOSERS of four out of its last five games, was paced by Joe Meriweather's 27 points.

M. L. Carr netted 16 points and Howard Porter 15 to support Detroit's attack. Rookie center Leon Douglas had a career rebounding high with 17.

The Pistons raised their season record to 19-13, 11 of the victories coming on their home court.

In other NBA games Wednesday night, rookie guard John Lucas scored 18 points and former ABA star Moses Malone dominated the backboards with 18 rebounds to lead the Houston Rockets to an easy 111-90 win over the Washington Bullets.

HOUSTON'S Calvin Murphy scored 18 points and Malone added 17, but the high scorer for the game was Washington's Elvin Hayes who hit 22.

Washington crept to a six-point deficit early in the third quarter, but Lucas scored on a 22-foot jumpshot and Malone scored a slam-dunk off a Lucas pass to widen the margin. The Bullets never moved closer than nine points the rest of the game.

The game was televised back to the Washington region, the home area for Lucas, the Maryland All-America. Lucas hit his first nine shots of the game and the only one he missed was a driving layup which Hayes blocked.

Malone's 11 rebounds in the first half was two short of tying Washington's total. His 18 for the game fell three short of his game high this season.

AL SKINNER and John Williamson combined to score 43 points and render New Orleans' Pete Maravich ineffective on offense to snap the New York Nets' seven game losing streak at home with a 127-93 victory over the Jazz.

Skinner finished with 22 points and Williamson 21, but their chief contribution was a defensive performance against Maravich, the NBA's leading scorer. Although Maravich finished with a team-high 22 points, he shot less than 40 per cent from the floor.

Jan van Breda Kolff, whose father was fired as the Jazz' coach seven games ago, had 15 points for the Nets and Rich Jones added 16.

The Nets had a 59-41 halftime lead and the rout continued through the second half.

The Hawks had too much of everything as they romped to an easy win over the Kings and evened their seasonal record at 3 and 3. Stars were many as Jay Spurr and Bryan Halpern cleaned the boards at both ends of the court. The Kings couldn't get inside as Chris Knoeppel and Mark Berry were tough on defense. Pat O'Rilley played well and added 2 points, but the big story was Jay Spurr with 8 points, Bryan Halpern's blocking 4 shots, and Urbain's superior passing.

5th GRADE

Bulls 26, Warriors 8

The Bulls defeated the Warriors 26-8 for a 3-1 league record and a 4-2 seasonal record. The easy win was credited to a strong defensive team effort. Rich Hay and Larry Griffin both had a super game offensively as they contributed 5 points each. Pete Drevline, Paul Peterson, Mark Velisek, Steve Newland, and Stefani all got into the scoring act for the winners. The Warriors Scott Heinrich led his team in scoring with 4 pints and Steve Satek did a good job reboudning as teammate Dave Baum contributed a strong defensive effort in a losing cause.

St. Marks 21, Knicks 11

Lakers 18, Celtics 12

The Laker scoring was divided between Scott Stoller with 6 points, John Tully with 5, and Mark Krueger with 4. The winners broke the game wide open in the 4th quarter as Benton directed traffic and played an outstanding floor game helping the Lakers score a come-from-behind win.

Rockets 31, Capitols 30

Neither team could pull away and the contest was in doubt to the end as the Capitols' Kuhon, Baum, Ambrose, and Brohm all contributed outstanding offensive games only to fall short at the final whistle. Puckhaber and Marcillo helped to keep things close by playing outstanding defense. The Rockets were lead offensively by Leydon with 6 points. Gaul, Potter, Nill, and Gebo had 4 each. Veternik hit for 3, and Rood, Joy, Crise, and Gleason all had 2 each for the winners.

NATIONAL GUARD. Nate Davis, South Carolina guard, sweeps the boards during Gamecocks' 71-63 triumph over Harvard Wednesday night. Former Conant High School grad Steve Irion had a dozen for the losers.

Jones named AFC's Player of the Year

NEW YORK — Bert Jones, the talented young quarterback who stood up for his coach last summer and solidified the Baltimore Colts into a title contender, Wednesday was named United Press International's Player of the Year in the American Football Conference.

Jones, a 6-foot-3, 215-pounder from Louisiana State, came to the forefront when Coach Ted Marchibroda was fired after an exhibition game loss. Jones interceded with management for Marchibroda's rehiring and then went out and led the Colts to an 11-3 record and the AFC Eastern Division title.

He finished the regular season with 207 completions in 343 attempts, good for a 60.3 percentage. He passed for a league high 3,104 yards and his 24 touchdown passes were second only to Oakland's Ken Stabler.

Jones was named on 28 of the 42 ballots cast by UPI's panel of 42 pro football writers, three from each conference city. Stabler was the runnerup with six votes while New England quarterback Steve Grogan and Baltimore running back Lydell Mitchell tied for third with three votes each.

Alabama, Louisville, Maryland roll

Kevin Looney sank two free throws with 10 seconds left to give fourth-ranked Alabama a 66-64 triumph over No. 20 Georgetown and Jim Graziano poured in 30 points to lead South Carolina past Harvard, 71-63, in the first round of the Carolina Classic.

Larry Williams' 17 points and 16 rebounds helped 13th-ranked Louisville withstand Chattanooga's swarming defense and downed the scrappy Moccasins, 81-71. Herm Harris and big Bob Elliott scored 22 points apiece to lead 14th-ranked Arizona to an 85-76 victory over Purdue.

Steve Sheppard scored 22 points as Maryland outshot, outrebounded and outran Bucknell to post an easy 106-72 victory. Three free throws in the final seconds boosted Nebraska to a 64-61 victory over Mankato State.

All-Star grid contest gets new life

WASHINGTON — The Washington Star is bidding to bring football's College All-Star game to the nation's capital now that it has been dropped by its Chicago sponsor, according to publisher Joe L. Allbritton.

"The Star is very intersted in bringing the All-Star game to Washington if possible," Allbritton said in a statement. "We think it would be a good attraction for the Washington community." He said proceeds would go to charity and added: "We will proceed with talks with (NFL Commissioner) Pete Rozelle."

Chicago Tribune Charities announced that it would no longer sponsor the annual contest between the NFL Super Bowl championship team against a squad of the previous year's college stars mainly because of rising costs. The announcement also cited the uncertainty of pro football's draft as it applied to the status of the all-stars needed for the game.

Satra claims Olympic TV rights

MOSCOW — Satra, a Soviet-American trade corporation based in New York, confirmed Wednesday it has signed a "cooperation agreement" with the Soviet Olympic Committee for U.S. television rights to the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow.

While a Soviet spokesman said, "the rights have not been sold to anyone," and that his committee would continue negotiating with the three major U.S. networks, Carl Longley Jr., Satra's Moscow representative, claimed the Soviets had provisionally awarded the rights to his firm.

Longley said the agreement involved a "flexible" price but refused to disclose the sums involved until approved by the International Olympic Committee. Network officials in New York refused to comment on Satra's claim.

Satra has done business with the Soviets for the past 25 years, involving worldwide marketing of such Soviet-produced goods as automobiles, tractors, motorcycles and industrial machinery.

Pilot links engine trouble to crash

BALTIMORE — The pilot whose plane crashed into Memorial Stadium after the Colts-Steelers game told a Maryland District Court judge Wednesday that he landed his plane plagued with engine failure in the safest place he could find.

Donald Kroner, 33, told Northern District Court Judge Harold Lewis that he faced a choice of landing in the street near the stadium or in the infield where fans were milling about.

Kroner appeared for his bail hearing and arraingment in the same bloodied shirt he wore when his plane slammed into the stadium about 10 minutes after the playoff game Sunday. After the court proceedings, Kroner was taken to City Hospital where he will undergo a 72-hour psychiatric evaluation at the state's request.

Beaten Hawks next for hot Bulls

From Herald Wire Services

Bob Lanier's 20 points and Kevin Porter's 14 points and 14 assists paced the Detroit Pistons to their eighth victory in the last 10 contests Wednesday night in a 107-94 win over the injury-riddled Atlanta Hawks. The Hawks invade the Stadium against the Bulls tonight.

The Hawks, playing without Geoff Petrie, Steve Hawes and leading scorer John Drew, fell quickly behind, 30-20 after the first period and 55-43 at halftime.

The Pistons boosted their margin to 88-68 after three periods and never faltered. Six Detroit players in all scored in double figures.

ATLANTA, LOSERS of four out of its last five games, was paced by Joe Meriweather's 27 points.

M. L. Carr netted 16 points and Howard Porter 15 to support Detroit's attack. Rookie center Leon Douglas had a career rebounding high with 17.

The Pistons raised their season record to 19-13, 11 of the victories coming on their home court.

In other NBA games Wednesday night, rookie guard John Lucas scored 18 points and former ABA star Moses Malone dominated the backboards with 18 rebounds to lead the Houston Rockets to an easy 111-90 win over the Washington Bullets.

HOUSTON'S Calvin Murphy scored 18 points and Malone added 17, but the high scorer for the game was Washington's Elvin Hayes who hit 22.

Washington crept to a six-point deficit early in the third quarter, but Lucas scored on a 22-foot jumpshot and Malone scored a slam-dunk off a Lucas pass to widen the margin. The Bullets never moved closer than nine points the rest of the game.

The game was televised back to the Washington region, the home area for Lucas, the Maryland All-America. Lucas hit his first nine shots of the game and the only one he missed was a driving layup which Hayes blocked.

Malone's 11 rebounds in the first half was two short of tying Washington's total. His 18 for the game fell three short of his game high this season.

AL SKINNER and John Williamson combined to score 43 points and render New Orleans' Pete Maravich ineffective on offense to snap the New York Nets' seven game losing streak at home with a 127-93 victory over the Jazz.

Skinner finished with 22 points and Williamson 21, but their chief contribution was a defensive performance against Maravich, the NBA's leading scorer. Although Maravich finished with a team-high 22 points, he shot less than 40 per cent from the floor.

Jan van Breda Kolff, whose father was fired as the Jazz' coach seven games ago, had 15 points for the Nets and Rich Jones added 16.

The Nets had a 59-41 halftime lead and the rout continued through the second half.

Hall of Fame selections always bring out prejudice

NEW YORK (UPI) — What constitutes prejudice? People hear the word and automatically associate it with race or religion. But prejudice can pertain to many other things. The general definition is preconceived judgment or opinion, about anything, and in that context, I confess I'm guilty of prejudice every time I'm asked to vote for my selections for Baseball's Hall of Fame.

Now I know I'm not supposed to allow my personal feelings to get in the way. All I'm being asked to do by the Baseball Writers' Assn. of America is vote for anywhere from one to 10 candidates I feel should be elected, but how would it be humanly possible for me or anybody else to vote for anyone without this preconceived judgment or opinion?

Prejudice has come to be a dirty word but the truth is nobody really is completely free from it. Everybody is prejudiced in some way or another, to some degree, whether he admits it or not.

WHEN IT COMES time to elect the President of the United States, do you vote for the man you like or the man you don't like? I know what you're going to say: You're supposed to vote for the one you think will do the best job, but nine out of 10 times that turns out to be the man you like, not the one you don't like.

Whom do you choose as a friend? The individual you like, naturally. Whom do you marry? Certainly not the person you don't like. Personal experience, opinion and judgment all contribute to the way you feel about anybody or anything, and call it what you like, it's still prejudice of sorts.

Put simply, I'm prejudiced in behalf of practically all 34 candidates eligible for the 1977 Hall of Fame election. I've seen them all play baseball, on good days and bad, and most of them are personal friends. Still I try not to let that influence me more than I can help.

THE 1977 list of eligibles for the Hall of Fame is in front of me now and there are any number of candidates I'm tempted to vote for. Men like Don Drysdale, George Kell, Mickey Vernon, Harvey Kuenn, Vic Wertz, Roger Maris, Bill White, Ted Kluszewski, Elston Howard, Don Larsen, Walker Cooper, Alvin Dark, Dick Groat, Bobby Thomson, Richie Ashburn, Camilo Pascual and the late Gil Hodges.

Frankly, I'm tempted to vote for as many as I can, all of them if I could, but I won't because in my heart, as well as in my judgment, I don't honestly believe they are Hall of Famers. I could easily be wrong — I haven't made a mistake in the last 30 seconds — but this is my feeling and, I'm stuck with it.

Those I feel should be elected to the Hall of Fame next month are Ernie Banks, Eddie Mathews, the late Nellie Fox, Pee Wee Reese and Duke Snider, and they are the five I'm voting for.

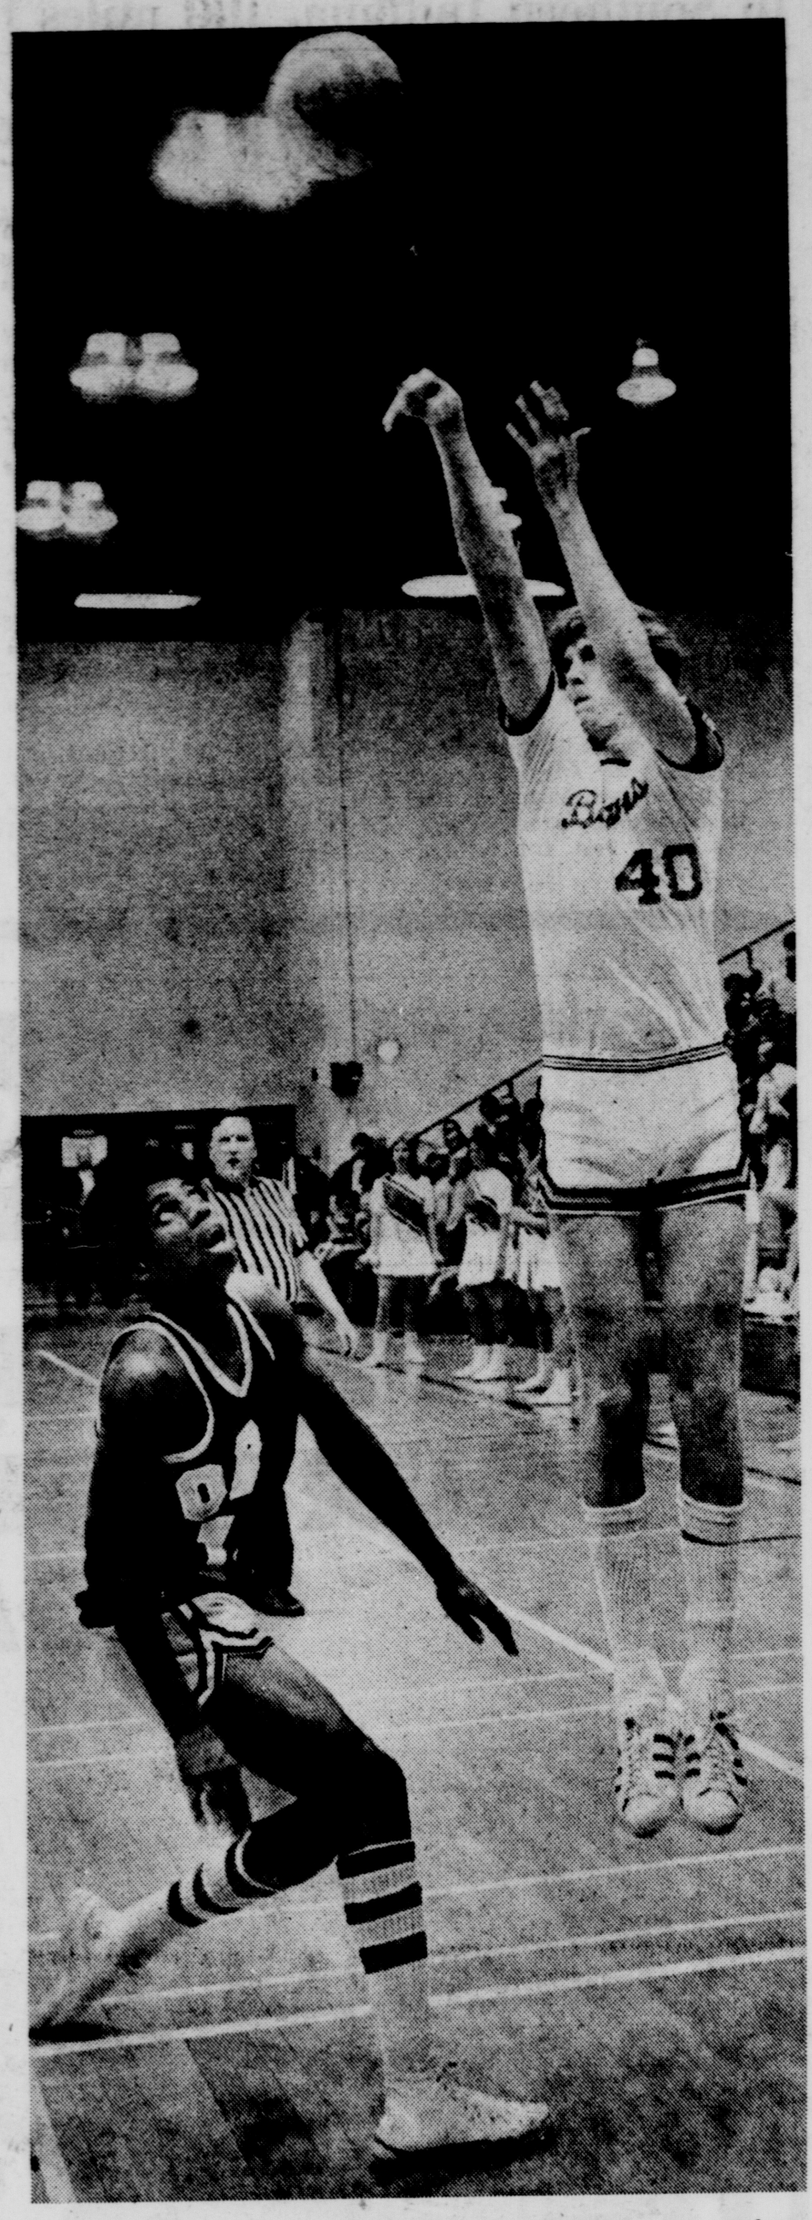
IT BOTHERS ME to leave off fine candidates like Kuenn, Vernon, Kell, Drysdale and Hodges because I'm complete familiar with all their credentials and I know an excellent case can be made for each of them.

The voting rules do not define what constitutes a legitimate Hall of Famer. In one sense that's good because it gives the voter ample latitude to exercise his judgment. In another sense it's not good because some voters feel they need more guidelines to make a proper judgment.

Ernie Banks is one of those appearing on the ballot this year for the first time. His 1,636 RBI total, more than any other candidate on the list, and the only other eligible who hit as many homers as he did is Eddie Mathews. Both finished with 512. Only eight players have hit that many and five already are in the Hall of Fame, so that gives you some idea of the achievement. Banks had 2,583 hits and Mathews 2,315, and there is no question in my mind that both belong in Cooperstown.

NOBODY AMONG the present eligibles had more base hits than Nellie Fox. He had 2,663. Would you believe he had even more than Ted Williams? He did, but that's not the reason he gets my vote. One of the reasons he does is because he got more out of his limited ability than any other ballplayer I can think of. He made himself into a standout, the same way Rogers Hornsby did. For years, every time you thought of the Chicago White Sox, you automatically thought of Nellie Fox.

The records of Pee Wee Reese and Duke snider stand up to any inspection. To appreciate them to their fullest, though, you had to see them play. What a treat you missed if you never did.



BOMBER BRIAN. Buffalo Grove's Brian Allsmiller flicks in a 20-footer while an Orr defender can only watch in amazement. Allsmiller dropped in a variety of shots totaling 25 points to lead all scorers in a 80-57 Bison romp over the visiting Spartans.

Age no handicap for 69-year-old softball umpire

by BOB GALLAS

Some 42 years ago, Ed Krejcik decided to start umpiring baseball games "for the exercise."

Now, at age 69, the Des Plaines resident is still calling "'em as he sees 'em" in scores of softball games every summer.

Recently honored as "Umpire of the Year," with an award sanctioned by the Umpires Protective Assn. of Chicago, Krejcik was picked from more than 300 Chicago metropolitan umpires.

"I DON'T KNOW how many games I've called through the years, but it's been plenty," said Krejcik, who retired in 1964 as a Chicago policeman, then later worked as a security guard. "I'm a fitness nut and umpiring is great therapy, both physically and mentally."

His summer schedule begins in May and runs through Labor Day. Though he once umpired two games per night, five nights a week, Krejcik's age has forced him to reduce his workload to three or four games per week.

He now umpires only 16-inch softball games, but at one time he called hardball games, including such events as the Pan American Games. "You don't have to cover as much distance in softball," Krejcik explained.

Summer eveings will generally find him somewhere around Rand Park in Des Plaines, where he does most of his umpiring.

THOUGH HE MAY NOT be calling as many games as before, Krejcik has taken up a new sideline — promoting the game of softball and recruiting new umpires.

Some 42 years ago, when Krejcik was a novice umpire, softball was often played under somewhat different circumstances than today.

"It was played indoors in gymnasiums so the distances were shorter," he explained. "Now the pitching distance is longer, and the ball is much more lively."

What is his advice to someone just getting into umpiring?

"YOU HAVE TO know the rules inside and out. If you don't know what you're doing out there you're in trouble," Krejcik said. "And you have to keep control of yourself.

"And above all, don't expect to get rich on your earnings as an umpire."

Moore lands Illinois State job

NORMAL, Ill. (UPI) — Walter A. Moore, former offensive line coach at Notre Dame and Indiana University, Wednesday was named head football coach at Illinois State University

Moore, 52, succeeds Gerry Hart, who resigned at the end of last season after 5 years of coaching. He is at present assistant athletic director at Indiana.

Moore coached 14 seasons in Ohio and Indiana high schools before moving to Notre Dame, where he served 9 years under former coach Ara Parseghian. In his Notre Dame years, in his home town of South Bend, Ind., he coached three undefeated freshman teams and was offensive line coach for the remaining six years.

After Parseghian's retirement at the end of the 1974 season, Moore moved to Indiana, first as offensive line coach under Lee Corso and then as associate athletic director.

As coach of St. Joseph's High School in South Bend, his 7-year record was 48-15-5. His 1964 team won the mythical Indiana High school championship.

Possessor of a B.A. from St. Joseph's College and an M.A. in American history from Indiana U., Moore is married and the father of five.

In Ohio, he was head coach at St. John's High school in Maria Stein, and at Marion Township.

The Midlands Wrestling Championships have once again brought together the best in U.S. amateur wrestling. Over 325 wrestlers and 50 teams will appear in a two-day-mat-affair at Northwestern University's McGaw Hall Dec. 29-30.

Now in its 14th year, the Midlands has established itself as the best amateur wrestling tournament in the United States. Teamwise, six of the top ten and eight of the top 20 teams in the nation, as picked by Amateur Wrestling News, will appear in the year's Midlands. Top teams include: Oklahoma State, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Lehigh, Minnesota, University of Kentucky, Cleveland State and Slippery Rock.

Individually, wrestlers like Olympic medal winner Russ Hellickson and NCAA champions Mike Frick (134), Brad Smith (142) from Hersey, Chuck Yagala (150), Lee Kamp (158), Pat Christianson (167), Chris Campbell (177), Evan Johnson (190), and Jimmy Jackson (HWT) are entered in this year's contest.

Testimony to the tournament's caliber, many a national champion has failed to win a Midlands trophy. And, in four of the past five years, the Midlands team champion has gone on to win the NCAA title.

Trade talk before sale of three Finley players

by ROBERT MACKAY

Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley testified Wednesday he made no efforts to sell three of his star ballplayers and tried to trade them until the day before the major league trading deadline last June 15.

Finley testified for the first time in his appearance before U.S. District Judge Frank McGarr in his suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for $3.5 million.

Kuhn blocked Finley's sale of pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million and pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each.

"I HAD numerous conversations with ball clubs in regard of making trades with players," Finley said.

"At no time was I trying to sell any of my ball players until the day before the deadline (midnight June 15). Prior to that, I tried to trade players for players."

He said he offered Rudi to Boston, New York, Milwaukee, California, Texas, and Cleveland.

ALL THESE offers were for players, he said, and he could not make a deal.

He said he negotiated with Richard O'Connell, Boston Red Sox general manager and executive vice president, offering him either Rudi or Fingers for Fred Lynn, star outfielder.

"About two days before June 15, Mr. O'Connell told me he (Lynn) was definitely off the trading list," Finley said. "Finally he said to me 'Would you be interested in selling Rudi?' I said 'yes . . .' "

FINLEY SAID he offered O'Connell either Rudi or Fingers for $1 million each or both for $2 million. O'Connell, he said, called him back and said he would take both of them.

Finley said he felt he had to trade these players.

"When I began to realize that I had a number of players who appeared to be playing out their options . . . it dawned on me I'd better start trading some of these unsigned players for other players," he said.

He said he did not feel he could sign them.

"ALL OF THEM requested a no-cut, no-trade provision in their contracts," he said.

"These players . . . were beginning to age. The substantial, unjustified salaries at that time would have forced me to pay that in future years even if they weren't producing."

He also said these players did not increase the attendance. He said he had discussed with Kuhn "the past four or five years about the low attendance in the Bay area."

"MONEY TALKS"

A 60-year-old couple bankrupt on $25,000 salary

DONALD F. MORTON PRES.

What do you tell a couple about 60 years of age, no children, who are deep in debt on an annual salary of $25,000?

They have widespread credit obligations totaling $20,000 on which they are able to pay only interest. They are also trying to clear $6,000 owed on their car.

The only asset they have is a $30,000 home which is fully paid for. They ask a financial adviser in his newspaper column if they should sell the home, pay off their debts, and "start all over again in an apartment."

The adviser questions whether selling the home would leave them better off in an apartment, which they would have to obtain at "a bargain to make financial progress." The only thing he does suggest is that the husband have a $100 E bond taken out of his pay every week and used as year-end savings to make a dent in the indebtedness.

He probably would have liked to scold them for their extravagance and mourn their immaturity. Any financial manager would shake his head at a pair who, despite annual income of $25,000, will have absolutely nothing (except the roof over their heads) from their own resources to take care of their now-imminent retirement years and, indeed, have indebtedness exceeding one year's gross income to wipe out before they can even begin to think of putting anything aside for retirement.

These people are not unique. In our business of lending substantial sums to couples interested in purchasing a home, we naturally examine their income and assets, their life styles and financial habits. Some with high incomes cannot understand why their loan applications are denied while others in more modest circumstances are getting ready approval. The answer, obviously, is that some people are good money managers and others are not.

There is no reason why a couple earning $25,000 from "a good job" and apparently many previous years of solid income should not at the age of 60 find themselves with a paid-up home, substantial savings and investments, a pension program, and little if any indebtedness. It's too late for them to start now. A habit or pattern developed earlier in life would have accomplished these goals. Even more, it would have contributed a sense of well-being, a joy that their spendthrift ways have denied them.

Trade talk before sale of three Finley players

FINLEY SAID he offered O'Connell either Rudi or Fingers for $1 million each or both for $2 million. O'Connell, he said, called him back and said he would take both of them.

Finley said he felt he had to trade these players.

"When I began to realize that I had a number of players who appeared to be playing out their options . . . it dawned on me I'd better start trading some of these unsigned players for other players," he said.

He said he did not feel he could sign them.

"ALL OF THEM requested a no-cut, no-trade provision in their contracts," he said.

"These players . . . were beginning to age. The substantial, unjustified salaries at that time would have forced me to pay that in future years even if they weren't producing."

He also said these players did not increase the attendance. He said he had discussed with Kuhn "the past four or five years about the low attendance in the Bay area."

"MONEY TALKS"

A 60-year-old couple bankrupt on $25,000 salary

DONALD F. MORTON PRES.

What do you tell a couple about 60 years of age, no children, who are deep in debt on an annual salary of $25,000?

They have widespread credit obligations totaling $20,000 on which they are able to pay only interest. They are also trying to clear $6,000 owed on their car.

The only asset they have is a $30,000 home which is fully paid for. They ask a financial adviser in his newspaper column if they should sell the home, pay off their debts, and "start all over again in an apartment."

The adviser questions whether selling the home would leave them better off in an apartment, which they would have to obtain at "a bargain to make financial progress." The only thing he does suggest is that the husband have a $100 E bond taken out of his pay every week and used as year-end savings to make a dent in the indebtedness.

He probably would have liked to scold them for their extravagance and mourn their immaturity. Any financial manager would shake his head at a pair who, despite annual income of $25,000, will have absolutely nothing (except the roof over their heads) from their own resources to take care of their now-imminent retirement years and, indeed, have indebtedness exceeding one year's gross income to wipe out before they can even begin to think of putting anything aside for retirement.

These people are not unique. In our business of lending substantial sums to couples interested in purchasing a home, we naturally examine their income and assets, their life styles and financial habits. Some with high incomes cannot understand why their loan applications are denied while others in more modest circumstances are getting ready approval. The answer, obviously, is that some people are good money managers and others are not.

There is no reason why a couple earning $25,000 from "a good job" and apparently many previous years of solid income should not at the age of 60 find themselves with a paid-up home, substantial savings and investments, a pension program, and little if any indebtedness. It's too late for them to start now. A habit or pattern developed earlier in life would have accomplished these goals. Even more, it would have contributed a sense of well-being, a joy that their spendthrift ways have denied them.

In Southern Indiana, 100 miles from Bethlehem

You betcha there's a Santa Claus

by United Press International

Yes, children, there is a Santa Claus. It's in Southern Indiana, about 100 miles from Bethlehem. There also is a North Pole — three of them to be exact.

From Oregon's Christmas Valley to Florida's Christmas, from North Pole, Alaska, to North Pole, N.Y. — neighbors help postmasters make the holiday season a bit more special by imprinting their local postmarks on tens of thousands of cards and letters from around the world.

In all, the U.S. postal directory lists nine Bethlehems, four Nazareths, three North Poles, three variations of Christmas, as well as a Mistletoe, Santa Claus and Noel.

AT LEAST three of the post offices — Christmas Valley, Ore.; Nazareth, Tex., and Bethlehem, Ind. — are run out of family grocery stores. Others, such as North Pole, Colo.; North Pole, N.Y., and Santa Claus, Ind., are year-round tourist attractions where mail is handled on an assembly-line basis.

Connecticut's Bethlehem calls itself "The Christmas Town" — but it has competition from Bethlehem, Pa. which refers to itself as "The Christmas City." And then there's "Noel, Mo., the Christmas City in the Ozarks."

Mrs. R. B. Couch, who, with her husband, is postmaster in Mistletoe, Ky., said she gets about 1,000 letters a day during the holiday season.

"The majority of people want it marked Christmas Day, and we oblige them. But it means working all day and night before the holidays," she said.

In Bethlehem, Ind., (population 75) Postmaster Freda Stutesman, who operates the office out of the family grocery store, uses her husband and six children to help cancel each of 10,000 to 12,000 letters three times by hand: Each gets a postmark, a stamp of the three wise men and a stamp of the Star of Bethlehem.

IN THE TINY southwest Missouri town of Noel, Walter Ritter, 87, spends most of December sitting in a blanket-draped chair in the post office lobby, stamping his community's special imprint — an outline of a Christmas tree in green with a star on top — on 10,000 pieces of mail.

The post-marking operation in Noel (prounced "Noll' by its 800 residents) began as a volunteer project by local World War I veterans. Now Ritter is the only one left.

"I sit by a window and often children stand outside and watch — sometimes grownups too," he said. "They tell me I'm doing Santa Claus' work."

If many towns strive for a personal touch, the crush of mail to America's three North Poles has caused Santa's helpers to adapt accordingly.

ALASKA'S NORTH Pole is 15 miles southeast of Fairbanks and Con Miller, head of a concern called Santa Claus House, supervises cancellation of about 80,000 pieces of mail.

"My mail has been getting heavier and heavier," Miller said, adding he is thankful many of the "Dear Santa" letters are diverted by local postal authorities.

Many reach North Pole, Colo., where employes at "Santa's Workshop" — a toystore and souvenir shop at the base of Pike's Peak in Colorado Springs — have been answering children's letters for 20 years.

Like Colorado's version, New York's North Pole, near Lake Placid, also is a tourist attraction called "Santa's Workshop." It, too, gets thousands of letters annually, but the main business is a summer resort complete with workshop, toy maker, candy maker and 38 head of reindeer.

"I sit by a window and often children stand outside and watch — sometimes grownups too," he said. "They tell me I'm doing Santa Claus' work."

If many towns strive for a personal touch, the crush of mail to America's three North Poles has caused Santa's helpers to adapt accordingly.

ALASKA'S NORTH Pole is 15 miles southeast of Fairbanks and Con Miller, head of a concern called Santa Claus House, supervises cancellation of about 80,000 pieces of mail.

"My mail has been getting heavier and heavier," Miller said, adding he is thankful many of the "Dear Santa" letters are diverted by local postal authorities.

Many reach North Pole, Colo., where employes at "Santa's Workshop" — a toystore and souvenir shop at the base of Pike's Peak in Colorado Springs — have been answering children's letters for 20 years.

Like Colorado's version, New York's North Pole, near Lake Placid, also is a tourist attraction called "Santa's Workshop." It, too, gets thousands of letters annually, but the main business is a summer resort complete with workshop, toy maker, candy maker and 38 head of reindeer.

Eulogy notes Daley's love of God and family

by STEVE BROWN

Mayor Richard J. Daley Wednesday was remembered as a man who loved his family and his God to a congregation that knew him more as a political leader.

To a throng of more than 1,000 VIPs, relatives and close friends, the Rev. Gilbert Graham extolled Daley's virtues as a family man and talked about his religious habits.

"No man has ever wanted to die less than Richard Daley. He had so much to live for. But he had no fear of death or its consequences. He was very much at home talking to his God, which he did almost every day in a life of prayer which could well be the envy of any priest or religious," Graham told the mourners, who included President-elect Jimmy Carter and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller.

Saying the family wanted no formal eulogy because that "just wasn't his style," Graham spoke for about 10 minutes about Daley and how his religious beliefs carried over to his public duties.

"In the contents of his wallet, looked at at the time of his death, were his family picture, a small Sacred Heart badge and a dozen well-worn prayers which he used every day to help fulfill his responsibilities."

GRAHAM SAID Daley was known everywhere as a man of power, but he said the power was that of love rather than political power.

"For him public service was a special vocation, Graham said.

"God was so good to him in life and no man appreciated it more. His last days were days of loving preparation of a Christmas he will celebrate with Christ himself.

"God rest this man's beautiful soul," Graham concluded.

A crowd of about 500 persons shivered outside the Nativity of Our Lord Church at 37th Street and Union Avenue, two blocks from Daley's bungalow on Lowe Avenue.

Dignitaries inside the church sat in special sections behind Rockefeller and Carter. The state's two members of the Ford cabinet, Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfeld and Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, sat with U.S. Senators Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; George McGovern, D-S.D.; and Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill.

GOV. DANIEL WALKER and Governor-elect James R. Thompson shared a pew with other state officials.

Behind them sat rows of aldermen, judges and the committeemen of the township and ward political organization which was headed by Daley in his job as chairman of the Democratic party of Cook County.

"It was a very personal service. The fact that there were many people there from both political parties served as a tribute to one of the most unusual civic leaders in the nation," said Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman.

John Morrissey, the Democratic committeeman for Schaumburg Township, said he was struck by the simplicity of the service.

"The lack of pomp and ceremony, the church being rather old, it was all in keeping with the neighborhood and Daley's background," he said.

John Cardinal Cody, archbishop of Chicago, brought a message of condolence from Pope Paul VI and other members of the Catholic hierarchy.

AS MOURNERS left the church following the mass, they paused briefly to allow the pallbearers to remove from the church the brown mahogany casket draped with Chicago's four star flag.

Many city officials, aldermen and politicians gathered at the Bismarck Hotel to travel in a police escorted caravan to the Bridgeport church on the near south side.

THERE WERE FEW trappings to note the significance of the event in the church except for two vases of red roses on the altar and a floral arrangement shaped like the star on a patrolman's badge with the inscription "We love you, Chicago Police Dept."

The service concluded, only the family, a few close relatives and the pallbearers took part in the slow funeral procession, which bypassed expressways to travel on city streets to reach the Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in Worth.

A brief graveside service marked the end of a three-day period, mourning Daley's departure from the city and region he had dominated for more than two decades.

'He did his best, amen'

by JOHN LAMPINEN

The sign hung like an advertisement from the little man's shoulders.

He looked solemnly toward the ground, the crisp wind biting at his face.

Richard Lopez had come all the way from California for this moment. He seemed oblivious to the passersby and photographers who stopped to stare.

"Mayor Daley did his best and let God do the rest — something to remember for ever. Amen. Que en paz descance," (May he rest in peace) the sign said in clumsy, hand-drawn lettering.

ABOVE LOPEZ and the hundreds of spectators standing silently in front of the Nativity of Our Lord Church in Chicago during Richard Daley's funeral Wednesday, a helicopter circled.

They had come early, many before 8 a.m., for the 9:30 mass that began 15 minutes late. In general, the mixed crowd of blacks, Latinos and an assortment of other ethnics talked little.

They offered no cheers or yells as they watched from behind the blue police lines as the Jimmy Carters, Dan Walkers and Jim Thompsons filed into the church.

After the mass started, Lopez took his cardboard sign and moved toward the northwest side of the church where the sound coming from the loudspeakers was better.

He is of Mexican descent, and at the age of 60, he had been active in civil rights for 40 years, acting now as president of the Minority Building Contractors Assn. headquartered in Stockton, Calif.

AS THE SERVICE was broadcast over loudspeakers, he recalled that in 1970, he had been asked to come to Chicago for a day to act as Daley's liaison in an effort to calm the nerves of the city's Latin population.

That was his first meeting with Daley and they had talked only briefly, more or less as an introduction.

"Even though sometimes I get a little militant, I didn't do so with Daley," Lopez said, "because he was trying to cooperate."

The wind cut through the crowd and Lopez stuffed his hands into his pockets and remembered why he came.

"We want to express what we thought of Mayor Daley," he said. "I think he deserved it. What affects Chicago affects the nation."

HE LOOKED at the crowd. They were almost statuesque in their silence. Some held their hats, others covered their faces and others wiped their noses, but it was more because of the bitter cold than out of grief.

The turnout, Lopez observed, said somthing about the man. He made mistakes, he said, but he did his best and when he thought he was right, no one could turn him around.

He spent $284 to fly from Stockton Tuesday, Lopez said. It was something, he said, he just had to do.

"I felt real bad about it, and if I hadn't, I wouldn't have come here," Lopez said. "I'm proud of him because he wanted to solve the problems."

The mass ended and the doors opened. Slowly, clergy, police and firefighters formed a column on the steps of the church and the casket, draped with a flag of the city, was carried down to the hearse.

AFTER A BRIEF pause, the car began to move away.

"This is a man who should be honored," Lopez said.

He then took his sign and raised it and left with the rest of the spectators. He would visit with his son's family and then board a flight back to California Wednesday night. Chicago knew how he felt.

Flavoring Christmas '76

Christmas 1976. In a few short days family and friends will gather for gift-opening and dinner. Here is an offering of tantalizing recipes to help fill out holiday menus.

Plum Pudding Chiffon Pie

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1¼ cups milk
- 3 large eggs, separated
- ½ cup dark brown sugar (packed)
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon mace
- ⅓ cup brandy
- 1 cup whipping cream
- ⅓ cup finely chopped mixed candied fruits
- 1 baked 9-inch pie shell with high fluted rim
- Candied fruits and pecan halves for decoration

Sprinkle gelatin over milk in top of double boiler; let stand 5 minutes. Beat egg yolks lightly. Add yolks, ¼ cup brown sugar, salt and spices to gelatin mixture, and set over boiling water. Cook, stirring constantly, about 10 minutes, until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat — and cool. Stir in brandy. Chill in refrigerator or ice water, stirring occasionally, until mixture begins to thicken and jell. Beat egg whites to soft peaks. Gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup brown sugar, continuing to beat to a stiff meringue. With same beater beat cream stiff. Fold meringue and cream into gelatin mixture. Fold in candied fruits. Chill a few minutes longer, until mixture mounds on a spoon. Turn into pie shell, and chill several hours or overnight. Decorate top with candied fruits and nuts, if desired. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

Pie Shell: Combine 1½ cups sifted allpurpose flour with ¾ teaspoon salt. Cut in ½ cup shortening until particles are size of peas. Sprinkle with about 4 tablespoons cold milk or water, adding just enough to make a stiff dough. Mix lightly with a fork and shape into a ball. Roll on lightly floured board to an 11½-inch circle, and fit into 9-inch pie pan. Trim edges ½ inch wider than edge of pan, and fold under, building up a high rim. Flute edge. Prick bottom and sides with a fork to prevent puffing as pie shell bakes. Bake in very hot oven (450 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes, until browned. Cool before filling. Makes one 9-inch pie shell.

Brandy Champagne Punch

- 12 dried apricots
- 6 dried pear halves
- 3½ cups brandy
- 1 (4/5 quart) bottle chablis
- ⅓ cup granulated sugar
- 1 stick cinnamon
- 12 whole cloves
- 12 whole allspice
- 8 cardamom seeds
- 1½ cups water
- ½ cup brown sugar (packed)
- 1 quart apple juice, chilled
- Ice
- 1 (4/5 quart) bottle champagne, chilled

Cover apricots and pears with water, heat to boiling, and simmer 5 minutes. Drain. Combine ½ cup each brandy and chablis, and granulated sugar. Stir until sugar dissolves. Pour over fruits, cover and chill 24 hours or longer. Combine spices, water and brown sugar, and simmer 10 minutes. Cover and cool. Strain out spices, and chill syrup. Shortly before serving combine fruits and their syrup, spiced syrup, apple juice, remaining 3 cups brandy, the remaining chablis in a large punch bowl with a block of ice or a decorative ice ring. Just before serving add chilled champagne. Makes about 1 gallon.

Ice Ring: To make a decorative ice ring, arrange whole cranberries and lime wedges in bottom of small ring mold, and add about 2 tablespoons water, using just enough water to make a thin ice layer to hold fruits in place. Place in freezer for an hour or 2, until frozen. Add chilled water, a little at a time, to prevent melting ice layer (fruits float out of position if first ice melts). As soon as ice is built up in thick enough layer to cover cranberries, water may be added to fill the mold. Freeze firm.

Brandied Peaches

- 2 (1 pound 13 ounce) cans peach halves
- 1 stick cinnamon
- 1 cup brandy
- Whole cranberry sauce

Drain syrup from peaches into saucepan, add cinnamon stick and boil rapidly 15 minutes. Remove from heat, add brandy and pour over peaches. Let stand 24 hours or longer before serving. Drain peaches, and fill with whole cranberry sauce. Makes 12 to 14 servings.

Brandy-Buttered Roast Turkey

- 1 ready-to-cook turkey, 12 to 14 pounds
- Salt
- Pepper
- Brother Timothy's Turkey Stuffing
- Oil
- ½ cup butter
- ½ cup brandy

Rub body and neck cavities of turkey lightly with salt and pepper. if desired, fill cavities loosely with Brother Timothy's Turkey Stuffing (or stuffing can be baked in covered casserole last hour turkey roasts, if preferred). Skewer openings, tie legs close to body, and turn wing tips back under body. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Brush skin with oil. Roast in moderately slow oven (325 degrees) about 1½ hours, until skin begins to color. Melt butter and add brandy. Baste turkey with brandy-butter about every 20 minutes, continuing to roast about 2 to 2½ hours longer, until drumstick can be moved up and down easily, and fleshy part of drumstick feels very soft and tender when pressed with fingers protected with a folded paper towel. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Brother Timothy's Turkey Stuffing

- 1 (12 ounce) package frozen chopped spinach, thawed
- 1 pound pork sausage meat
- ¼ pound chicken or turkey livers
- 1 cup sausage drippings and butter
- 1 cup chopped onion
- ½ teaspoon rosemary, crumbled
- ½ teaspoon mint flakes
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
- ½ cup chicken broth*
- ½ cup brandy
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 3 quarts soft day-old bread crumbs
- ½ cup toasted blanched almonds
- ⅓ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Drain spinach well, pressing out excess moisture. Brown sausage. Cut livers in small pieces, and add to skillet when sausage is about half cooked. Scoop out meats, and set aside. Measure drippings and butter to measure 1 cup. Add onion, rosemary, mint flakes and nutmeg. Cook slowly until onion is soft but not browned. Add broth, brandy, salt, pepper and spinach. Heat to simmering. Pour over bread, tossing to moisten evenly. Stir in almonds and cheese. Bake in covered casserole in moderately slow oven (325 degrees) about 1 hour (or stuffing may be placed in turkey before roasting, and baked inside the bird). Makes about 2⅓ quarts stuffing.

* Or use ½ cup water and 1 chicken bouillon cube.

Flavoring Christmas '76

Christmas 1976. In a few short days family and friends will gather for gift-opening and dinner. Here is an offering of tantalizing recipes to help fill out holiday menus.

Plum Pudding Chiffon Pie

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1¼ cups milk
- 3 large eggs, separated
- ½ cup dark brown sugar (packed)
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon mace
- ⅓ cup brandy
- 1 cup whipping cream
- ⅓ cup finely chopped mixed candied fruits
- 1 baked 9-inch pie shell with high fluted rim
- Candied fruits and pecan halves for decoration

Sprinkle gelatin over milk in top of double boiler; let stand 5 minutes. Beat egg yolks lightly. Add yolks, ¼ cup brown sugar, salt and spices to gelatin mixture, and set over boiling water. Cook, stirring constantly, about 10 minutes, until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat — and cool. Stir in brandy. Chill in refrigerator or ice water, stirring occasionally, until mixture begins to thicken and jell. Beat egg whites to soft peaks. Gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup brown sugar, continuing to beat to a stiff meringue. With same beater beat cream stiff. Fold meringue and cream into gelatin mixture. Fold in candied fruits. Chill a few minutes longer, until mixture mounds on a spoon. Turn into pie shell, and chill several hours or overnight. Decorate top with candied fruits and nuts, if desired. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

Pie Shell: Combine 1½ cups sifted allpurpose flour with ¾ teaspoon salt. Cut in ½ cup shortening until particles are size of peas. Sprinkle with about 4 tablespoons cold milk or water, adding just enough to make a stiff dough. Mix lightly with a fork and shape into a ball. Roll on lightly floured board to an 11½-inch circle, and fit into 9-inch pie pan. Trim edges ½ inch wider than edge of pan, and fold under, building up a high rim. Flute edge. Prick bottom and sides with a fork to prevent puffing as pie shell bakes. Bake in very hot oven (450 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes, until browned. Cool before filling. Makes one 9-inch pie shell.

Brandy Champagne Punch

- 12 dried apricots
- 6 dried pear halves
- 3½ cups brandy
- 1 (4/5 quart) bottle chablis
- ⅓ cup granulated sugar
- 1 stick cinnamon
- 12 whole cloves
- 12 whole allspice
- 8 cardamom seeds
- 1½ cups water
- ½ cup brown sugar (packed)
- 1 quart apple juice, chilled
- Ice
- 1 (4/5 quart) bottle champagne, chilled

Cover apricots and pears with water, heat to boiling, and simmer 5 minutes. Drain. Combine ½ cup each brandy and chablis, and granulated sugar. Stir until sugar dissolves. Pour over fruits, cover and chill 24 hours or longer. Combine spices, water and brown sugar, and simmer 10 minutes. Cover and cool. Strain out spices, and chill syrup. Shortly before serving combine fruits and their syrup, spiced syrup, apple juice, remaining 3 cups brandy, the remaining chablis in a large punch bowl with a block of ice or a decorative ice ring. Just before serving add chilled champagne. Makes about 1 gallon.

Ice Ring: To make a decorative ice ring, arrange whole cranberries and lime wedges in bottom of small ring mold, and add about 2 tablespoons water, using just enough water to make a thin ice layer to hold fruits in place. Place in freezer for an hour or 2, until frozen. Add chilled water, a little at a time, to prevent melting ice layer (fruits float out of position if first ice melts). As soon as ice is built up in thick enough layer to cover cranberries, water may be added to fill the mold. Freeze firm.

Brandied Peaches

- 2 (1 pound 13 ounce) cans peach halves
- 1 stick cinnamon
- 1 cup brandy
- Whole cranberry sauce

Drain syrup from peaches into saucepan, add cinnamon stick and boil rapidly 15 minutes. Remove from heat, add brandy and pour over peaches. Let stand 24 hours or longer before serving. Drain peaches, and fill with whole cranberry sauce. Makes 12 to 14 servings.

Brandy-Buttered Roast Turkey

- 1 ready-to-cook turkey, 12 to 14 pounds
- Salt
- Pepper
- Brother Timothy's Turkey Stuffing
- Oil
- ½ cup butter
- ½ cup brandy

Rub body and neck cavities of turkey lightly with salt and pepper. if desired, fill cavities loosely with Brother Timothy's Turkey Stuffing (or stuffing can be baked in covered casserole last hour turkey roasts, if preferred). Skewer openings, tie legs close to body, and turn wing tips back under body. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Brush skin with oil. Roast in moderately slow oven (325 degrees) about 1½ hours, until skin begins to color. Melt butter and add brandy. Baste turkey with brandy-butter about every 20 minutes, continuing to roast about 2 to 2½ hours longer, until drumstick can be moved up and down easily, and fleshy part of drumstick feels very soft and tender when pressed with fingers protected with a folded paper towel. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Brother Timothy's Turkey Stuffing

- 1 (12 ounce) package frozen chopped spinach, thawed
- 1 pound pork sausage meat
- ¼ pound chicken or turkey livers
- 1 cup sausage drippings and butter
- 1 cup chopped onion
- ½ teaspoon rosemary, crumbled
- ½ teaspoon mint flakes
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
- ½ cup chicken broth*
- ½ cup brandy
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 3 quarts soft day-old bread crumbs
- ½ cup toasted blanched almonds
- ⅓ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Drain spinach well, pressing out excess moisture. Brown sausage. Cut livers in small pieces, and add to skillet when sausage is about half cooked. Scoop out meats, and set aside. Measure drippings and butter to measure 1 cup. Add onion, rosemary, mint flakes and nutmeg. Cook slowly until onion is soft but not browned. Add broth, brandy, salt, pepper and spinach. Heat to simmering. Pour over bread, tossing to moisten evenly. Stir in almonds and cheese. Bake in covered casserole in moderately slow oven (325 degrees) about 1 hour (or stuffing may be placed in turkey before roasting, and baked inside the bird). Makes about 2⅓ quarts stuffing.

* Or use ½ cup water and 1 chicken bouillon cube.

Hors d'oeuvres ring in the New Year

by LOIS SEILER

Welcoming in the new year with neighbors, relatives and friends is a holiday tradition in the home of Marv and Betty Jane Geitsch, Arlington Heights.

Betty Jane loves to fix party food, and she goes all out for this annual event. The dining room table is laden with numerous spreads, dips, and hors d'oeuvres. Guests often bring their own favorites.

In addition to mixed drinks, Betty Jane serves a champagne punch, and later in the evening corned beef and ham sandwiches are available, along with coffee, cookies and coffee cakes.

CONVENIENCE foods are a help when preparing the party foods, and by doubling the mushroom, meat ball, cheese bread and quiche recipes, the menu which follows is sufficient to feed 50 persons.

Both Betty Jane and Marv grew up in this area and have two sons. Betty Jane is a member of the Elk Grove Home Extension and Alpha Eta sorority. She is active in St. John's Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, and works part-time for her husband. In her spare time, she enjoys bowling, golf and snowmobiling.

CRAB COCKTAIL QUICHE

1 (8 or 9-inch) unbaked pastry shell
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons flour
2 beaten eggs
½ cup milk
1 can (7½ ounces) crab meat, drained and flaked
1 package (8 ounces) Swiss cheese, sliced and diced
1/3 cup sliced onion, chives or green onion

Mix mayonnaise, flour, eggs and milk with electric mixer. Stir in crab meat, cheese and onion. Pour into pastry shell and bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes. Cut in small slices or wedges to serve.

CRAB CHEESE SPREAD

1 can (7½ ounces) crab meat, flaked
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
½ bottle (4 ounces) Hoffman House Shrimp Sauce

Spread cheese over an 8 or 9-inch dinner plate, ½-inch thick. Sprinkle flaked crab meat over cheese. Pour on shrimp sauce and spread over the top. Serve with crackers.

CRAB MOLD

2 cans (7½ ounces each) crab meat or 2 packages frozen
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1½ tablespoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup mayonnaise
2 large packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
1 tablespoon finely-chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely-chopped celery
Juice of ½ lemon
¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Heat soup. Soften gelatin in cold water. Then add gelatin to warm soup and stir to dissolve. Cool and blend in remaining ingredients. Chill until firm in a 5-cup mold. To serve, unmold and serve as a spread with crackers.

CHERRY-PINEAPPLE CHEESE BALL

2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese
1 can (8½ ounces) crushed pineapple, well-drained
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
6 maraschino cherries, chopped
Chopped pecans

Soften cheese and mix with pineapple, onion, salt and cherries. Form into a ball and roll in chopped pecans. Chill for 8 hours and serve with crackers.

LIVER PATE

¼ pound butter
1 pound chicken livers
6 to 8 hard-cooked eggs, shelled
2 to 4 tablespoons salad dressing

Saute onion in butter until transparent. Remove onion and add livers. Saute slowly until just cooked through but not brown. Remove livers from butter and cool. Reserve butter.

Mash livers with fork or sturdy pastry blender or put through meat grinder. Mash or grind egg. Combine mashed livers, eggs, onion and butter and add just enough salad dressing to make a firm paste. Form into a ball and refrigerate. Serve with miniature rye slices or crackers.

CHEESE BREAD

16 ounces shredded Cheddar cheese
1 tub (8 ounces) soft margarine
Garlic powder to taste

Mix cheese, margarine and garlic powder together to form a paste.

Cut bread in thirds horizontally as you would a sandwich loaf and spread cheese mixture between the two cuts.

Re-assemble loaf. Now cut the bread into four sections lengthwise and spread cheese mixture between each quarter. Re-assemble loaf. Then slice bread (as you normally would) into five pieces, spread with cheese mixture and re-assemble. The loaf will have a checkerboard effect. (Slicing may be easier if the loaf is refrigerated for a short while between cuttings, so the cheese mixture will firm up.)

Wrap loaf in foil and bake on a cookie sheet at 350 degrees for a half hour until cheese melts and is bubbly. (The cheese bread can be made ahead and refrigerated or frozen. If frozen, let defrost at least six hours before baking.)

Uncover and press down foil in a decorative manner, serving bread in its own foil tray. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Pull bread apart to eat.

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

24 medium-size fresh mushrooms
½ cup bread crumbs
½ cup Parmesan cheese
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup melted butter or margarine
12 pieces bacon, cut in half

Wash mushrooms and remove stems. Combine bread crumbs and cheese. Have lemon juice and butter in separate bowls.

Dip mushroom caps into lemon juice and then into melted butter. Spoon bread crumb-cheese mixture into caps. Wrap in ½ slice bacon and secure with toothpicks.

If possible, bake on a disposable aluminum broiler pan or otherwise a regular broiler pan at 350 degrees for a half hour, or until bacon is slightly brown. Turn once during baking. Serve hot.

DRIED BEEF DIP

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
2 tablespoons milk
1 package (3 ounces) dried beef, finely chopped
½ cup sour cream
¼ cup finely-chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons onion flakes
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic salt

Cream cheese with milk. Stir in beef and blend in remaining ingredients. Turn into a small casserole and sprinkle with the following topping:

2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt

Saute pecans in butter and sprinkle with salt. Spoon over cheese mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes and serve with crackers. It is best hot, but may be served cold.

DILL PICKLE WHIRLS

8 to 12 average size dill pickles
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 package (3 ounces) dried smoked beef

Dry pickles and spread with cheese until completely covered. Wrap with a half or whole slice of beef, depending on size of pickle. Refrigerate one hour. Slice into ¼ to ½-inch rounds and place on serving dish. Spear with toothpicks.

BOILED SHRIMP

1½ pounds frozen shrimp, shelled
4 cups water
1 can beer
1 teaspoon salt
1 medium onion, cut in half
1 rib of celery with leaves
1 tablespoon pickling spice
Juice from a ½ lemon and rind

Place all ingredients except shrimp into a pot and bring to a boil. Let simmer five minutes. Add shrimp and bring to a boil. Let boil one minute or until shrimp start to curl. Rinse immediately and cool as quickly as possible. Refrigerate until served. Serve with cocktail sauce.

CHAMPAGNE PUNCH

2 bottles white champagne
½ bottle (2 cups) brandy
1 quart seltzer water or club soda

Pour into punch bowl with an ice ring and add fresh strawberries with stems. This punch is dry, not sweet. Serves about 25 to 30.

TEMPTING FINGER FOODS help welcome in the new year for Betty Jane Geitsch, Arlington Heights. Because she takes advantage of convenience foods, she says a large quantity of appetizers like quiche, dill pickle slices and stuffed mushrooms can be prepared with a minimum of fuss.

Cholesterol and calories important when planning for holiday parties

The holidays usually bring together family, friends and food. And, too often, rich foods. Being overweight and having high cholesterol are two risk factors leading to heart disease, still the nation's No. 1 killer.

According to Marguerite Robinson, chairwoman of the Chicago Heart Association's Nutrition Subcommittee, recipes based on a fat-controlled low cholesterol meal plan are one means of reducing the risk of heart attack. These recipes don't need to be left out of holiday planning.

Basically, they consist of moderate changes in daily eating habits. For instance, instead of whole milk and cheese made from whole milk and cream, use skimmed or low-fat milk and cheeses; eat no more than three egg yolks a week, including eggs used in cooking; instead of butter and other cooking fats that are solid or completely hydrogenated, use liquid oils and margarines that are rich in polyunsaturated fats.

ROAST STUFFED CORNISH HEN

6 cornish hens (about 14 ounces each)
1 package wild rice mix or long grain and wild rice combination
1 medium onion chopped
2 tablespoons margarine
½ teaspoon sage
¼ cup brandy
1 cup orange sections

To make the stuffing, cook rice until it is still slightly firm. Drain. In a skillet, melt margarine and cook chopped onion until browned. Add rice and sage; toss gently.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Clean, wash and dry hens, Stuff lightly and skewer or sew the vents closed. Brush hens with ½ cup melted margarine and place breasts side up on a rack in a shallow pan. Roast uncovered about 1 hour, basting occasionally with the melted margarine. Make a sauce by adding ½ cup water to the drippings in the roasting pan, stirring to dislodge browned particles from the pan. Add ¼ cup brandy and 1 cup orange sections. Cook 2 minutes. Serve with hens. Makes 12 servings at 350 calories a serving.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS

½ pound fresh mushrooms
1 cup oil
¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped chives
½ teaspoon salt

Select fresh bite-size mushrooms. Wash thoroughly. Combine the remaining ingredients and pour over the mushrooms. Marinate several hours at least, turning occasionally. Drain and serve on toothpicks as an appetizer. Leftover marinade makes a delicious base for salad dressing. Serves 6 at 55 calories a serving.

For complete recipes or for free nutritional brochures, contact the Chicago Heart Association at 20 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago, 60606.

Dietary substitutions

To accomplish simple cholesterol and calorie modifications on a daily basis, the Chicago Heart Association in conjunction with American Heart suggests the following substitutions for any recipe:

When your recipe calls for:	Use:
Sour cream	A mock sour cream recipe; or low fat cottage cheese blended until smooth or cottage cheese plus low-fat yogurt for flavor; or ricotta cheese made from partially skimmed milk (thinned with yogurt or buttermilk if desired). One can of chilled evaporated skim milk whipped with a teaspoon of lemon juice. Low-fat buttermilk or low-fat yogurt.
Eggs	Use commercially produced cholesterol-free egg substitutes according to package instructions. Or use one egg white plus three teaspoons of polyunsatured oil.
Milk	Use one cup of skim or nonfat dry milk plus two tablespoons of polyunsaturated oil as a substitute for one cup of whole milk.
Butter	Polyunsaturated margarine or oil. The following substitutes will usually work: 1 cup oil is 1¼ cups margarine 1 tablespoon oil is 1¼ tablespoons margarine 1 cup margarine is ¾ cup oil 1 tablespoon margarine is ¾ tablespoon oil 1 tablespoon butter is 1 tablespoon margarine or ¾ tablespoon oil
Chocolate	Cocoa blended with polyunsaturated oil or margarine (one 1-ounce square of chocolate equals 3 tablespoons of cocoa plus 1 tablespoon polyunsaturated oil or margarine).

Festive fete features super soups

Soup may be a popular request in chilly autumn weather but it can also be a hit at cocktail parties. An example are the three soups created by chef George L. Jewell for the recent opening of Gladstone, Realtors in Elk Grove Village.

Jewell, an English-born cooking expert, came to America 10 years ago and has since become one of the Midwest's top caterers.

"I ran away from farming and bumped into a hotel," he jokingly said. But actually, he said, his first love was puttering around in the kitchen at home. Even as a child he often concocted soups.

For the Gladstone "Souper Event," Jewell has created a House-Warming Bisque spiked with bourbon, Gladstone Gumbo with vodka and Celebration Consomme with sherry.

HOUSE WARMING BISQUE

4 chicken backs or 2 legs
7 cups chicken broth
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped carrots
2 apples, peeled and diced
1 tablespoon curry powder
¼ teaspoon powdered fennel
Pinch of green cloves
½ green pepper, diced
Salt
1 cup tomato puree
½ cup uncooked rice
2 cups bourbon

Place chicken parts in broth and simmer until tender. Remove chicken and cut away meat. Return chicken meat to broth. Melt butter and add vegetables. Simmer until soft, not brown. Add apples, curry powder, fennel, cloves and green pepper. Cook until apple is mushy. Add tomato puree, chicken broth with bits of meat, and rice. Simmer 20 minutes, add bourbon. Serves. 8.

GLADSTONE GUMBO

4 to 6 medium potatoes peeled and quartered
2 onions, peeled and quartered
2 quarts water
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup diced green peas
soaked overnight
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 cup shredded spinach leaves
2 cups vodka
2 cups corn niblets
2 cups chopped mushrooms
2 cups shredded leek

Cook potatoes, onions, green peas, in salt water until tender. Add olive oil and puree the mixture in blender, return to pot. Add spinach leaves and corn niblets, cook for 10 minutes. Add vodka. Serves 6 to 8.

CELEBRATION CONSOMME

1 pound beef shank
1½ pounds chopped onions, celery and carrots
1 cup egg whites
Parsley stems, thyme, bay leaf
Cloves, crushed peppercorns
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 gallon beef stock
2 cups medium sherry

Skin meat and vegetables and grind coarsely together. Blend all ingredient in stock pot and mix well, stirring briskly. Bring to a slow boil, stirring occasionally. When mixture reaches boiling point reduce heat and let simmer slowly until coagulated mass rises to the top. Simmer 1 to 1½ hours. Skim. Add sherry. When consomme is clean and tasty, strain through fine cheesecloth.

Sniff test tells taste

There's a bit of the string-saver in most of us. This penny-wise, pound-foolish foible shows up in many little ways. A good example in the kitchen is hanging on to tag-ends of spices and herbs which have been on the shelf so long that they have lost their true aroma.

Right now, before your holiday cooking and baking, is a good time to give your spices the sniff test. No matter how old they are, you'll probably find the remnants of aroma, but this is deceptive. To do their magical flavoring job, spices must be fresh and strong.

So try this: If you're low in supply on one particular spice, buy a new container, but save the old until you have had a chance to compare them. Check the smell of the older one, then the fresh stock and you'll never again forget to keep your spices "up to sniff."

Once you have a fine new supply, take good care of your spices. Date the containers. Store them away from either direct range or radiator heat and brilliant sunlight. In a very hot climate or during the heat of the summer, it may be best to refrigerate or freeze oil seeds, such as poppy and sesame and the red pepper items — paprika, red pepper and chili powder.

Longer life

Washing lettuce before storage helps restore some of the original moisture removed in vacuum cooling and improves crispness during refrigeration, says a consumer specialist at Pennsylvania State University. After the lettuce has been washed, it should be drained well or patted dry with a towel and refrigerated in a covered container.

Festive fete features super soups

Soup may be a popular request in chilly autumn weather but it can also be a hit at cocktail parties. An example are the three soups created by chef George L. Jewell for the recent opening of Gladstone, Realtors in Elk Grove Village.

Jewell, an English-born cooking expert, came to America 10 years ago and has since become one of the Midwest's top caterers.

"I ran away from farming and bumped into a hotel," he jokingly said. But actually, he said, his first love was puttering around in the kitchen at home. Even as a child he often concocted soups.

For the Gladstone "Souper Event," Jewell has created a House-Warming Bisque spiked with bourbon, Gladstone Gumbo with vodka and Celebration Consomme with sherry.

HOUSE WARMING BISQUE

4 chicken backs or 2 legs
7 cups chicken broth
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped carrots
2 apples, peeled and diced
1 tablespoon curry powder
¼ teaspoon powdered fennel
Pinch of green cloves
½ green pepper, diced
Salt
1 cup tomato puree
½ cup uncooked rice
2 cups bourbon

Place chicken parts in broth and simmer until tender. Remove chicken and cut away meat. Return chicken meat to broth. Melt butter and add vegetables. Simmer until soft, not brown. Add apples, curry powder, fennel, cloves and green pepper. Cook until apple is mushy. Add tomato puree, chicken broth with bits of meat, and rice. Simmer 20 minutes, add bourbon. Serves. 8.

GLADSTONE GUMBO

4 to 6 medium potatoes peeled and quartered
2 onions, peeled and quartered
2 quarts water
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup diced green peas
soaked overnight
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 cup shredded spinach leaves
2 cups vodka
2 cups corn niblets
2 cups chopped mushrooms
2 cups shredded leek

Cook potatoes, onions, green peas, in salt water until tender. Add olive oil and puree the mixture in blender, return to pot. Add spinach leaves and corn niblets, cook for 10 minutes. Add vodka. Serves 6 to 8.

CELEBRATION CONSOMME

1 pound beef shank
1½ pounds chopped onions, celery and carrots
1 cup egg whites
Parsley stems, thyme, bay leaf
Cloves, crushed peppercorns
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 gallon beef stock
2 cups medium sherry

Skin meat and vegetables and grind coarsely together. Blend all ingredient in stock pot and mix well, stirring briskly. Bring to a slow boil, stirring occasionally. When mixture reaches boiling point reduce heat and let simmer slowly until coagulated mass rises to the top. Simmer 1 to 1½ hours. Skim. Add sherry. When consomme is clean and tasty, strain through fine cheesecloth.

Sniff test tells taste

There's a bit of the string-saver in most of us. This penny-wise, pound-foolish foible shows up in many little ways. A good example in the kitchen is hanging on to tag-ends of spices and herbs which have been on the shelf so long that they have lost their true aroma.

Right now, before your holiday cooking and baking, is a good time to give your spices the sniff test. No matter how old they are, you'll probably find the remnants of aroma, but this is deceptive. To do their magical flavoring job, spices must be fresh and strong.

So try this: If you're low in supply on one particular spice, buy a new container, but save the old until you have had a chance to compare them. Check the smell of the older one, then the fresh stock and you'll never again forget to keep your spices "up to sniff."

Once you have a fine new supply, take good care of your spices. Date the containers. Store them away from either direct range or radiator heat and brilliant sunlight. In a very hot climate or during the heat of the summer, it may be best to refrigerate or freeze oil seeds, such as poppy and sesame and the red pepper items — paprika, red pepper and chili powder.

Longer life

Washing lettuce before storage helps restore some of the original moisture removed in vacuum cooling and improves crispness during refrigeration, says a consumer specialist at Pennsylvania State University. After the lettuce has been washed, it should be drained well or patted dry with a towel and refrigerated in a covered container.

Imagination spices fruit cakes

They're rich, spicy fruit cakes from your own kitchen. Perfect holiday gifts for your friends and neighbors. But they needn't take all fall to make. You can start with a mix and quickly spice it into as delicious a fruit cake as you've tasted in years. And for gift giving, this idea lends itself to small loaf cakes or cupcakes.

Whatever your basic mix, give it distinctive aroma with sweet spices or baking seeds. There's cinnamon, allspice, cardamon, cloves, ginger, mace, nutmeg or coriander to choose from, or poppy or sesame seeds. Use one or more; this will not necessitate any other change in the recipe.

Spices should be added directly to the dry cake mix. As a guide, when not following a specific recipe, use about two teaspoons of cinnamon to a one-pound mix, plus a half teaspoon of other spices such as allspice, cloves or nutmeg.

If you're a born short-cutter, you can replace several single spices with two or three teaspoons of apple pie or pumpkin pie spice blend. Mysteriously delightful is a pinch of black pepper (of medium grind) added to the sweet spices. Use about an eighth teaspoonful. It gives a flowery fragrance, hard to identify, but surprisingly good.

These two delectable recipes for different versions of fruit cakes come from the test kitchens of the American Spice Trade Association.

GRENADA FRUIT CAKELETTES

1 package (17 ounces) pound cake mix
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
¾ teaspoon ground allspice
4 eggs
¼ cup milk or rum
1 box (15 ounces) dark raisins
1½ cups diced mixed candied fruits

In the large bowl of an electric mixer combine pound cake mix, lemon peel, nutmeg and allspice. Blend in eggs and milk with mixer set at low speed. Beat at medium speed until smooth, about 2 minutes. Stir in raisins and candied fruits. Spoon into four greased and lined 6 by 3-inch loaf pans. Spread batter sm ooth. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean, about 40 minutes. Cool in pans on racks. Turn out of pans. If desired, brush tops lightly with corn syrup and garnish with nuts and glazed fruits. Wrap tightly in foil or clear plastic wrap. Makes 4 small loaves.

CINNAMON FRUIT CUPCAKES

1 package (1 pound 1 ounce) date bread mix
1 t ablespoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
3 eggs
½ cup milk
1 box (15 ounce) dark raisins
1½ cups halved candied cherries
1 cup coarsely chopped nuts

Combine date bread mix with cinnamon and cloves. Lightly beat eggs with milk; stir into bread mix just until all of the flour is moistened. Stir in raisins, cherries and nuts. Spoon into paper-lined or well-greased 2-inch muffin pan cups. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean, about 20 minutes. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Makes 30 cupcakes.

From plants to punches

by Jarvis Rice

Did you ever hear of a vegetable suffering a nervous breakdown? Well, it's true, and the collapse was brought about by scientists who were testing vegetable plants for possible use as space foods. Under normal conditions, plants defy gravity — they grow away from gravity's pull. So the men of science turned the plants upside down in the ground. That only confused the plants and they quit growing.

In fact, they felt so injured and frustrated that they struck back at their growers by giving off enough poison, carbon monoxide, to kill a man.

In the days of merry Old England, the custom was to drink to the health of friends at Christmas. "Wassail!" they'd say, which means "Be in good health!" The drink, a spiced beverage with roasted apples and toast floating in it, was kept in a large bowl, our present-day Punch Bowl. If someone asks you what teams are playing in the Punch Bowl this year, you'll know he's been in it already. Maybe he should have some Red Eye, a very old drink made with beer, tomato juice, Worcestershire and Tabasco. It's a remedy for the morning after, and said to be better than the hair of the dog that bit you.

The dog that you bit — the hot dog — was given that name by a New York cartoonist around the turn of the century. He showed sausages sizzling on a grill and saying "Bow Wow." It was a joke that parlayed into an annual business of half a billion dollars. But at the time the meat industry feared the name would throw frankfurters into disrepute. Actually, frankfurters were then being called Red Hots, because they were red and they were hot. But, the cartoonist can't take all the credit for the hot dog. It had already been created in Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany, and was said to be an idea of the Butcher's Guild, inspired by the lines of the dachshund.

Popcorn mania

Americans will munch 415 million pounds of popcorn this year. That pops out to 6,640 billion quarts of popped popcorn, an average of 31 quarts of popcorn for every person in the United States.

Not only would that amount fill four boxes the size of Chicago's Sears Tower, but it would cover a fourth of Los Angeles and all of Pittsburgh.

Ceremonies · for · the · Holiday · Season

We at Talman would like to extend to our friends and neighbors our sincere best wishes for a joyous holiday season and a bountiful New Year.

May the principles of peace and goodwill among people guide us all in the year to come.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer combine pound cake mix, lemon peel, nutmeg and allspice. Blend in eggs and milk with mixer set at low speed. Beat at medium speed until smooth, about 2 minutes. Stir in raisins and candied fruits. Spoon into four greased and lined 6 by 3-inch loaf pans. Spread batter sm ooth. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean, about 40 minutes. Cool in pans on racks. Turn out of pans. If desired, brush tops lightly with corn syrup and garnish with nuts and glazed fruits. Wrap tightly in foil or clear plastic wrap. Makes 4 small loaves.

Spoon into paper-lined or well-greased 2-inch muffin pan cups. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean, about 20 minutes. From plants to punches

Did you ever hear of a vegetable suffering a nervous breakdown? Well, it's true, and the collapse was brought about by scientists who were testing vegetable plants for possible use as space foods. Under normal conditions, plants defy gravity — they grow away from gravity's pull. So the men of science turned the plants upside down in the ground. That only confused the plants and they quit growing.

In fact, they felt so injured and frustrated that they struck back at their growers by giving off enough poison, carbon monoxide, to kill a man.

In the days of merry Old England, the custom was to drink to the health of friends at Christmas. "Wassail!" they'd say, which means "Be in good health!" The drink, a spiced beverage with roasted apples and toast floating in it, was kept in a large bowl, our present-day Punch Bowl. If someone asks you what teams are playing in the Punch Bowl this year, you'll know he's been in it already. Maybe he should have some Red Eye, a very old drink made with beer, tomato juice, Worcestershire and Tabasco. It's a remedy for the morning after, and said to be better than the hair of the dog that bit you.

The dog that you bit — the hot dog — was given that name by a New York cartoonist around the turn of the century. He showed sausages sizzling on a grill and saying "Bow Wow." It was a joke that parlayed into an annual business of half a billion dollars. But at the time the meat industry feared the name would throw frankfurters into disrepute. Actually, frankfurters were then being called Red Hots, because they were red and they were hot. But, the cartoonist can't take all the credit for the hot dog. It had already been created in Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany, and was said to be an idea of the Butcher's Guild, inspired by the lines of the dachshund.

Popcorn mania

Americans will munch 415 million pounds of popcorn this year. That pops out to 6,640 billion quarts of popped popcorn, an average of 31 quarts of popcorn for every person in the United States.

Not only would that amount fill four boxes the size of Chicago's Sears Tower, but it would cover a fourth of Los Angeles and all of Pittsburgh.

We at Talman would like to extend to our friends and neighbors our sincere best wishes for a joyous holiday season and a bountiful New Year.

May the principles of peace and goodwill among people guide us all in the year to come.
